Farm Unrest Growing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rebellious farmers spilling milk on pastures and streets is marking a price struggle many persons believe is reaching a crisis with repercussions from rural voting booths to big city supermarkets.

The milk holding and dumping initiated in 25 states is the most dramatic expression of what farmers and their representatives in Congress describe as deep unrest over declining prices, rising costs — and the seemingly greener pasture on the city side of the fence.

A march by 100 farmers on the New Jersey state house in Trenton, dynamiting of a milk truck in Tennessee, vandalism spoilage to stored milk in Minnesota — these were among developments Wednesday as the week-long National Farmers Organization campaign to boost milk prices heightened in intensity.

More demonstrations, boycotts and strikes are expected, said a Midwestern congressman. "He (the farmer) wants to be part of the affluent society."

With farm prices skidding for six consecutive months, farmers charge they are being shortchanged in a booming economy.

Conscious of declining power at the polls, some farmers argue the administration simply is using its support tools to tamp down prices and court the favor of urban consumers.

Farmer Cyril Habiger of Bavaria, Kan., figures it adds up to this: "There are fewer farmers, more votes among consumers, so policies favor consumers."

Many farm leaders feel the same way. At a recent confer-

WASHINGTON (AP) - For years, Latin Americans talked about a development bank of their own. They said there was a need for an international lending institution attuned to their nagging problems of education, public health, housing, highways, agricultural and industrial advancement, and political stability.

Despite some skepticism in Washington and a few of their own capitals, the Inter-American Development Bank got into operation in 1961. Since then, its loans have sparked direct development projects costing more than $5.3 billion. Of this sum, about $3.3 billion has come from governments and private resources of Latin America itself. It has drawn in more than $125 million in investment capital from Europe, Canada, Japan and Israel.

The bank has even greater plans for the future. It is giving particular emphasis to projects in which two or more nations join in regional efforts to meet broad economic and social needs.

Chilean economist Felipe Herrera has been president of the bank since its founding. He is a key figure in general planning for more prosperous times in Latin America, now striving to speed the Alliance for Progress plan of economic and social development.

Only recently the bank announced without fanfare that its total credits to Latin America has passed the $2 billion mark. It now has become the major lender of development funds in Latin America, outdistancing in this category the giant of international financing, the World Bank.

As of last Dec. 31, the Inter-American bank had extended credits of $1.9 billion, against $1.6 billion by the World Bank.

The Inter-American bank is owned by the governments of 19 Latin American nations and the United States. Each is represented on the bank's board of governors.

The United States made the biggest capital subscription to the bank's capital -- $761 million, or 42.4 per cent of the total. This capital and other U.S. funds made available to the bank, however, exceed $1 billion.

The bank has been hampered by the fact that, until it was organized, Latin American nations had no long-range plans for economic and social development and lacked personnel to make such plans.

Now the bank is cooperating with the Inter-American Committee on the Alliance for Progress, the U.S. Aid Agency, the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund in pressing for tax, fiscal and other reforms considered necessary for real progress in Latin America.

The bank makes loans to governments, their agencies and to private individuals, firms and institutions. The projects vary. Sometimes they involve credit to a government agency to teach farmers in backward communities to get away from wooden plows, ox power and antiquated farming methods.

Others might involve credit to give some sizeable city in Latin America its first water system, a hospital, a school or a farm-to-market road to bring an isolated community into communication with a major consumers' market.

The bank also helps finance national highway systems, railroads, housing for the poor and dozens of other projects aimed at boosting living standards.

Budget Foes Gaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — Their ranks swollen by last year's elections, House budget-cutters have indicated in the first test vote this year that President Johnson's domestic programs face real trouble.

They showed considerable muscle Wednesday as the House passed and sent to the Senate the first of a series of appropriations bills financing domestic programs for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The action came on the eve of recess by the House and Senate for a 10-day Easter vacation. The legislators were to meet briefly today — with no major action scheduled — and won't return until April 3.

The appropriations bill carried $7.5 billion for the Treasury and Post Office departments and the executive office of the President. Since it finances the jobs of thousands of mail carriers and other postal employes, it is one of the most difficult to cut.

Yet, it reached the House floor trimmed $112 million below the President's request. And, with almost solid Republican backing, the House chopped out another $2.4 million earmarked for more postal field employes and more personnel for the office of the Treasury secretary.

More significantly, the budget-cutters came much closer than in any recent year to imposing an across the board reduction in spending next year for activities financed in the bill.

The over-all cut, proposed by Rep. Charles R. Jones, R-N.C., and supported by most Republicans, would have in essence trimmed spending next year 5 per cent from amounts set out in the President's budget.

Jones estimated the saving at $109 million.

'Free Pig' Escapes

A pig advertised as a prize in a contest as "free live pig" did see the light of freedom temporarily today, when it escaped its pen.

A Sikeston policeman returning to the station from breakfast at 6:45 a.m. today was surprised to see a large white hog charge at the side of his car on East Malone.

The pig escaped from a makeshift pen in front of the Farm & Home Discount Supply Store, 2015 East Malone, early today and alluded its captors till about 9 a.m.

The pig is a prize in a promotion sale at the store. It will be given to the person who guesses closest to its actual weight.

Managers of the store were notified that the pig was roaming in the area and presenting a hazard to driving. The speed zone in the vicinity is 45 miles per hour.

Worship, Shopping and Hunt Usher in Early Easter

For, lo, the winter is past,
The rain is over and gone;
The flowers appear on the earth;
The time of the singing of the birds is come,
And the voice of the turtle is heard in our land.
--- Song of Solomon

Holy Week observances prevail in the Sikeston area.

Many churches are holding daily services observing the events preceding Easter --- principal Christian festival of the year which commemorates the resurrection of Christ.

Easter is early this year. Spring was late. Easter is early on the calendar and Spring is late in terms of weather.

Spring arrived Tuesday bringing warmth and Easter comes five days later bringing what residents hope will be more of the same.

Nature is cooperating. The unfamiliar smell of new mown grass fills the air. The sun is warmer. Birds sing with more assurance their full throated song. The yellow effusion of forsythia and jonquils stand out against greener grass. The delicate white of thousands of tiny spirea blossoms adorn the landscape.

Spring arrives with the vernal equinox. Easter day is the first Sunday after the full moon following the equinox. Its earliest date is March 22 and latest April 25.

This is the season of the Easter parade -- a time to buy new clothing, particularly the hat, and wear it on Sunday. A time to spade, to put in garden, and for children to play outdoors.

Good Friday will be observed at a union service at 2 p.m. in the First Assembly of God church. Many business establishments will close for the hour long rites at which the Rev. James W. Hackney, First Baptist church pastor, will preach on "The Incomparable Triumph of the Cross."

Saturday from 9 a.m. until noon small fry, aged one to 10, will search for Easter eggs in Malone park in the annual hunt sponsored by the Junior Women's club.

A selection of drip dry and permanent press fabrics may be a practical approach to Easter preparations.

Churches at New Madrid hope to attract a thousand persons to the Mississippi river bank at the end of Main street for annual sunrise interdominational services Sunday.

In Sikeston General Baptist churches will hold a service at 5:30 a.m. at the Second General Baptist church.

There will be a union sunrise service in Morehouse at 6 a.m. Sunday in the high school gymnasium sponsored by the Kiwanis club there.

If history repeats itself pews of churches, usually half filled, will all but overflow with

District Revision Stalls

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate took its first look at congressional redistricting today but got nowhere.

Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, chairman of the committee which produced the bill, offered what he called a corrective amendment.

But he had to lay the bill over so senators could study the amendment, which would change the boundaries of the 2nd and 3rd districts in St. Louis City and County.

As originally presented, the bill split the 2nd District represented now by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, Webster Groves Republican, and turned it into a Democratic district.

Defeated on a 13-15 vote was a bill designed to limit grand juries to returning indictments and making reports but not allowing them to smear individuals or officials by name if they were not indicted.

When the bill was voted down, Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, its sponsor, ordered it stricken from the calendar.

The House started its Easter recess Wednesday but the Senate stayed on to plug away on its heavy calendar.

The Senate Roads and Highways Committee approved a House - passed bill increasing Highway Patrol salaries about $500,000 a year and adding the rank of corporal.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee recommended repeal of the 3 - cent state property tax which raises about $3 million a year.

Earlier Republican leaders of the House and Senate combined in calling the record of the present legislature terrible.

The criticism came from Sen. R. J. King, R-Clayton, House minority leader, and Sen. Thomas G. Woolsey, R - Versailles, Senate minority leader.

King said the House calendar is cluttered with bills that never should have come out of

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

EASTER

Easter will soon be here again. And, though few may know it, the theme of Easter is older than Christianity itself. In the modern world, it celebrates the Resurrection of Christ. But similar rites were held in times long before He lived. Rituals of rebirth, historians tell us, were common in the ancient civilizations.

Now Easter is greeted with sunrise services, and these date back to the medieval custom of praying while the sun begins its climb into the heavens. One legend holds that the rays of light which break through the clouds on Easter morning are angels dancing for joy. This is, indeed, a happy time - even as it is a time for thoughts of those aspects of life which go far beyond the mere material.

In many communities, elaborate Easter parades are held, and ladies appear in their new finery - a flamboyant Easter hat has become something of a tradition. And then there is one of the most charming of customs - the Easter egg hunt for children. Easter bunnies, the eager children are told, laid the eggs. And this, too, has its origins in antiquity - in pre-Christian times the rabbit was a symbol of abundant new life in the spring season.

Easter thus combines a rich mixture of laughter and solemnity. Both are good - both are needed by the soul of man. Let all enjoy this Easter - and, in enjoying it, pray that the spirit of He who was Resurrected from the dead will some day rule this world.

A MILK STRIKE THAT CAN'T BE WON

The supply of any commodity in relation to demand affects price. If N. E. O. dairy farmers choose to hold supplies off the market in an effort to increase prices, that is their right, even though it does seem a shame to waste good food. They do not have the right to prevent others from delivering milk.

It seems to us, however, that the milk strike is a futile effort for two principal reasons. First, not enough milk can be withheld from the market to increase prices, except, perhaps in specific local areas. Second, if we should concede that prices would be given a boost, the increases would bring additional production which would only mean that the government would have to buy more of the surplus.

Milk supply and demand were getting into a close balance in early 1966. In fact, government authorities feared that a shortage might develop because many farmers were either quitting the business or shifting to other farm enterprises. They were making a natural response to low prices.

The government raised price supports twice in 1966 and said that the current level ($4 per hundred pounds on milk used for manufacturing purposes) would be maintained until March, 1968.

Now there is no milk shortage. Production is greater than a year ago and with higher retail prices, consumption is down a little. The government supports milk prices by buying the surplus and taking it out of regular market channels. In January and February of this year, the government bought more surplus dairy products than in all of 1966. This suggests how much "dumping" the N. F. O. famers would have to do before they caused a shortage.

It is possible, but not probable, that the N. F. O. milk strike might induce the govment to raise support prices again. In that case, it is certain that production would rise further unless some sort of controls were invoked.

Certainly it is conceivable that farmers could reduce total milk production to a 'point where higher prices would be forced. But they could not force the market to take all the milk they would want to produce at the higher prices. This same situation would apply on any product, farm or otherwise.

The N. F. O. farmers, we fear, don't take this economic fact of life into consideration.

Onetime public servant not permanently cured of the virus, hence reluctant to be identified or expose other principles in this drama, relates a series of circumstances and snapper denouement.

There was a man in our town who fancied horses, and kept a string of them in a sizeable bookyard pasture, until the city moved in and instructed him to show cause why he should not dispose of them. He appeared for a hearing, and his elders in judgment advised him that the law provided that a person might keep animals unless other people complained, and that there had been complaints about his horses.

Our public servant speaking on behalf of the city, was on the witness stand, and the horse owner demanded to know who had complained about his remuda. The public servant demurred, and the horse man asked the judge to instuct the witness to expose the complainant. The judge was about to, when the witness said:

"Judge, may I have a word with you in private before I carry out the court's order?" The Judge agreed, and the public servant-witness approached the bench, leaned over, and whispered in the judge's ear.

"The complainant was this man's wife," he confided, and went back to the witness stand.

"The court will not require the witness to identify the complainant," ruled the judge.

Advertisements in a local newspaper boost the economic level of the entire community.

Residents of a Texas city proved the worth of advertising in 1964, when they were threatened with economic extinction. An Air Force base closeup and a freak ruinous freeze caused 6,000 residents to leave during 1963. The town was dying.

But a $5,214 campaign was started in Midwestern newspapers. The campaign quickly brought 325 new residents to the ailing town by stressing its retirement possibilities.

Encouraged by the quick results, the town's Chamber of Commerce now spends $100,000 annually on a drive to boost the city's population to 100,000 by 1975. And it's working.

The local Chamber of Commerce is not generally a main advertiser, though. Local merchants and businessmen draw more economic power and prosperity to their town with each ad they run. Economic prosperity, once centralized, multiplies. Merchants who advertise draw more customers for more profit, and are able to advertise more in return.

The local level of circulation of money is easily related to a community's economic growth. Thus, in every growing community can be found a number of merchants who wisely invest in advertising. Sometimes advertisements help the town as much as they help the retailer directly.

That a town can gain 325 residents by spending only $5,000 is evidence of the drawing power of newspaper advertising. The town correctly assumed that additional advertising would bring multiplied results.

Governor Warren E. Hearnes has proclaimed May as Vehicle Safety-Check Month in Missouri. Governor Hearnes said in his proclamation that proper safety maintenance of motor vehicles can reduce accidents and reduce hazards on the streets and highways. He called upon every responsible citizen and community to join in this important traffic safety program.

The Motor Vehicle Safety-Check Program is being sponsored nationally by the Auto Industries Highway Safety Committee. The program is conducted primarily in states without a motor vehicle inspection law. It is voluntary. The Missouri State Highway Patrol is the coordinator of the national program in Missouri.

Mr. James F. Horton of the Ford Motor Company is currently working with the Patrol to coordinate the voluntary Safety-Check Program in Missouri. He is one of 22 special representatives on loan from automobile and tire industries for the purpose of promoting the program in those states that do not currently have motor vehicle inspection laws.

Last year over thirty-five thousand vehicles went through the safety-check lanes in Missouri. Nearly sixty-six hundred were found to be faulty, and better than nine thousand unsafe items were revealed.

Colonel E. L. (Mike) Hockaday, the Highway Patrol Superintendent, commenting on the importance of the Vehicle Safety-Check, said, "Keeping vehicles in safe operating condition is one phase of an over-all traffic safety program, and is an important part of our total effort to reduce highway accidents.

"We need the help of local groups and organizations to assist in promoting and conducting the voluntary Vehicle Safety-Check Program in Missouri," he declared.

"Any civic organization, school, church, fraternal group or any person interested in sponsoring a free motor vehicle inspection program in their community is urged to contact the State Highway Patrol Headquarters in their area," the Colonel concluded.

Accidents in the United States claimed 5,000 more lives in 1966 than in 1965, according to the statisticians. Last year's death toll was about 112,000, or some 20,000 more than five years ago.

The 1966 accidental death rate of 57 per 100,000 population was 4 percent over the rate for the previous year and 13 percent higher than in 1961.

The major reason for the upswing was the continuing rise in motor vehicle fatalities. The 53,000 persons who perished in motor vehicle accidents in 1966 outnumbered by 4,000 their counterparts of the year before. At 27 per 100,000, the 1966 death rate from motor vehicle accidents was by far the highest in a quarter of a century. Statisticians also estimated from preliminary data that the rate of accidental deaths per 100 million miles traveled was slightly above the 5.6 recorded in 1965.

Accidents in and about the home also accounted for a substantial portion of the rise. There were 29,000 such deaths in 1966, about 1,000 more than in 1965.

However, the death toll from catastrophes - accidents claiming five or more lives - was smaller in 1966 than a year ago. Although motor vehicle and water transportation catastrophes caused more deaths, this was offset by a smaller loss of life in tornadoes, civil and military aviation, hurricanes, floods, fires and explosions.

There were at least 71 motor vehicle catastrophes in 1966, taking more than 440 lives in all. These accounted for nearly half of all catastrophes and almost two-fifths of catastrophic deaths.

The past year saw six major catastrophes, each of which took more than 25 lives. The largest of these was the crash of a military chartered plane on April 22 in Oklahoma, causing 83 deaths. On March 3 tornadoes killed 57 persons in Mississippi and 1 in Alabama. A severe blizzard, also in March, claimed 28 lives in the northern Great Plains. On August 6 a scheduled plane plunged to earth in Nebraska and killed 42. Two tankers collided near Bayonne, New Jersey, in June, taking 33 lives; and the remaining disaster involved the sinking of a freighter on November 29 in Lake Huron, with 28 lives lost.

'That'll Give Those Milk Buyers Something to Think About!'

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP) — Ursula Andress, whose body is a poem, is having a love affair with life.

"I would like to be perfect," she said. "I would like to see the whole world, to know everything, to take full advantage of the beauty of the earth."

Ursula — her name means "little bear" -- is the Swiss-born miss who stepped to stardom in a tiny bikini as the romantic buddy of James Bond in "Dr. No."

In her latest film, "Casino Royale," based on another Ian Fleming spy fable, Ursula is cast as "the richest woman in the world," a role which appeals to her Swiss sense of thrift and which she would just as soon play in real life.

"I love beautiful things," she said frankly. "If I had a million dollars, I wouldn't be bored in my life. I would buy houses and paintings — and invest the rest, and make it a little more."

The honey-blonde actress, who has the kind of shape that haunts the dreams of her mits, doesn't particularly care to be regarded as a sex symbol. According to her studio form sheet, her mathematical measuremments are 37-22-35, and in her case figures certainly don't lie.

"I really don't know my dimensions," said Miss Andress. "Only my dressmaker knows them, I suppose. The rest is visual."

Although she has now made 13 pictures, Ursula has no ambition to wind up the dean of the film industry.

"I am a strong person, mentally and physically," she said. "I like to work, and work is good because it helps you to know and enjoy things, and it broadens your mind.

"But if I had enough security, I might want to do other things, such as decorating people's houses, or writing poems or playing the piano."

Ursula is divorced from actor John Derek and has been escorted recently by Jean Paul Belmondo, who also stars in "Casino Royale."

"But I am not engaged," she said. "I am not married. I am simply me. But I can never tell you whether I want to stay that way.

"I just want to live as much as I can. I feel I am born too late already. If it were possible, I would like to have done everything and known everybody. Time goes so fast."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- A secret meeting of California democratic congressmen has set up a political boycott of Bobby Kennedy. They decided Bobby would not be invited to address fund-raising dinners in California -- at least for the time being.

Behind the snub was indignation over Bobby's recent speeches on peace in Vietnam, which many California Democrats felt were a challenge to President Johnson's leadership and were splitting the democratic party wide open.

Rep. George Matler of Oakland was especially indignant; also Charles Wilson of Los Angeles and Chet Holifield of Montebello.

Rep. Ed Roybal of Los Angeles had suggested that Bobby be invited to an upcoming fund-raising democratic dinner. "He would be a good drawing card," he said.

This started the sparks flying.

"I certainly do not like the position he's taken against the President on Vietnam," declared Miller. "And I doubt he would be much of a drawing card right now. The chances are he wouldn't."

"I don't think he should be invited at all," snapped Wilson. "It would do great damage to the administration."

Roybal, George Brown of Monterey Park and Don Edwards of San Jose pointed to Bobby's contribution to the last campaign, but they were overruled.

So it looks as if Bobby would save himself some time and carfare traveling to the West Coast during the next few months.

ADAM'S SEAT

Sentiment on Capitol Hill is veering away from any showdown with the courts over Adam Clayton Powell. Congressmen talk big publicly about thumbing their nose at the courts, but privately they sing low. They don't want to put themselves in the same position of flouting the federal courts that Adam Powell is in with the New York courts.

Furthermore, most congressmen realize they made a serious error when they did not seat Powell first and kick him out later. The constitution is quite clear that they had no right to exclude him from taking a seat as long as he was 25 years old, had been a citizen of the United States for seven years, and was a resident of his state.

It's a foregone conclusion that Powell will be overwhelmingly reelected. When that happens on April 11 you can be sure congress will seat him -- then take some disciplinary action afterward.

It's long been the belief of congressional leaders that when a congressional district elects a representative, he should be seated. Even after Mayor Jim "the last hurrah" Curley of Boston was sent to the jug, he was later relected by the people of Boston. It was their choice, even though a bad one.

The action on Powell will doubtless be similar. Disciplinary action will come after he's seated.

BEHIND THE NEWS

Justice Abe Fortas, who as a member of the supreme court is supposed to keep distinctly aloof from the executive branch of the government, continues to dabble in executive matters. He's now pushing David Bress, U. S. Attorney in Washington, to be a federal judge. Bress kicked up a rumpus inside the Negro and Jewish communities when he came up for appointment to be U. S. Attorney. . . The best job of cross-examination during the Dodd hearings was done by Sen. Jim Pearson, Kansas Republican -- no kinship involved. . . Now that Charlie Bennett of Florida is within earshot of becoming chairman of the new House Ethics Committee, he's suddenly adopted an attitude of hear-no-evil, see-no-evil toward his fellow congressmen. Once hell-bent for scrutinizing unethical conduct, Charlie actually wrote to Leo B. Reed of Bradenton, Fla., regarding his colleague Rep. Mendel Rivers of South Carolina: "I have served on his committee 15 years and have never seen him take a drink or be under the influence." (Neither did the senators on the ethics committee ever see Tom Dodd sign checks to detour $175,000 of campaign funds to his personal account.). . . Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., gray, gaunt GOP leader, had to join AFTRA -- the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists -- before he could cut his oratorical disc. Ev is now a full-fledged member of the union... Though the United States brags about its baby care, Richard Schumaker, the AFL-CIO health expert, has shown that the United States has dropped from sixth to fourteenth among the nations of the world in infant mortality. . . Lafayette Park, facing the White House and a favorite spot for protest groups, would be renamed in honor of President Andrew Jackson if the congress adopts a proposal by Rep. Joe Evins of Tennessee. Andy was a great protester himself.

TWO SENATORS FROM CONNECTICUT

Sen. Abe Ribicoff, D-Conn., who ran the senate hearings on auto safety, castigated General Motors for hiring a private eye to investigate Ralph Nader, a senate witness. Ribicoff was so outraged that he hauled GM officials before his committee and gave them a tongue-lashing.

Yet what was wrong for General Motors was all right for the other senator from Connecticut. Tom Dodd hired Detective James Lynch to shadow and harrass witnesses before the Senate Ethics Committee. Lynch gave the impression he was a government investigator and badgered witnesses who refused to cooperate with him. He secured an affidavit from one witness by threatening to question her at the jail house. He boasted to another witness that he had managed to sneak into Jack Anderson's office, also rummage through his garbage.

Lynch even attended the first Dodd hearings and slipped notes to Dodd's attorneys. Ethics committee senators, unlike Ribicoff, kept silent.

FREEDOM NEEDS YOU - #2

Apathy among our citizenry is a confederate of the enemy seeking to destroy our Freedom and this Republic. Doing for freedom is of the utmost importance. Following are some things you can do for Freedom. Start now!

Note the names of businessmen favoring freedom by advertising in patriotic papers or with patriotic programs on the air. Write, phone, or visit expressing your pleasure, admiration and appreciation for what they are doing. Inasmuch as "the customer (sometimes Queen) is always right," you will be certain to get results.

Get to know the freedomist members of the communications media. Nearly every publication, TV or radio station has at least one active patriot on its staff. Learn to spot them and encourage them. Alert them to news developments - which constitute good news for the cause of liberty.

For each 100,000 of the U.S. population there is one daily paper published. In communist countries the closest to the U.S. ratio is one paper for each 700,000 in Czechoslovakia; in Rumania the ratio is 1,400,000 population for one daily. In the USSR the ratio is one daily for each 4.7 million; and in Red China one daily for each 85 million. These are seldom published statistics, but newsmen will find them interesting in evaluating their means of livelihood in the event of takeover by freedom's enemies.

Learn to write an intelligent letter to the editor of 150 words or less favoring the Freedom side. Letters become a record for later study and research. Freedom has the distinct advantage of having the truth on its side and wins in the forum debate.

Encourage your friends to write a letter to the editor and be certain to commend others who write good letters as well as the newspaper which publishes it.

Any who have lost freedom would say, if they could, that it is too precious to take for granted. May we never learn that lesson the hard way!

Inside Labor

Hoffa's Power Imprisoned With Him in Cell.

Washington, D. C.: -- About all that Number 33 - 293 - NE -- alias Jimmy Hoffa -- is running from his prison cell is his broom.

Thus, there will not be a national trucking strike at month's end -- which he "positively" planned when he brooded in the final hours before joining his old buddy Tony Provenzano over in Lewisburg.

For the first time now there comes authenticated word of his final strategy from at least two members of the Teamsters Brotherhood high command.

On March 31 he planned to pick the biggest of the van owners in Menlo Park, Calif., Chicago, New York and some key southern cities. By crippling their terminals and other transshipment points he could paralyze not only transcontinental haulage, but also considerable inter - and intra-community trucking.

This would have provoked the Trucking Employers, Inc., into locking out hundreds of thousands of non-striking teamsters. Transportation would have been strangled. Food, fuel and other vital freight would have clogged rail, dock and airport loading platforms and yards. The goverment would have had to move in -- and deal with him personally or through Taft - Hartley for many months.

To execute the strategy, however, Hoffa had to remain free till at least midnight, March 31.

At the same time he had dispatched one of the few men he believed he could trust to fly to Latin America for a personal conversation with the itinerant Supreme Court Justice Earl Warren. At that moment the jurist was in Bolivia.

Somehow the word of Hoffa's emissary got through and the envoy from "The Man" was told to save his breath and fare. The Chief Justice would do no such extraordinary thing as consult with such a courier -- especially one who was not a lawyer.

So Hoffa got free transportation to Lewisburg.

But, say several of those on the Teamsters International Executive Board, he still carried with him his one big hope -- that the contract negotiations involving 440,000 drivers and some 16,000 truckers, the lifeblood arteries of the nation, would blow geyser - high.

This would prove that even in today's mechanized America the transportation system could not function without "Hoffa" -- as he always refers to himself.

Then came the test. Would he be able to run the Teamsters from his cell?

He hasn't. He cannot communicate with his caretaker government now run by the 59-year - old "Fitz" (Frank Fitzsimmons). The acting president is not even on the approved list of prison visitors.

"Fitz", for his part is running some very businesslike, garden variety contract negotiations. The big issue -- as it is everywhere else -- is money. The rank and file want lots of it.

He is surrounded by lots of talent. And it can be quite accurately reported from within the sanctum that the name of Jimmy Hoffa rarely comes up.

There may be strikes -- selective ones -- if the bargaining goes the full length. One or two big transcontinental carriers -- affecting perhaps 25,000 big vans -- will be chosen and hit. Pickets will stream in front of all "barns".

But this will be pressure stragegy -- and not an effort to strangle the nation.

"Fitz" knows that the rest of the Teamsters high command is watching him. They want to see him act and react -- all alone -- under pressure.

They want to watch the lines of communication between Lewisburg, Detroit and Washington during the next 60 to 90 days. Those vice - presidents not involved in the direct negotiations are touring the country getting a reading. Then they'll act.

They're not certain of Fitz. But most of them are convinced that "Hoffa" is now only a footnote.

Happy Easter Planned in Supermarkets

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK AP -- Dairymen are dumping milk in Idaho. A freeze has heavily damaged the peach crop in South Carolina and West Virginia. Heavy rains have left muddy fields in California. And blizzards have disrupted meat and produce shipments in the Northeast.

But it still should be a happy Easter in the supermarkets.

Wholesale food prices this week plunged the lowest since November 1965.

Ham is lower than a year ago. And egg prices are down again.

Pork prices have been dropping for months, but it may not last much longer. Hog farmers have begun to cut back production as a result of declining prices.

In Idaho, farmers seek a 26 percent increase in the amount they receive for their milk. If it were passed on to the housewife, milk prices could rise from 27 cents a quarter to 33 or 34 cents.

A weekend freeze destroyed at least half of South Carolina's $23-million peach crop and thinned buds in Georgia. A large part of the crop in West Virginia's eastern Panhandle may have been destroyed.

But a U.S. Department of Agriculture experimental station in Georgia reported that about 30 per cent of the original peach blooms remain -- enough for another bumper crop, barring another freeze.

Heavy rains have cut into the naval oranges in California, kept apricot growers from spraying, slowed tomato seeding, delayed the asparagus harvest and left coastal spinach fields too muddy to work.

But there are more fresh fruits and vegetables than there were a year ago when Florida suffered from a severe freeze. The main problem has been getting them to market through he spring snowdrifts in the north.

DURING the Allied occupation of Vienna, a streetcar was passing through the American Zone of the city. The conductor, noticing a GI among the passenger, decided to provide a little entertainment for the Austrians on board. Every time the car passed an American installation, he would call out its name with an atrocious pseudo-American accent and then give its former Austrian title. "Silver Dollar Club, formerly Cafe' Goethe," "Yankee Sports Center, formerly Kolloseum Lichtspielhaus" and so on.

The GI paid no attention to the commentary or to the broad grins of his fellow passengers, but continued to read his Stars and Stripes. Just before reaching his stop, however, he stood up, turned to the occupants and in very passable German said politely, "Auf Widersehen, formerly Heil Hitler!"

Area Court Stars Chosen For All-State - Honors

Four Southeast Missouri athletes have been named to one of Missouri's All - State high school basketball teams.

Sikeston's Gary Wiss, Kennett's Larry Crawford, Cape Central's Larry Johnson and Poplar Bluff's Bruce Holloway were given special mention in class L.

In class M, the state most underrated basketball player, Charles Brooks of Matthews, who failed to tally enough votes for the class M first team was named to the special mention list with teammate Tom Hicks and Hayti North's Ben Johnson.

Three of the four named to the first team in its respective classes were seniors but Notre Dame's Flaker was one of two underclassmen named to the teams. He was the only junior on the M selections while Bradleyville's David Combs was the other junior named, he was selected to the S. An all senior lineup was the class L.

The star team, composed of players all over the state was selected at a special meeting by the association of sports-writers and broadcasters two weeks ago.

Bradleyville, state Class S championship Junior Sensation David Combs on the first squad.

It was the year of the big man in the Missouri high school basketball, results of voting for the Missouri all - state teams by the board of Missouri Sportswriters and Broadcasters disclosed in the release of All - State selections.

Sportswriters and broadcasters who selected the mythical team for the state chose the class L squad with two 6-7 players, three 6-4 stars, two 6-3 athletes and the other three ranged from 5-10 to six foot.

One 6-7 star was on the M selection while two 6-6 boys were selected, two 6-3 , three 6-2 and two six footers.

The class S team ranged in height from a 5-8 star to two 6-6 men, two 6- 5 athletes, one 6-3, two 6-1, a six footer a 5-10 star.

Four of the top ten elected to the first team in class L last season were juniors and all were selected for a second time. Those were Columbia Hickman's Ken Griffin, Joplin's Thorpe Weber, John Stacy of Hogan and Lindbergh's George Faerber.

The class S team last season had an all - senior lineup while the class M had two juniors who were selected for this year's squad. Buffalo's Chuck Williams and Valley Park's Sam Williams (no relation) were named.

Besides Flaker and Guethle named to the Class M team, Fredericktown's Ron Crites also was placed on the team.

Crites . . . 6-6. . . center. . Fredericktown. . . averaged 23.3 points a contest this past season, scoring 700 points. . . paced Fredericktown to a 24.8 record with a 52.8 shooting percentage from the field and set an all time school career scoring record with 1,351 points and a career rebound total of 1,124. . . rated fine college prospect.

No other area player, besides Briggs, was named to the team. New Haven's Gary Gerling was chosen to the Class S team.

Gerling. . . 6-1. . . guard. . . New Haven. . . was backbone of Shamrock club which took third in state finals and lost by only a 60-55 count to champion Bradleyville in semi - finals . . . averaged close to 21 points a contest. . . good jump shooter with better than average speed. . . hit 17 points in last half against Bradleyville. . . also 28 markers in each of first two games in state tournament.

Out of the 11 named to the honorable mention list, three were juniors and all were from class L. Those juniors were Sikeston's Gary Wiss, Poplar Bluff's Bruce Holloway and Kennett's Larry Crawford.

The district's leading scorer, Ben Johnson of Hayti North and Charles Brooks of Matthews failed to make the top ten in class M and were named to the Class M.

Both boys were selected to the All-District, all-class M and his conference teams. Brooks was the area's top vote-getter in Class M and the district.

The leading rebounders in the district, Tom Hicks of Matthews and James Gibson of Parma, who pulled over 500 rebounds each this past season, was named to his respective class special mention list.

SHS Sports Report

By Dan Spears

Track Outlook

By Babe

Take your mark -- get set-- bang!! That's a few familiar words that will be harped many a time in the next two months.

Yep, that's right, the track season has gotten underway. The senior Bulldogs have been under strenuous workouts now for over a week preparing for the 1967 tilt.

The Dogs had had little opportunity to get out and really open up with their training. The weather has had them at a disadvantage. But now that it is getting warmer, the boys are getting a chance to loosen up and start preparing for their first meet, April 4, at Charleston. If the weather holds out, time trials will be run next week, to give the coach a chance to see how the squad is shaping up.

As in the past three years, the squad is under the supervision of Norman Lambert. This is Coach Lambert's third year as head coach. Coach Lambert is optimistic about the approaching season although his squad is much younger and more inexperienced than in previous years.

Returning lettermen for the 1967 cindermen are seniors Roger Blackman, Gary White, Eddie Hodges, and Allen Craig. John Childress is the only underclassmen returning.

Blackman is the team's leading high jumper and is one-quarter of an inch off the school record of six feet. The record is held by late "Horse" McClellan.

Craig holds the pole - vault record of 12 feet, which he set last season. White runs the 100-yard dash, Hodges throws the discus, and John Childress runs the open quarter and participates in the mile relay.

Coach Lambert has high hopes for the 880 - relay team. The team consists of three sophomores and a senior, Riley Gross, Dennis Snelling, Arthur Jackson, and Roger Blackman. The boys are shooting for the school record of one minute, 32.6 seconds set in 1963 by Dave Collier, Doug Johnson, Tom Critchlow, and Normal Howlett.

Tennis Squad Prepairing

By ARNIE

The high school tennis team is practicing diligently for its first match at Caruthersville April 5. Under the coaching of Earl Richmond, this year's squad gives signs of being much stronger than last year's team.

The top prospects as starters on this year's squad include seniors Bill Dickerson and Tom Phillips, and juniors Brad Crumpecker, Hank Lippert, Bob McCord, and Bucko Miller. Other boys fighting for top spots include Ron Hill, Tom Eaton, Alan Bryant, John Hough, and Jackie Spears.

Starting his second year as Sikeston's coach, Richmond says he believes that his boys are working hard, and, with most of last year's team returning, the state playoffs in May could be rewarding for the squad.

The tennis schedule:

April 5	Caruthersville	There
April 7	Kennett	There
April 14	Poplar Bluff	There
April 18	Kennett	Here
April 20	Caruthersville	Here

'76ers Even Playoffs

CINCINNATI (AP) — "Their game strategy was obvious with the first play and that was with Wilt going to the basket. At that point we knew what we were in for," Coach Jack McMahon of the Cincinnati Royals said quietly.

What the Royals were in for was a dazzling one-man show as Wilt Chamberlain poured in 37 points to lead Philadelphia to a 123-102 victory that evened the National Basketball Association's best-of-5 Eastern Division playoffs at 1-1 Wednesday night.

Chamberlain scored the 76ers' first basket to tie the score and the Royals never went ahead. Wilt also pulled down 27 rebounds and was credited with 11 assists as the 76ers avenged their series-opening upset in Wednesday's only playoff game.

"Wilt showed why he should be recognized as the greatest player in the history of the game," Coach Alex Hannum said in the 76ers dressing room.

"We also tried to key in on (Oscar) Robertson a little more tonight and since Wally Jones is smaller we tried to shift other men on him too."

"We've got two tough ball clubs, but I feel Philadelphia is physically stronger than the Royals," said Hannum. "I would like to play them again tomorrow (Thursday) instead of Friday."

Over in the Royals' dressing room, McMahon said it was not just a matter of strength.

"I was not at all surprised at their going to Wilt," he said. "We knew what to expect. We just didn't play well enough.

"You know, I know and all the rest know that Philadelphia plays zone defense at least partially and the basic adjustment against zone defense is to move the ball. In the final analysis, it was the shooting that killed us."

Robertson scored 29 points to lead the Royals and Connie Dierking — the star of Tuesday night's game — added 21, plus 17 rebounds. Hal Greer scored 28 for Philadelphia.

CONGRATULATIONS.....ALL-STATERS

Today's All-State team features 30 of the state's top high school basketball players and we Southeast Missouri basketball fans, are mighty proud of our four athletes named to the team as well as those who received special mention.

Out of almost 6,000 boys throughout the state who participated in basketball...You...are one of the members of the "cream of the crop".... That's a mighty big honor.

Southeast Missouri was fortunate to have such outstanding athletes this past season.....

Remember...The boys named to today's All-State team not only had to excel on the floor... but most important of all...had to burn "that midnight oil" a few nights to keep their outstanding scholastic records in order to participate in sports....These athletes will most likely go on to college.

Southeast Missouri can be proud of these boys... Congratulations...On a job well done....On the floor and in the classroom.....

DEVIL RETIRES BULB

Our little devil retired his lightbulb for this season and will be looking forward to trying to call the games beginning with football in the Fall.....

He send his regards to the ball players and teams in the area and hopes that all will follow him in the coming campaign.

WHY NOT BROOKS

Charles Brooks...the district's most prolific scorer and top guard to come out of the area in years was not named to the state's all state team!!!!!

Yes! Brooks earned berths on the all-class M, New Madrid county, and all-district squads this past season and was the top vote getter in each... but somehow he failed to prove himself throughout the state and therefore failed by one vote to place on the team.

In my mind and I am sure in many others... Charles is the area's best athlete in basketball to come out of the area this season and deserved the honor of all-state.....

He's all-state in my book and in many others.... The only thing...He's not on the list compiled by sportscasters and broadcasters and therefore will have to settle for special mention...

He's a great gentleman and ranked 10th in his senior class scholastically...We say he's all-state....but others didn't....

Sorry.....Chuck.

Frank Robinson Whacks Two Homers

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Frankly speaking they were grand sights for Baltimore fans — those two balls soaring over the fence at Sarasota, Fla.

They were the first home runs of the exhibition season for Frank Robinson, and they came on consecutive times at bat Wednesday in the Orioles' 5-4, 10-inning victory over Chicago.

Robinson, who has been quietly rounding into shape since underdoing knee surgery during the off season, only played four innings, but it was long enough to give opposing American League pitchers an early start toward a good case of the jitters.

Chicago tied the game at 4-4 on rookie Bill Voss' two-run single in the eighth, and then Baltimore won it on two wild pitches by Danny Lazar and Dave Johnson's single.

Two players St. Louis is counting heavily on had a big day in the Cardinal' 7-2, victory over the New York Mets at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Roger Maris got three singles and a double and scored four times, and Orlando Cepeda collected a single, double and two-run homer. Maris had collected only four hits in 10 previous exhibition games. Ron Swoboda hit a two-run homer for the Mets.

In other games, Cincinnati outslugged Philadelphia 10-6, Houston edged Atlanta 4-3, Pittsburgh nipped Kansas City 2-1, Boston downed the New York Yankees 5-2, Washington topped Detroit 6-4, Los Angeles trounced Minnesota 15-2, California defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-2 and Cleveland walloped San Francisco 14-5.

Vada Pinson and Lee May paced Cincinnati's 16-hit attack at Tampa, Fla., with home runs. Philadelphia managed only three hits — doubles by Tony Gonzalez and Grant Jackson and Johnny Callison's homer.

Meanwhile, at the Phillies' camp at Clearwater, Fla., owner Bob Carpenter announced that Manager Gene Mauch's contract has been extended through 1968.

Norm Miller's two-out, two-strike homer in the last of the ninth lifted Houston past Atlanta at Cocoa, Fla. John Hoffman hit a two-run homer for Atlanta.

Bill Mazeroski singled home both Pittsburgh runs, the second one in the top of the ninth, in the Pirates' victory over Kansas City. The A's scored off Dennis Ribant, who pitched the first five innings. Jim Shellenback worked the last four for the Pirates.

KO's Folley

Cassius Ends Bout In Seventh

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay has finished off the last of a list of fighters who could be called — with kindness — contenders with his seventh-round knockout of Zora Folley.

Argentina's Oscar Bonavena will be the next sacrificial lamb for the super-fast, invincible champion. The match will be in Tokyo, May 27, unless Clay's legal appeal for a stay from Army induction April 11 is rejected.

Folley, the 34-year-old, No. 1 contender, was knocked out when the supremely confident Clay, or Muhammad Ali as he prefers, decided he wanted to pull the trigger on Wednesday night.

The end came at 1:48 of the seventh round from a chopping right to the jaw. Another right had dropped the bloody-nosed veteran for nine in the fourth round.

These were the highlight rounds of a bout that became one-sided when Clay decided the time had become ripe to open up in the third round. Before that he danced around the ring, virtually conceding the first two rounds to the plodding, methodical challenger.

Bonavena, is a 24-year-old, crude, muscular, swinger, who was virtually blanked in 10 rounds by Folley nearly 13 months ago in Madison Square Garden. His greatest defensive skill is blocking left jabs with his head.

Folley was a prohibitive 7-1 long shot for his first shot at the title. What odds against Oscar? 100 to 1?

"There is no one around today who can beat him," said Folley in an interview in the Garden's basement after the fight. "I know, I've fought them all.

"All I remember of the end of the fight was a right--right on the chin. After that I just don't remember."

Clay heatedly denied, in answer to a question, that he had carried Folley.

"I was not carrying him," he said. "He was a better fighter than Sonny Liston, or Floyd Patterson or Ernie Terrell. He was slick, tricky and a good boxer."

When Clay came after im, Folley fought back like a wounded tiger. Although he may still have been dazed, he instinctively fired back with both hands, and a hard right sent Clay to the ropes.

"He hurt me with that punch," said Clay, superbly fit at 211½ pounds over his 6-foot-3 frame. Folley weighed 202½.

Clay started chopping away in the next two rounds with streams of left jabs to the bleeding nose and the lump under Folley's left eye. He didn't let go with the big punch.

But in the seventh Folley scored with a good right to the head that brought a roar from the crowd of 13,780. The roar had barely died down when Clay let loose with his finishing right that dropped Folley for the second and last time.

Minimum Wage Bill Clears Committee

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- The House Labor Committee Wednesday approved a bill establishing a state minimum wage of $1.25 an hour.

The measure exempts those employed in agriculture, domestic service, in executive, administrative or professional capacity, by the government-national, state or local-and by educational, charitable, religious or non-profit organizations where service is on a volunteer basis.

The committee, which had heard arguments on the bill earlier, took only a few minutes to approve the bill.

Copeland Tells of Remap Problem

NEW MADRID -- State Rep. Fred E. "Gene" Copeland of New Madrid, says that he believes it is unjust to expect any legislator to properly represent citizens of both highly industralized and almost totally agricultural geographican districts such as the City of St. Louis and Southeast Missouri.

He made that belief known in a talk to the New Madrid County Farm Bureau.

Copeland had been appointed chairman of the Missouri house congressional redistricting committee by Speaker James Godfrey.

Copeland explained the need for another redistricting of Missouri and expressed his opinion on the manner in which it should be accomplished.

He promised the Farm Bureau members attending the meeting that he and his committee would "strive to seek an equitable and unbiased solution to this very difficult situation" -- the complete redistricting of Missouri to form a one-man, one-vote situation that will meet standards set up by the United States supreme court.

Humane Official Says Few Animals Given At Easter Survive

ST. LOUIS (AP) -- Few of the cute baby chicks, ducklings and rabbits parents buy their children for Easter survive, the manager of the Humane Society of Missouri said today.

Don Anthony said adults who take these animals home are exposing them to almost certain death or painful injury at the hands of children.

Anthony estimated only about one in 10 easter gift animals survive children and the environment of the home.

A St. Louis ordinance forbids the sale of chicks and ducklings in lots of less than 12 and requires rabbits under six weeks old be sold with the mother, but the law does not always work, Anthony said.

I was coming home early one evening on a Milwaukee bus. The bus driver was urging the passengers to move to the rear, but was havng little success. Finally, in desperation, he shouted, "Fill up the back, just like you do in church!"

Marie Gregoire.

A schoolteacher friend of mine in Virginia received a form letter from a loan company that began, "Because you are a teacher you can borrow $100 to $1000 by mail."

His reply began, "Perhaps I can borrow this money because I am a teacher, but I couldn't pay it back for the same reason."

The Story on China Today: Nobody Knows the Truth

By LEON DENNEN
Foreign News Analyst
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—The only truth about the developments in Red China is that nobody in the West or East really knows the whole truth.

Winston Churchill once said of Communist Russia that it was "a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma." But historic events took a new turn in the last three decades. Today it is China that is the great enigma while even Russia has become, by comparison, a relatively open society.

Thus, much of what has been written by the China watchers from Hong Kong and Tokyo has been discredited by subsequent events. Much that is reported today could become obsolete tomorrow.

Like Russia in the 1930s, China is, from all outside appearances, still suffering from the childhood diseases of revolution which afflict every developing nation at one time or another. That these diseases are still virulent in Red China 17 years after its coming into the world political arena is by no means a unique phenomenon.

Stalin's blood purges took place some 20 years after the Communists seized power in Russia. It took another two decades before the Soviet Communist party reached a point where it is being run, at least for the present, by what seems to be a stable leadership.

TROUBLE IS BREWING in Red China, but outsiders can't be sure just what's happening.

The underlying reason for the current convulsions in China seems to be Mao Tse-tung's fear of letting his revolution lose its real Marxist-Leninist fervor and deteriorate into a revisionistic and gradualistic revolution.

The victory of revisionism in Russia and eastern Europe has at least provided the argument for the necessity of maintaining a permanent revolution within China itself.

This plan might seem quixotic to outsiders. But for men brought up on violent revolution the deterioration of violence into graduality and flexibility could well-appear as a collapse of their entire revolutionary endeavor.

However confusing the crisis in China—with the constant seesawing of personalities—may appear from the outside, it is becoming increasingly clear that the crux of the whole matter is a bitter conflict between dogmatic Marxism-Leninism and the forces of pragmatism and moderation.

Judged by the Russian precedent, the Chinese conflict is likely to remain unresolved for many years. But should Mao's and Lin Piao's die-hards emerge as the victors it would mean a long reign of terror in China with more purges and greater retribution. There would also be a very real danger of the regime embarking on military adventures, in India for instance, to divert attention from domestic misery.

On the other hand, the cool-headed pragmatic modernizers may prevail. They would certainly wish to stimulate economic development and build a modern, effective and highly technical army. They would also be more friendly to revisionist ideas and much less hostile towards Russia.

The likelihood that the great Red rivals will agree to reconcile their political and territorial differences may be slight, but it should not be excluded. A reconciliation, or even a truce between Russia and China would immeasurably strengthen the forces of communism throughout the world.

Whatever the outcome of the present turmoil in China, it is sure to have a radical effect on the world political situation. No matter which faction ultimately wins, there will be little cause for the Free World to rejoice.

Missouri Newspaper History

Missouri has a long history of unusual newspaper names.

THE UNTERRIFIED DEMOCRAT, Linn, 1866, named by Col. Lebbeus Zevely in defiance of "Drake's Constitution." Fiercely opposed to "carpet bag government," Zevely told a Union general to "go to hell" and continued his newspaper in support of Southern cause. Still published by Zevely family.

THE ILLMO JIMPLICUTE, named after mythical animal of Ozark folklore. Ozarkians used legend of the roaming "jimplicute" to frighten naughty children. Jimplicute still published in Illmo.

Other interesting newspaper names of Missouri's past:

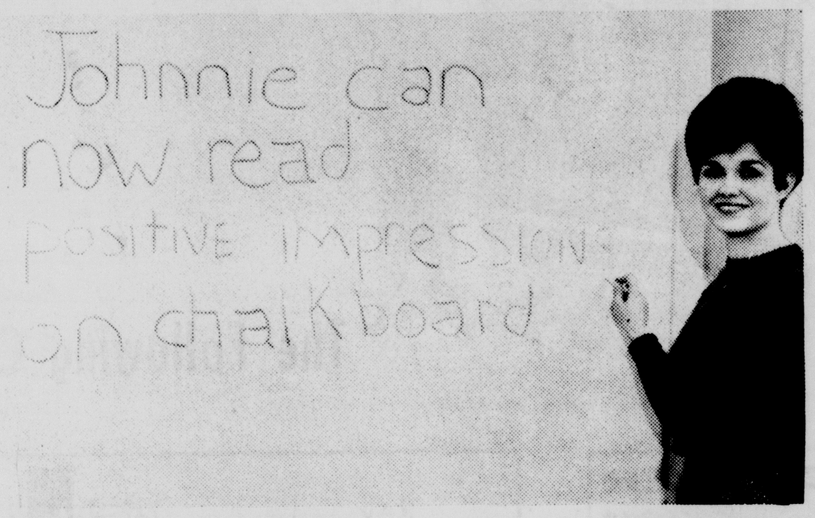
Serving Missouri for 100 Years.



'BLACKBOARDS' have already given way to green slate in many of today's schools, but now the green may even be replaced by a white chalkboard. Built of glass for use with colored chalk, it can double as a projection screen. The board, made of a new product called white nucite, is guaranteed to last for the life of the building.

IT'S UP TO YOU

Equality: The Level of Mediocrity

Dr. Kershner

MOST of us are conscious of the fact that the world contains multitudes of men who are far abler than ourselves. Far from making us jealous or unhappy, we are exceedingly grateful for them. We enjoy great music, but we could not write it, as Beethoven, Bach, Brahms, Chopin, Tchaikovsky, Schubert, Mozart, Verdi and a host of others have done. We can play a few instruments, but not like Liszt, Paderewski, Kreisler, Heifetz, Rubinstein and many other immortals who have brought heaven down to earth with their superb excellence.

Our libraries are filled with good books, the treasuries of history, literature and culture. We take great delight in reading Shakespeare's plays and Tennyson's poetry, but we could not have written such marvelous works. We are fortunate that they could. Suppose we had no great minds such as these! How fortunate that we can ride along with them, enjoying their creations as if they were our own. Why should we be jealous of them? Rather we should be thankful and pay tribute to them.

Our devotion and spiritual perception is vastly inferior to that of a Saint Paul, a Saint Francis of Assisi, a Saint Augustine or a Saint Thomas Aquinas, but we can soar up into the heavens on the spiritual power generated by a host of saints and prophets.

We enjoy our automobile, riding about the world in jet planes, our radio, television, and stereophonic music. We could not have developed the great industrial giants of our country that have lifted the burden of toil from our backs and emancipated us from the handicraft age into a degree of luxury unknown by kings a few centuries ago, but we can enjoy the results of the efforts of the great men who created these things for our enjoyment.

When taking a loved one to the hospital, who wants a common, average surgeon? We all want a doctor, not only with superior skill, but a conscientious, honorable man whom we know has spent many long years developing the knowledge and skill required to save the life of the dear one we entrust to his care.

We don't want equality. If there were no men in this world superior to ourselves, no men capable of earning more than we earn, no men capable of preaching finer sermons, organizing greater businesses, developing greater skill in medicine, in the arts and in literature, and no men of great devotion or spiritual insight, it would be a poor, drab world in which to live. Let us have done with the cult of the common man and begin to recognize and appreciate worth, talent, ability and devotion wherever we find it. Gifted men have carried the world forward on their shoulders. Whatsoever progress we have made, we owe to them. Let us acknowledge it and be grateful for it, and not try to clip their wings and reduce them to the level of mediocrity.

The subterranean reservoirs, blasted out of the rock of the granite mountain, can store more than five million gallons of water for human consumption, as well as for use in cooling the power plant and in the air conditioning and heating systems. Two Baptist Colleges Joined JEFFERSON CITY --- The consolidation of two Baptist colleges took place in the offices of the Missouri Baptist Convention this week when the boards of Hannibal - LaGrange College, Hannibal, Missouri, and Missouri Baptist College of St. Louis approved articles of consolidation.

The name of the new consolidated college will be Missouri Baptist College. It will have two campuses: Hannibal-LaGrange Campus and Missouri Baptist College - St. Louis Campus. Dr. L. A. Foster, president of Hannibal - LaGrange for 17 years, was elected president of the new consolidated college. It is expected that the St. Louis campus will be in operation by September, 1968.

I have a deal with my hairdresser: He doesn't charge me and I don't mention his name.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE NIFTY MAYOR

When it came to politics, Gentleman George could dodge an issue with all the aplomb of a bullfighter. His agility in dodging the Internal Revenue Service, however, left something to be desired with the result that he was shipped off to jail after being convicted of income tax evasion.

Upon his release, George fell right back into the swing of things. He ran for mayor, kissed a few babies of all ages and won the election without even having to breathe hard. And, to make his comeback complete, the governor restored to him all the rights he had lost by virtue of his conviction.

The city council, on the other hand, was less than forgiving. In fact, they refused to recognize him as mayor.

"But I won the election," George protested, "and the governor restored my rights. You've got to recognize me as mayor."

"No we don't," responded the councilmen." To hold office in this state, a person must be a citizen and a qualified voter. Since you were convicted of a federal offense, only the President can restore your citizenship and the right to hold office. Until the governor becomes President, he had no right to do either!"

George then demanded in court that the city council be ordered to recognize him as mayor.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you crown George as mayor?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! He held that since a state determines who can vote and who can hold office within the state, the governor had the authority to restore George's rights. Furthermore, the judge added, a criminal is not deprived of his state or national citizenship when he is convicted of a crime, except in the case of treason, He merely loses certain of his rights, such as voting and holding office, as prescribed by statute.

(Based upon a 1957 Iowa Supreme Court Decision)

The Prayer From The Upper Room

THURSDAY, MARCH 23, 1967

Jesus knowing that all things were now accomplished, that the scripture might be fulfilled, saith, I thirst. (John 19:28)

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, we thank Thee that Thy Son believed we are worth suffering for. Help us to live in Thy love and to share it with others. In the Suffering Servant's name. Amen.

Looking Back Over The Years

50 Years Ago
March 23, 1917

Pate Swaim is now one of the tonsorial artists in Mocabee & Fisher's barber shop. He is an Al barber.

Hodge Decker and Earl Sams have their new barber shop on Front street open and are ready for business. They are both good barbers and good fellows and are bound to do a big business.

Miss Virginia Welborn, who had been teaching in the Sikeston Public School, has resigned her position and her resignation is to take effect at the end of this week. She was elected to a position at Webster Groves, near her home.

The landscape gardner for the Missouri Pacific Railroad Company was in Sikeston Monday inspecting the railroad park. He was very disappointed because the town has failed to protect the hedge and shrubbery which the railroad placed out last year and stated that until the city would take steps to assure protection for the park it was useless for the railroad to attempt to improve and beautify it.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I am an Information Operator for the telephone company. For years I have read the pet gripes of others in your column, and now I want to air mine.

You would not believe the abuse an Information Operator takes from the public in a normal day's work. To begin with, we are available for a special service. Most people who call information are too lazy to look up the number, so we are doing them a favor.

Is it unreasonable to expect the person calling to know the correct spelling of the name he is inquiring about? You'd be surprised at the people who become nasty when questioned. Also, they get belligerent when asked for an address or a first name or initial. I have had women as well as men use obscene language and shout such things as "Hurry up you ignorant broad. I don't have all day!"

Since everyone reads your column, will you kindly print my letter and ask your readers this question: "When you last asked Information to help you, were you courteous?"

-GOODBYE CENTRAL

Dear Central: From now on I'm going to be extra polite to "Information". Thanks for the reminder.

Dear Ann Landers: When our 19-year-old soldier son was home on leave recently he asked me to unpack his suitcase. I was warned against throwing away any papers that might be important.

When I went through his suitcase I was sick at what I found. His girl friend had sent him a stack of unbelievably filthy pictures.

I am a woman in my forties and I did not know such dirty stuff existed.

I was so upset I took the pictures, slipped them into a magazine and hid it.

Our son has left for camp and I have the pictures. Now I don't know what to do with them. Should I send them to him with a note of apology? I want him to know I know what kind of a girl he is going with. Your opinion is needed. -- FINDERS WEE PERS

Dear Finders: There's a law against sending pornography in the mail so you MUST keep the pictures until your son comes home. Then, tell him how you happen to have the pictures and say no more. Your silence will speak far more eloquently than anything you could say.-

Dear Ann Landers: My husband asked for a divorce 11 months ago so he could marry another woman. It nearly killed me but I agreed.

He did not marry the woman but he still sees her, I am told. His visiting day to see our children is Sunday but he has been coming over two evenings during the week after the children are in bed. He still cares for me, Ann, and I'm ashamed to tell you that I am putty in his hands.

I get awfully disgusted with myself for being so weak but I am helpless. Please advise. -- STILL LOVE HIM

Dear Still: If you want him back for keeps you'll have to add some cement to that putty. Tell him he is not welcome to drop in unexpectedly. If he does, don't let him in the house. Be sure to have a neighbor or relative present on his "visiting day." If he REALLY cares for you he will be unable to tolerate the frustration and he'll let you know it.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex and How To Tell The Difference." Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your present.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mr. C. L. Blanton, Jr., Editor
Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri
Dear Mr. Blanton:

Enclosed you will find a mimeographed copy of a letter which we received from the Director of Nursing at Missouri Baptist Hospital in St. Louis. She speaks in glowing terms of the graduates of our two-year college nursing program. We thought you would like to see this.

Very truly yours,
Mark Scully
President

Dr. Helen Kinney, Head
School of Nursing
Southeast Missouri State College
Cape Girardeau, Missouri
Dear Dr. Kinney:

We have had four of the 1966 graduates of your nursing program on our staff for approximately six months and I just want to let you know how very fortunate we feel we are to have them. They are: Alice McCann, Sandra Krokroskia, Patricia Wyckoff and Janet Maurer.

If these nurses are a sample of what your program produces, I would be most happy if you would send all of your graduates to us! I feel we have gained a great deal from them -- an understanding of the associate degree nurse has been a very important part of our gain. Our experience with graduates of the associate degree program, prior to last September, was limited to one person from a St. Louis program. She, also, was an exceptional person.

These nurses have been most receptive to guidance. They have been very conscious of what their role is and have stayed very much in the patient area. They were placed on a 50-bed division with 1966 graduates of our own school. They were all placed on the same unit for two reasons: 1) we were in the final stages of opening the last two nursing units in our new facility and I felt the usual settling-down process of a new unit could be frustrating to an "old" nurse, not to mention a brand new one. . . .therefore, the support the four of them could give each other seemed wise (this point seemed to prove itself as the weeks passed); and 2) the head nurse on this unit is excellent with staff development and would be the best one to whom these nurses should be assigned (this point also proved itself).

Miss Maurer and Miss Wyckoff are the most congenial and get along well with patients and personnel. Miss Krokroskia has a very keen mind and approaches assignments very seriously. Miss McCann is quiet, but thorough. They have all felt the pressure of assignments at times but have handled things quite well. Their basic understanding of patient care is good and, with continued supervision, will no doubt deepen. They have adjusted well to the stress and strain of a new environment and have sought help.

This week, the four of them will be separated. They seem to need to be independent of each other and we believe this change will be a maturing process for them. They will remain in the med-surg areas, but will be on different units.

We admit we have a long way to go to develop our inservice education to its fullest; however, we have seen the real value of giving concentrated supervision and guidance to new graduates and feel our efforts have been rewarded.

I do hope you will be able to visit us sometime. Perhaps on your next visit to St. Louis you could arrange your schedule to allow time for lunch with us and a tour of our new facility. I would appreciate your letting me know if this could be done.

Sincerely,
(Miss) Joan O. Walsh, R.N.

Rep. Tony Heckemeyer Reports

JEFFERSON CITY - This week the legislature was working at a pretty good clip in anticipation of an Easter recess which will start Wednesday, March 22nd at noon. All of the appropriation bills were passed by the House and sent to the Committee. The total amount of money that the state will spend this year is in excess of $1 billion, but the good thing about it, in Missouri, we cannot spend more money than we have. Therefore, deficit finance does not exist and we can pay our bills as we go. These bills must now go to the Senate and will probably be changed somewhat before their final passage.

The senate reapportionment committee reported out the reapportionment bill "do pass" Monday afternoon. The 10th district will not have to take Jefferson county, but instead will be composed of Oregon, Howell, Shannon, Iron, Reynolds, Carter, Ripley, St. Francios, Madison, Wayne, Butler, St. Genevieve, Perry, Bollinger, Cape Girardeau, Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Dunklin and Pemiscot Counties. This is very good, as it will preserve the political identity of the 10th District and will allow the representative to better able represent the feelings of a homogeneous group of people. I anticipate this will be the new 10th District.

Other bills of interest:

House bill 47 was perfected which will allow Old Age Assistance people to live with their relatives and still draw their Old Age Assistance benefits. Of all the welfare programs we have to consider this year, this is probably one of the better bills, although it is rather expensive. It will cost approximately Five and One Half Million Dollars a year, which is about one-third of the cost of the program, the federal government paying the rest. This will allow old folks to live and retain some of their self-sufficiency and pride.

House bill 84 was passed which greatly stiffens the penalty for misuse of a telephone. Anyone who uses vulger, profane, obscene or indecent language or knowlingly permits someone to use their telephone in such a manner with the intent to harass, annoy or intimidate another can be guilty for punishment up to one year and a fine of $1,000. The telephone companies now inform us that they have very efficient means of discovering who these offenders are due to new electronic equipment now in their possession. Although, the person who is the victim of this type caller must still report to the telephone company and ask them for such surveillance as it is necessary to trap the guilty.

House bill 311 was passed which provides that all public buildings from now on in the State of Missouri will be built in such a manner that the handicapped will have easy access and use. This means the building of ramps for wheel chairs and certain toilet facilities necessary for handicapped people.

A controversial bill was perfected this morning which will allow the unemployed father to remain in the home while the family draws assistance. The man must register with the Employment Security Division and accept any work offered him. Also he must make himself available for retraining where possible or he forfeits said money.

A good clarifying bill, house bill 324, was perfected which should clear up the existing problem concerning when sales tax should be charged for certain agriculture chemicals used in crop production. The present law has been very vague in that it states tax will be exempt when chemicals are used on a growing crop, but no one has ever been able to clearly define what a growing crop is or when it starts to grow. This clearly defines what a growing crop is or when it starts to grow. This new law proposed would exempt all such chemicals used in connection with the growth and production of crop applied before, during or after planting.

Two good bills were perfected, 160 and 161, which will require haulers of material which may become dislodged and fall on the highway, to tarp or cover their trucks. This will cover people hauling gravel and other things which might break windshields, headlights, etc. Also, big trucks will be required to have mid flaps. This bill is probably 25 years too late, but will be a welcome addition to the statutes of Missouri.

House bill 320 passed which will make it a felony for a person to willfully set a forest fire in the State of Missouri.

A bill which would greatly increase the penalty and protect the people from polution of streams and waters was passed today. This also is a welcome addition into our law.

House bill 245 was passed. It allows a municipality to sell or dispose of property acquired with the proceeds of revenue bonds. This should be a great help to small communities in attracting industries to their areas.

THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO BETTER DRIVING

With 74 million private cars registered in America, everyone is now talking about building safety into the cars, yet few seem to be concerned with building safety into the driver, particularly women drivers. And there are over 40 million women drivers in the United States and Canada.

This comment was made today by Julie Candler, one of the country's foremost women authorities on automobiles in connection with the announcement that Mrs. Candler's views on women drivers had been expanded into a book.

The work is "Woman at the Wheel," published today by Paperback Library of New York. The book, filled with helpful advice, is priced at 75 cents.

Mrs. Candler, who lives in Detroit, the center of the automotive industry, remarked that women demonstrate their capacity to be good organizers and good managers each day as they run their homes and their families.

But when they get behind the wheel of a car, it's another story.

"Most women don't know the difference between a spark plug and a carburetor, yet hundreds of thousands of women join the ranks of new car drivers every year," she said. "They really want to know, but no one has taken the trouble to tell them."

Mrs. Candler began taking the trouble to tell them several years ago when she began writing a column of advice for women drivers for The Birmingham (Mich.) Eccentric, a weekly.

Since then, she has written several national magazine articles on the same subject and is the authority on driving for the 7,000,000 readers of "Woman's Day."

"The question women ask me most is 'Why do we have to change oil so often?,' " Mrs. Candler added. I usually answer that it's for the same reason you don't wash clothes in dirty water. By the time the car is due for an oil change, the goo in the oil causes the engine to run sluggishly. This goo is loaded with carbon, gum and acids which, of course, cause wear, tear and repair.

"Every woman should know more about her car, safety for her family, how to save on insurance, how to cut down on repairs and how to lay down the law to teen-age drivers."

One of the 1,001 money-saving and life-preserving tips in the book is the sound advice concerning high speed driving on a long trip. Says Mrs. Candler, "Before a long trip, have four to six pounds of extra pressure (depending on manufacturer's recommendation) pumped into the tires. Many flats at high speeds are caused because tire pressure was not increased to handle the extra load."

FOLDER TELLS CONSUMERS HOW TO USE GRADES

If you find it difficult to judge quality in the foods you buy, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has help for you.

This help comes in a folder issued by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service, the agency responsible for federal grading of farm foods.

"How to Use USDA Grades in Buying Food," shows the official grade marks used on meat, eggs, poultry, dairy products, fruits and vegetables. It explains what the grades mean for each of these products and gives tips on how to buy food by grade.

In addition, the publication explains that C&MS also inspects foods for wholesomeness. It shows the official inspection marks used on meat and poultry products and reminds "Look for the inspection mark for assurance of wholesomeness. Look for the grade mark to tell the quality."

Learning to recognize the grade mark and knowing what it means can help you to know more about what you are buying, to compare prices of foods in different stores, and to get the most for your money.

Single copies of "How to Use USDA Grades in Buying Foods" (PA-708) may be obtained by postcard request from the Office of Information, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250. Please include your zipcode in your return address.

Today In U. S. History

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1775, Patrick Henry declared: "Give me liberty or give me death," at the Virginia Provincial convention in Richmond.

On this date

In 1901, Filipino rebel leader Aguinaldo was captured.

In 1945, the American 3rd Army crossed the Rhine River in Germany.

Ten years ago — A day old blizzard continued to blanket with snow and disrupt services in large portions of Illinois, Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Indiana, Missouri and New Mexico.

Five years ago — The U.N. Security Council rejected a Cuban complaint against the decision of the Organization of American States to exclude communist Cuba from the inter-American group.

One year ago — Communist China and the Soviet Union appeared close to an open split. Peking rejected an invitation to attend the Soviet Communist party congress in Moscow and then charged the Soviet Union was plotting with the United States to encircle Red China.

Hearnes Explains Criticism

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today that his recent criticism of federal programs and legislation was not and "has not been directed at the President or the office of the President of the United States."

He stated his position in a talk this morning before the Jasper County Democratic Committee.

"I have been criticized for my stand against certain federal programs and the press has made it appear that I was attacking the President," he said. "This is not so."

He added that the states "faltered years ago, turning to the federal government to solve problems and my stand is that the states should solve their own problems."

The Missouri chief executive said in 1950 there were 13 federal grants - in - aid programs while today there are 220.

"This crusade of mine is simply this — as long as I believe the programs from Washington are for the benefit of the people of this state I will work for them," he said. "But, if they do not benefit our citizens I will fight them."

"No one wants Missouri to secede from the Union," he added, "but if the federal legislation continues in its previous pattern we would have no state government."

The governor said in recent meetings with the President and other high government officials, it was indicated that closer relations will be established between the states and the federal government. More control by the states will be forthcoming, including supervision of federal programs, he said.

On the subject of highways the governor said the only alternatives for future road construction in the state are toll roads or an increase of at least 3-1/2 cents in the state gasoline tax.

He indicated that present support of toll road legislation looks good, but proponents will have a fight on their hands in the General Assembly.

The governor has often spoken of plans for a toll road from near Kansas City south to the Arkansas line between Joplin and Springfield.

"If we're not successful in getting toll road legislation now our children will not see much change in the present highways when they grow up," he declared.

At one point, he said he had been told by engineers that to construct a four-lane road using the present U.S. 71 from Harrisonville to the Arkansas line would take 39 months at leas-

Earlier, in the day, Republican leaders set a goal of $5 billion to $6 billion in spending reductions for next year and singled out such things as rent subsidies, the war on poverty, the Teachers Corps and some phases of the foreign-aid program as potential targets.

In the Senate, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's renewed call for cutbacks in U.S. troops levels in Europe drew support from freshman Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.

Percy said, "It's time we adjust our position in Europe to the changing facts of life," and cited lessened East-West tension, a stronger European economy and the U.S. balance of payments deficit.

committee. Woolsey said the Senate situation is a little better because the Senate committees give the go-ahead to bills sponsored by Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Both said the governor's budget was out of line. King said his studies showed the state will have a surplus of around $75 million in 1968 instead of the $25 million estimated by the budget office.

King also called the Senate's congressional redistricting bill a monstrosity — "a brazen attempt to bust up any chance to have a Negro congressman from St. Louis."

Woodsey charged the governor has spent money on political patronage agencies instead of trying to meet the state's real needs. He said the state is "reaching the point of no return" in taxing property.

As the House worked overtime before going on vacation it passed and sent to the Senate a batch of bills including ones to:

Set up a state safety commission after deleting a provision for a state fire marshal.

Allow cities to sell industrial development plants built with bond issues.

Make it a misdemeanor to harass with profane or threatening phone calls.

Increase state aid for memorial hospitals from $10,000 to $25,000.

The House will come back to work April 5.

ence in Washington, one after another rose to complain about prices for wheat, feed grains, milk and other dairy products, beef cattle, rice. Many felt the government could do more to bolster prices if it wanted to.

Democrats and Republicans agree the situation foreshadows trouble for the administration, a battle in Congress and a key conflict in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Recalling past election oratory in Grange halls and corn fields, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., observed: "I think a politician who goes around the country now telling farmers they never had it so good will be rebuffed."

There is no agreement on the depth and scope of the farm problem. Some contend it is a temporary matter of overproduction, the recurring bugaboo of the American agriculture cornucopia.

Others see a crisis -- with the only solution higher prices in the market place, sure to bring down the wrath of the housewife.

Is Victory Worth It?

In Alley Oop's Bone Age there was an attempt to be civilized. When King Guz tried to make peace-loving people out of the defeated Neanderthals he found the problems of peace were as big as the logistics of war. How he settled his problems is now being told in the comic strip

McNutt Will Study High Rate of Burns

NEW MADRID -- Gary McNutt has been named field representative of the county health department to work on the burn injury program in New Madrid and Pemiscot counties, David Townsend, administrator of the New Madrid office announced today.

McNutt is conducting a study of deaths and injuries due to a burn in order to determine the cause of such a high incident rate in this area.

After the causes have been determined, educational programs will be developed to reduce death and injury from burns.

New Madrid and Pemiscot are among six Southeast Missouri counties with death rates from burns ranging from two to four times the state's rate. The other four counties are Mississippi, Scott, Stoddard and Butler.

McNutt will need to interview every person who receives a burn of any significance. Persons who have received a burn since the first of January, are asked to contact the office. Information will be held in confidence and coded for statistical information.

No Evidence of Junior College Backlash

GIDEON -- There is no evidence of a backlash against high school superintendents and school board members who are opposing the Bootheel junior college proposal, according to James Fletcher of Gideon.

Fletcher, president of the Gideon board of education and chairman of a large group of citizens opposed to the junior college, said today that the junior college steering committee is grasping for straws in its efforts to sell the public on something that they don't want to buy.

"The Bootheel isn't ready to finance a junior college, because most of the school districts already are in dire need of more money," said Fletcher. "Our educators understand this problem and are speaking out now before it is too late," he said.

Fletcher said that 30 cents tax increase doesn't sound like much, but it opens the door for more increases later. He said that state and federal aid is also misleading----"Who pays the taxes to provide the state and federal aid?"

"I do not understand a state department of education that advocates fewer high school districts and more and more junior college districts," said Fletcher. "If we have to support two or three junior colleges in the Bootheel when one would be sufficient, we will never get our secondary schools upgraded."

Fletcher said that the junior college steering committee is being unfair by singling out school officials as being the only ones opposed to the proposal. "Our committee is composed of people from all walks of life and there has never been one iota of pressure put on school teachers or officials to be for or against the junior college proposal."

He explained that several school districts had not wanted to be a part of the junior college district, but were included under the provision of the law that allows a small number of people to sign a petition. Fletcher said that the Three Rivers Junior College at Poplar Bluff was approved only because the city of Poplar Bluff was able to outvote the rest of the district combined. These districts are stuck whether they like it or not. They can't outvote Poplar Bluff and so far lawsuits have been unsuccessful.

Fletcher said there appears to be little public sentiment for the proposal except in the Kennett-Bragg City-Hayti areas. The proposed district would include all of Pemiscot and Dunklin counties plus Risco, Gideon, and Portageville school districts in New Madrid county.

Peach Crop In Good Shape

CAMPBELL -- The Southeast Missouri peach crop seems to have escaped any damage by the two recent cold spells although peach growers in Southern Illinois report considerable damage and crop loss.

Lloyd Miller of Campbell, who has 60 acres in peaches, reports that all growers in that region were very concerned about the effect of the snow, ice and cold but that inspection of their orchards reveal the 1967 crop is in very good shape.

Another grower reported "it will be a few days before I can fully assess the damage but unless it is 50 per cent or more, I will not feel that my orchard has been hurt at all."

There are over 1,000 acres in peaches in the Campbell area and the crop has a tremendous effect on the economy. A badly damaged peach crop could really hurt.

As one grower expressed it, "We can afford to suffer some loss from such cold spells as we had last week. A little bit of damage saves the peach grower the chore of thinning buds, which we sometimes have to do to produce a good crop."

So, with the first day of spring here, and if winter will go for good -- there should be an ample supply of "home-grown" peaches for the Bootheel this year.

Grain School On April 10

PORTAGEVILLE -- Grading procedures for the various grains produced in Missouri will be demonstrated at a grain grading school at the University of Missouri Delta Center April 10. The session, one of five being held over the state, will start at 8:30 a.m.

Grain producers, processors and dealers are invited to attend the meeting sponsored by the Missouri department of agriculture grain warehouse division, the University of Missouri college of agriculture and the United States department of agriculture. A Dutch treat luncheon will be served at noon.

Participating in the program will be C. Dale Stanton, director, Missouri department of agriculture grain warehouse division and J. M. Ragsdale, marketing specialist, University of Missouri college of agriculture.

Topics will include: "Grain Inspection in Missouri," "Correct Sampling -- Accurate Grades," "The Feed Grains," and pending state and federal legislation affecting various aspects of Missouri's grain industry. A representative of the federal food and drug administration will discuss the importance of keeping grain clean and the safe use of insecticides.

Druggist Goes to Bat Against Cosmetic Tax

AUGUSTA, Maine (AP) - A drugstore owner says cosmetics and jewelry should not be subject to a luxury tax because they keep women from looking "dull, drab and frizzy."

Evariste Laverdiere, owner of a drugstore in Waterville, also told a legislative hearing Tuesday that a proposed 10 per cent state luxury tax should not apply to pocketbooks.

"Did you every see the contents of one?" he asked. "I say it's as much a necessity as an arm."

We Fight The Ideologic - Economic War At Home And Abroad - Alone!

Just for kicks let's make next week "Eat - More - Rice - In-Vietnam Week" so the Cong might have another national holiday. Then, let's declare a cease-fire truce for the week, as we proclaimed recently during the Vietnamese lunar New Year, and see what happens.

Well, here's what happened during the lunar cease-fire: NEWS ITEM: "The Communists fired large (144mm) rockets of Russian and Red Chinese design into Da Nang Air Base, killing 12 Americand and 35 Vietnamese civilians. . . The rockets and launching tubes, largest ever used on the Americans, were brought in on river barges during the Vietnamese lunar New Year truce earlier this month."

Only 12 Americans were killed, of course, so the cost of giving the Cong a holiday wasn't so great. Twelve American lives, valued at $1 million each (if we could entice the boys' mothers to give them up for that) totals only $12,000,000.

How ridiculous and stupid can we get?!

So that's the way the ideological (Capitalism vs Communism) war is going in Vietnam. How is it going in other parts of the world?

Things are really popping all over in the economic and political war which the United States is fighting in practically every nation on this earth and in outer space as well!

1. The United States is negotiating a treaty with Russia to require peaceful use of outer space, i.e., no missiles can be fired from "space wagons" of the future, like "shooting fish in a barrel". If Russia signs, then all is well -- just like "all is well" in Vietnam today where Americans are being killed by rockets and guns made in Russia and Czechoslovakia and Red China.

2. In Southern Rhodesia, the United States is collaborating with Great Britain to invoke sanctions on that white - and-black commonwealth which is trying to run its own affairs without outside interference.

3. Much closer to home, in the Caribbean Islands, generally, and in Cuba, specifically, I noted from my Grand Bahama vantage point that skulduggery is afoot. Great Britain and Canada are doing a thriving business with the Big C-Communist Castro's Cuba. With $100 dollar bills going through the slit beneath the hands of the crap dealer, other games are going on as Canadians and British deal with the nearby Cubans. The new Negro prime minister, Lynden Pindling - first Negro government chief in the Bahamas since Columbus- is a fellow-traveler (can you believe it?) with the Honorable Adam Clayton Powell, U.S. congressman!

Yes, citizens and soldiers, Mr. Prime Minister Pindling is a stockholder in Huff Enterprise, Ltd, to which Congressman Powell's yacht is- or was - attached. Nice cozy little group, this, Pindling and Powell and bikini-clad babes cruising in the U.S. tax-supported yacht on these beautiful, innocent-looking coral-blue Castro waters!

4. In nearby Miami, now overrun with no-work "refugee Cubans" reportedly receiving $100 monthly U.S. subsidy to remain here rather than go back and fight Castro and Communism, report that Castro is building the big island a few miles off Key West (I could almost see Cuba through glasses from my chartered boat) into a Communist military base, including submarine supply pens and missile emplacements.

Several genuinely anti-Castro Cubans, armed with guns and supplies and loaded in a boat, tried to embark from the U.S. keys to get a closer look at Castro's bastion. But, "No, no, senors," say the U.S. guards, "Come with us, we take you to jail." So that's for that with 12 less citrus pickers.

5. For more than 20 years, this nation has tried to police the world, feed it and protect it from Godless Communism. But Communism has continued to spread with Russia, Red China and their satellites doing all they can to counteract our program.

The small "emerging nations," the age-old "neutrals" and even the Communist countries have taken the billions upon billions of our dollar-aid and their ungrateful people turn upon us, spit upon our flag, demonstrate at our consulates and burn our information centers.

One has only to read the newspapers from day to day to know of these maddening, frustrating un-ending chain of "incidents." We financed the Marshal Plan, subsidized the United Nations and NATO and still the great majority of the people on this earth (including most members of the United Nations) hold us in contempt.

But Washington refuses to give up or let up on the economic war, either at home or abroad. Foreign aid continues to flow by the billions. Here at home, President Johnson has asked more billions for world-wide education, using communications satellites to spread our ideology over the world. He is asking more and more for health, education, civil rights, poverty.

The United States has become a lone "defender of freedom" and practically the sole supporter of the world's impoverished (and sometimes enslaved) people.

We are fighting the ideologic-economic war at home and abroad, and fighting it alone!

JFK Birthplace Gets Historic Site Support

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate passed by a voice vote Tuesday a bill to establish the birthplace of John F. Kennedy in Brookline, Mass., as a national historic site.

The bill, by Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., was considered and approved by the Senate Interior Committee only Monday.

Under the measure, the federal government would accept as a donation from the Kennedy family the nine-room, two-story frame structure at 83 Beals St. in Brookline, and maintain it for the public.

200 Farm Workers Will Be Trained

WARDELL -- The Missouri Associated Migrant Opportunities Services has received funds for an adult education and pre - employment training program by the Office of Economic Opportunity. The program is designed for 200 migrant and seasonal farm workers, in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid counties.

Qualifications for participation in the program.

1. Participants must have earned one - half their income in the past year from farm labor.

2. They must have worked for more than one employer in the past year.

3. They must be poor.

Approximately 80 per cent of the trainees will be male heads of families.

There are three phases of the program. Adult Education, pre - employment training, and family - living.

The adult education program is divided into four sections: participants who are in grades 1 through 3, participants who are in grades 4 through 6, participants who are in grades 7 and 8, and participants who are at the high school level.

The pre - employment phase is designed to provide occupational experience and orientation for trainees. Problems such as employer - employe relations, on - the - job safety, mutual responsibility, the eight - hour day, the changing world of work, etc. will be discussed. In addition, there will be training in specific skills such as mechanics, carpentry, small appliance repair, repair and maintenance of farm machinery, body - fender repair, etc.

The family - living program will strive to bridge the gap the trainee at the training center, and the trainee's family. If changes are made in the life of the trainee at the center, similar supportive changes must occur in the home. It will be the task of the family - service aide to be this bridge.

Trainees will participate for at least 30 hours per week. A weekly sussistance allowance will be paid each trainee while in class. The allowance will be $35 per week, plus $4 per each of the first two dependents.

It is the goal of the NAMOS to build a skilled labor force of strong, independent families in the Bootheel.

Two centers are being organized. The main offices are at the Hodgens school in Wardell. A second center will be at the old Gobler school in Gobler.

Trainees are being recruited throughout the three county area with the cooperation of neighborhood service centers. Eligible people may contact their center of the NAMOS Office.

A project director has not been employed. Supervision of the program is in the hands of the Bootheel executive committee. Members of the committee are Leroy Jones of Hayti, Father Wallace Ellinger and Rev. William Chapman of Kennett.

Foreman to Conduct Burn Study in Area

Dr. Thelma C. Buckthorpe, administrator of the Scott County health department announces the appointment of William D. Foreman as a field representative. Foreman will work on the burn injury program in Scott and Mississippi counties.

These counties are among six in Southeast Missouri that have a death rate from burns ranging from two to four times the rate for the state.

The other four counties in the program are Butler, Stoddard, New Madrid and Pemiscot.

Foreman is conducting a study of deaths and injuries due to a burn in order to determine the cause of the high rate. After the causes have been determined, education programs will be developed aimed at reducing death and injury from burns.

Foreman will need to interview every person who receives a burn of any significance. Any person who has received a burn since the first of January or who knows of a person who has received one, is asked to call the county health department.

Information received will be held in confidence and coded to be used in statistical information.

Missourians' Knowledge of Reds Limited

Editors Note: This is another in a continuing series of reports on public opinion and attitudes in Missouri, based on periodic surveys conducted by the Public Opinion Survey Unit of the Research Center, School of Business and Public Administration, University of Missouri, Columbia.)

COLUMBIA -- In a recent address at Fulton, Vice - President Hubert H. Humphrey reaffirmed a basic policy commitment of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. Speaking from the same platform where Winston Churchill warned in 1947 that the Soviet Union had lowered an Iron Curtain isolating Eastern Europe from the West, Humphrey argued that it was time to lift the Curtain. He called on the United States, the Soviet Union, and communist states of Eastern Europe to find new areas of economic cooperation.

This policy of "building bridges to the East," as it is sometimes called, has been increasingly evident since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis. The Nuclear Test Ban Treaty has been followed by a series of proposals for greater East - West economic and cultural intercourse.

Last week the U. S. senate approved a consular agreement with the Soviet Union which presumably will stimulate economic and cultural exchange.

An East - West trade bill has also been presented to the Congress. In a more direct way, this proposal is designed to facilitate trade between the United States and Eastern European countries.

Some Congressmen have agrued that increasing American trade with Eastern Europe will make these countries less dependent on the Soviet Union, thus resulting in less political control by the Soviets.

Other Congressmen have voiced vigorous opposition to the measure, charging that it would only aid and abet the enemy. Economic isolation, they argue, will increase political instability and the likelihood of an overthrow of these regimes. Most of these Congressmen have backed up their position by pointing out that their constituents and the American public simply would not stand for trade with communist countries.

Public opinion on complex matters of foreign policy is always elusive. In an effort to find out how Missourians viewed communist - bloc countries, the Public Opinion Survey Unit asked a sample of nearly 1,000 Missouri adults to (1) identify from a selected list of communist and non - communist countries those that are presently communist, (2) indicate the extent of control exerted by the Soviet Union over each of these countries, and (3) rank the countries that constitute the most serious threat to U. S. interests.

The findings, soon to be published in an article by Professors Robert Sharlet and David C. Leege of the University of Missouri, Columbia, indicate that Missourians have limited information about communist countries, particularly those in Eastern Europe.

The selected list of countries presented in the survey included the non-communist countries of Indonesia, UAR, India, and France. The percentage of people identifying each country as "presently having a communist government" is noted below; the remaining percentage simply didn't know or said that the country was non-communist.

Country	Communist Identification
North Vietnam	82
China (mainland)	78
East Germany	78
Yugoslavia	55
Poland	53
Rumania	36
Albania	24
Indonesia	24
UAR (Egypt)	17
India	10
France	7

Only East Germany of the Eastern European countries is known to be communist by as many as three - fourths of the Missouri adults; Poland and Yugoslavia are identified as communist by barely one-half of them; while Rumania and Albania are identified by only one - third to one - fourth of them respectively. Only those countries with whom the United States has had recent cold or hot conflict receive extensive mention as communist countries -- Cuba, North Vietnam, China, and East Germany.

Several non - communist countries are labeled communist by as many as one - tenth to one-fourth of the sample.

Except for the first three countries listed above and the Soviet Union, no communist on the list were perceived as threats to U. S. interests to any significantly greater degree than were the non - communist countries. Only East Germany of the Eastern European countries was thought to be under the tight control of the Soviet Union; the tightest control was thought to be exerted over Cuba.

Mr. Hyde said the new Quality Stamp warehouse will make shipments to all of its 26 redemption centers in a 10 - state area.

Lightest Mexico

MEXICO CITY -- Over at the Carretones glass factory they claim to have the finest hand-blown glass anywhere but from what I can see it is blown by mouth.

Another curious thing. The name of the factory is not Carretones. That's the name of the street. And probably nobody but the owners know what the factory's official title is.

Anyhow, the Lady from Puebla invited me to take her over the other day and see what was new in the wind -- and--bottle industry.

It was an edifying morning because the blowing gentlemen were running all over the place with red hot glass on the end of rods and making many fascinating objects.

And we were informed by the foreman that the glass actually is a rather low quality because it is full of air bubbles, which is the thing that lends character and makes people want to buy some.

The way it works, they have truck loads of busted bottles and window panes brought in each day and dumped in a very hot furnace.

Pretty soon they have a big pot of boiling glass and the maestros file by and dip one end of a long, metal tube in the pot. Twist it around until they get a ball of molten glass like you would wind honey on a spoon.

Then they back off a little and begin huffing and puffing (on the cool end of the tube). All the time rotating and pushing the wad of glass against things to shape it while they blow.

Suddenly they have a glass or a vase. Looks extremely complicated to me but the maestro says it is not more than a matter of talent and routine.

Everybody except the flunkies around this factory is called maestro, this being the term for master craftsmen. You hear maestro this and maestro that until pretty soon it sounds like the orchestra is getting ready to start.

One maestro puts his metal tube through a slot to the pot and winds on just enough glass to measure from here to there. Then another maestro winds the end of this pipe into the wad until they are both glued together.

At this point, with the glass glowing like a volcano, maestro "A" walks this way and maestro "B" goes in the opposite direction and the first thing you know they have stretched out some glass tubing maybe twenty or thirty feet long.

And there was one fellow blowing water pitchers and another blowing glass birds. The master maestro explained his troops could blow absolutely anything and when I said (just casually, mind you) how about somebody blowing a checkerboard the Lady from Puebla brought her spike heel down sharply on my instep.

Well, the master maestro said he had a fellow once with no talent at all and he couldn't even blow his nose well. He kept trying but everything came out abstract like Salvador Dali and leaked badly and it looked like this would never get beyond shoveling old beer bottles into the melting pot.

The oddest thing happened one day right after lunch when he was trying to blow a real skinny vase and developed a case of hiccoughs. And the master maestro said it came out covered with huge blisters and they were about to fire this fellow until somebody discovered they could cut the lumps off and make glass domes for coffee percolators.

Anyhow, the master maestro said this boy got a good job in the coffee pot division. And all they have to do is keep him full of indigestion and let him blow after he eats.

Long, Symington Cast Nay Votes

WASHINGTON (AP) - How Missouri senators were recorded as voting on recent roll calls:

On rejection, 25-67, of Mundt, R-S. D., reservation to U.S. - Soviet consular treaty to defer effective date until President determines U.S. troops no longer needed to defend South Viet Nam. Against: Long and Symington.

CAB Wants to Hear Air Service Gripes

WASHINGTON (AP) - If you had to wait a long time to retrieve your baggage after an airline trip, the Civil Aeronautics Board wants to know about it.

The CAB has launched a study of air passenger gripes - including luggage handling foulups, delayed flights or other schedule irregularities.

The board emphasized that few passengers complain about what goes on while they're airborne, "but complaints indicate that procedures and facilities for handling passengers and their property on the ground have not kept pace with traffic growth."

He humbled Himself so much as to become our brother.
He comes.

Mike Olds

As a treat for their three youngsters, friends of ours planned to spend New Year's Eve with them. They would all get dressed up, there would be one punch bowl for the children and one for Mommy and Daddy, there would be a dinner of the youngers' choice, with hats, noisemakers, etc. The children were wide - eyed with excitement at the prospect. After a few minutes of whooping and shouting, the seven - year-old boy turned to his mother and asked, "Mommy, can we wake Daddy up at midnight?"

When I Was A Boy

Since the publication of the late H. J. (Jack) Blanton's "When I Was A Boy" reminiscenes in book form in 1942, they have become increasingly popular. All the books have been sold, and are difficult to obtain. Because of the increasing demand for these articles, the Standard is reprinting them during the next few weeks in the belief that its readers, young and old, will enjoy reading about 70 to 100 years ago. Clip and save them.

WHEN WE TOOK OUR RELIGION SERIOUSLY

When I was a boy people took their religion seriously, meaning their denominationalism. Almost every family had at least one member who could, and at frequent intervals did, give a reason for the faith that was in him. All the Protestant families heard terrible things about the Catholics. Baptists, Presbyterian and Methodist churches heard things equally unfavorable to the Campbellites by which odious name the Christian Church was then spoken of. And all those sects lambasted us Baptists because we limited participation in the Lord's supper to those of our own faith and order, although they really didn't care so much about eating and drinking with us as about being barred from the table.

There was much theological brick - throwing from the various pulpits. I recall an evangelist named Martin who held a meeting at the Christian church. His chief mission in life seemed to be the matter of showing other denominations the error of their way. He took the other churches in rotation, hewing to the line and letting the chips fall where they would. The night set apart for showing the Baptists up was a Wednesday night. Prayer meeting at the Baptist church was dismissed early in order that the pastor might gather material with which to load a theological gun for his Sunday morning reply.

The church was filled when the Baptist martyrs arrived. Only back seats in the little Sunday School room remained unoccupied. In order that they might see as well as hear Evangelist Martin, the Baptist minister and his deacons sat on the high back of the bench. While the evangelist was unlimbering his heaviest guns at their doctrines and practices the back of that bench suddenly gave way and with a resounding crash the Baptist pastor and his deacons fell to the floor. This embarrassing moment was hailed by admirers of the evangelist as a knockout to the enemy, only added to the fury of the counter - attack the Baptist pastor unleashed the following Sunday.

How times have changed! Several years ago I asked all pastors of local churches to write statements in which the doctrines of their denomination should be given. Only one responded -- a young man who had just been called to the pastorate of the Christian church. He very carefully avoided anything that might have started a controversy, while all the others declined to say anything for publication, lest denominational antagonisms would be revived.

My first recollection of Paris churches is of interiors with a rail through the center of the middle pews. Men sat on one side of that rail, women on the other. Young people with an eye to opportunity so managed that the girl sat against the rail on one side, and the boy against it on the other. Boys seldom took their sweethearts to church. The big idea was to take them home after the benediction, in furtherance of which the boys always ganged up at the door, with most of the others looking on with interest, and as a favored girl came out her admirer would rush up and say, "May I see you home?" Occasionally, some scamp who had no interest in her would get there first, and great was the joy of the spectators.

THE PRIVY

When I was a boy the privy was a family necessity on the farm & in all towns that were without water works and sewers. A problem in cities like St. Louis and Kansas City that were undertaking to put water mains and sewer pipes under practically every street. Although condemned by health authorities and loathed to well-to-do people, thousands of city home owners refused to abandon them, for one excuse or another. Some argued that they were financially unable to install toilet facilities and make sewer connections. Others, who could spare the money, clung to the privy from pure contrariness or from unwillingness to go modern.

Everywhere, modesty restrained people from even so much as indirectly mentioning the privy during a conversation. People of those generations little dreamed that the time would come when one of America's best sellers in literature would be a book which discussed nothing else. It was "The Specialist," by Chic Sale. After typewritten copies of it had been read at service clubs and other gatherings for men only, a St. Louis man, the late W.S. McClatchey, manager for the Western Newspaper Union, offered to publish it in book form, market it at his own expense and give the author half the profits for the privilege. Two years after the first book appeared, Mr. McClatchey told me, more than 700,000 copies had been sold at a dollar a copy, and the demand continued to be good. The book contained about 20 pages.

The privy was about the only thing besides appetites which both rich and poor had in common in town and country. Our more cultured people called it a backhouse. Some of them tried to conceal it from the public view by erecting vineclad trellises. As a rule, however, it stood in the open, like a wart on the nose, evidently aware of its important place in the scheme of things and willing to look a passing world full in the face. When new houses were to be contracted for in all small towns, three additional structures were required. One was the privy. Another was a hen house. The third was the smokehouse, in which meat for the family table was to be cured and smoked and kept. Priority over all others, including the residence, was given to the privy, for the convenience of the contractor and his assistants.

Every church and every school had two, one for boys, the other for girls. They were placed just as far apart as possible. Every office and store had at least one, to which no one would venture without a quick survey of the landscape for the purpose of learning whether it was occupied or that no one of the opposite sex was in sight.

Each structure was constructed with a view to Hallowe'en. This means that strength to hold together when overturned was a prime necessity when boys went forth for Hallowe'en stunts. On the following morning the landscape abounded with privies that were flat on their backs. Always, the first ones to suffer were at schoolhouse and church. Before Paris installed waterworks and sewers there was a two-holer back of my office. We had a standing arrangement with two scout Negro men for the necessary service the morning after Hallowe'en. One year, however, the boys went to great extremes with that structure. When I came down to work the day after, great was my surprise and indignation at seeing the privy standing erect in the middle of Main street in front of the office, with a rail fence built around it and a box of corn cobs at the door.

When the privy door was closed it was notice to everybody to keep away, for there was a customer inside. Too often it was a temptation passing boys could not resist. Always, it seemed, a stone or two was handy. Usually, the privy was considered a legitimate target for a test of throwing skill. The crash of a rock was very disconcerting to the unsuspecting inmate. Young people in the late teens lived in constant terror of being seen by one of the opposite sex while entering or emerging from the family privy. When, once in a long time, this did occur they evaded each other for weeks on end. It seemed that they would never get on speaking terms again.

The largest privy in our town, which was the county seat, was an eight-holer. It was located on the courthouse lawn, right in the middle of the business district. It probably was never patronized so much as one time by a female of the species, so conspicuous was its location. The most remarkable privy in our part of the state was the one operated by the Glenn Hotel, a three story building. It was three stories high and was reached by bridge-like walks which led from each floor of the hotel. This structure was very unpopular with local Hallowe'en boys. During all of its long life it baffled every attempt to overturn it.

By a strange coincidence calomel and the privy passed out of general use at about the said time. Family doctors labored under the delusion that every patient should undergo a course of calomel at least once a year, or any other time when less energetic medicines had failed them. Few people got through the winter without experiencing this ordeal. Nineteen times out of twenty the stuff took effect between midnight and morning. When the call came there was not to reason why. There was only to arise and fly. On no other occasion did the victim don clothing and reach his destination in such a minimum of time as he did under the urge of a heroic dose of calomel. In zero weather, with privy 100 yards to the rear, it became an endurance test in which no quarter was asked and none was given. A motion picture of that performance would have outdone our old custard pie comedies as funnybone thrillers.

No matter how modest a woman guest might be, she lost no time in a whispered conversation with her hostess about where the privy was located when she arrived for a visit. Masculine guests usually solved the problem by leisurely sauntering around the premises, on the pretext of inspecting the fruit and shade trees keeping a wary eye out for what they were really looking for. On a trip to Europe I once learned from the European agent of the Hines Company, at whose table I sat, that the first thing to learn when about to enter a foreign country was the word for toilet or privy. Never was there a more valuable bit of information.

Except for privies many towns and cities would never have had sewers. Thus, after voting bonds for waterworks people would discover that there had to be a choice between privies as a public health menace or sewers for the elimination of privies. The sewer side of the proposition most always won.

THE ART OF GETTING ALONG

Sooner of later, a man, if he is wise, discovers that business life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take, ups and downs.

He learns that it doesn't pay to be a sensitive soul--that he should let some things go over his head like water off a duck's back.

He learns that he who loses his temper usually loses.

He learnes that all men have burnt toast for breakfast now and then and that he shouldn't take the other fellow's grouch too seriously.

He learns that carrying a chip on his shoulder is the easiest way to get into a fight.

He learns that the quickest way to become unpopular is to carry tales and gossip about others.

He learns that it doesn't matter who gets the credit so long as the business shows a profit.

He learns that buck-passing always turns out to be a boomerang and that it never pays.

He comes to realize that the business could run along perfectly well without him.

He learns that it doesn't do any harm to smile and say, "Good morning," even if it is raining.

He learns that most of the other fellows are as ambitious as he is, that they have brains that are as good or better, and that hard work and no cleverness is the secret of success.

He learns to sympathize with the youngster coming into the business, because he remembers how bewildered he was when he first started out.

He learns not to worry when he loses an order because experience has shown that if he always gives his best, his average will break pretty well.

He learns the bosses are not monsters trying to get the last ounce of work out of him for the least amount of pay, but they are usually fine men who have succeeded through hard work and who want to do the right thing.

He learns that the gang is not any harder to get along with in one place than another and that "getting along" depends about 98 per cent on his own behavior. (The End)

Farm Unrest Growing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rebellious farmers spilling milk on pastures and streets is marking a price struggle many persons believe is reaching a crisis with repercussions from rural voting booths to big city supermarkets.

The milk holding and dumping initiated in 25 states is the most dramatic expression of what farmers and their representatives in Congress describe as deep unrest over declining prices, rising costs — and the seemingly greener pasture on the city side of the fence.

A march by 100 farmers on the New Jersey state house in Trenton, dynamitting of a milk truck in Tennessee, vandalism spoilage to stored milk in Minnesota — these were among developments Wednesday as the week-long National Farmers Organization campaign to boost milk prices heightened in intensity.

More demonstrations, boycotts and strikes are expected, said a Midwestern congressman. "He (the farmer) wants to be part of the affluent society."

With farm prices skidding for six consecutive months, farmers charge they are being shortchanged in a booming economy.

Conscious of declining power at the polls, some farmers argue the administration simply is using its support tools to tamp down prices and court the favor of urban consumers.

Farmer Cyril Habiger of Bavaria, Kan., figures it adds up to this: "There are fewer farmers, more votes among consumers, so policies favor consumers."

WASHINGTON (AP) - For years, Latin Americans talked about a development bank of their own. They said there was a need for an international lending institution attuned to their nagging problems of education, public health, housing, highways, agricultural and industrial advancement, and political stability.

Despite some skepticism in Washington and a few of their own capitals, the Inter-American Development Bank got into operation in 1961. Since then, its loans have sparked direct development projects costing more than $5.3 billion. Of this sum, about $3.3 billion has come from governments and private resources of Latin America itself. It has drawn in more than $125 million in investment capital from Europe, Canada, Japan and Israel.

The bank has even greater plans for the future. It is giving particular emphasis to projects in which two or more nations join in regional efforts to meet broad economic and social needs.

Chilean economist Felipe Herrera has been president of the bank since its founding. He is a key figure in general planning for more prosperous times in Latin America, now striving to speed the Alliance for Progress plan of economic and social development.

Only recently the bank announced without fanfare that its total credits to Latin America has passed the $2 billion mark. It now has become the major lender of development funds in Latin America, outdistancing in this category the giant of international financing, the World Bank.

As of last Dec. 31, the Inter-American bank had extended credits of $1.9 billion, against $1.6 billion by the World Bank.

The Inter-American bank is owned by the governments of 19 Latin American nations and the United States. Each is represented on the bank's board of governors.

The United States made the biggest capital subscription to the bank's capital -- $761 million, or 42.4 per cent of the total. This capital and other U.S. funds made available to the bank, however, exceed $1 billion.

The bank has been hampered by the fact that, until it was organized, Latin American nations had no long-range plans for economic and social development and lacked personnel to make such plans.

Now the bank is cooperating with the Inter-American Committee on the Alliance for Progress, the U.S. Aid Agency, the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund in pressing for tax, fiscal and other reforms considered necessary for real progress in Latin America.

The bank makes loans to governments, their agencies and to private individuals, firms and institutions. The projects vary. Sometimes they involve credit to a government agency to teach farmers in backward communities to get away from wooden plows, ox power and antiquated farming methods.

Others might involve credit to give some sizeable city in Latin America its first water system, a hospital, a school or a farm-to-market road to bring an isolated community into communication with a major consumers' market.

The bank also helps finance national highway systems, railroads, housing for the poor and dozens of other projects aimed at boosting living standards.

Budget Foes Gaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — Their ranks swollen by last year's elections, House budget-cutters have indicated in the first test vote this year that President Johnson's domestic programs face real trouble.

They showed considerable muscle Wednesday as the House passed and sent to the Senate the first of a series of appropriations bills financing domestic programs for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The action came on the eve of recess by the House and Senate for a 10-day Easter vacation. The legislators were to meet briefly today — with no major action scheduled — and won't return until April 3.

The appropriations bill carried $7.5 billion for the Treasury and Post Office departments and the executive office of the President. Since it finances the jobs of thousands of mail carriers and other postal employes, it is one of the most difficult to cut.

Yet, it reached the House floor trimmed $112 million below the President's request. And, with almost solid Republican backing, the House chopped out another $2.4 million earmarked for more postal field employes and more personnel for the office of the Treasury secretary.

More significantiy, the budget-cutters came much closer than in any recent year to imposing an across the board reduction in spending next year for activities financed in the bill.

The over-all cut, proposed by Rep. Charles R. Jones, R-N.C., and supported by most Republicans, would have in essence trimmed spending next year 5 per cent from amounts set out in the President's budget.

Jones estimated the saving at $109 million.

Worship, Shopping and Hunt Usher in Early Easter

For, lo, the winter is past,
The rain is over and gone;
The flowers appear on the earth;
The time of the singing of the birds is come,
And the voice of the turtle is heard in our land.
--- Song of Solomon

Holy Week observances prevail in the Sikeston area.

Many churches are holding daily services observing the events preceding Easter --- principal Christian festival of the year which commemorates the resurrection of Christ.

Easter is early this year. Spring was late. Easter is early on the calendar and Spring is late in terms of weather.

Spring arrived Tuesday bringing warmth and Easter comes five days later bringing what residents hope will be more of the same.

Nature is cooperating. The unfamiliar smell of new mown grass fills the air. The sun is warmer. Birds sing with more assurance their full throated song. The yellow effusion of forsythia and jonquils stand out against greener grass. The delicate white of thousands of tiny spirea blossoms adorn the landscape.

Spring arrives with the vernal equinox. Easter day is the first Sunday after the full moon following the equinox. Its earliest date is March 22 and latest April 25.

This is the season of the Easter parade -- a time to buy new clothing, particularly the hat, and wear it on Sunday. A time to spade, to put in garden, and for children to play outdoors.

Good Friday will be observed at a union service at 2 p.m. in the First Assembly of God church. Many business establishments will close for the hour long rites at which the Rev. James W. Hackney, First Baptist church pastor, will preach on "The Incomparable Triumph of the Cross."

Saturday from 9 a.m. until noon small fry, aged one to 10, will search for Easter eggs in Malone park in the annual hunt sponsored by the Junior Women's club.

A selection of drip dry and permanent press fabrics may be a practical approach to Easter preparations.

Churches at New Madrid hope to attract a thousand persons to the Mississippi river bank at the end of Main street for annual sunrise interdominational services Sunday.

In Sikeston General Baptist churches will hold a service at 5:30 a.m. at the Second General Baptist church.

There will be a union sunrise service in Morehouse at 6 a.m. Sunday in the high school gymnasium sponsored by the Kiwanis club there.

If history repeats itself pews of churches, usually half filled, will all but overflow with

District Revision Stalls

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Senate took its first look at congressional redistricting today but got nowhere.

Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, chairman of the committee which produced the bill, offered what he called a corrective amendment.

But he had to lay the bill over so senators could study the amendment, which would change the boundaries of the 2nd and 3rd districts in St. Louis City and County.

As originally presented, the bill split the 2nd District represented now by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, Webster Groves Republican, and turned it into a Democratic district.

Defeated on a 13-15 vote was a bill designed to limit grand juries to returning indictments and making reports but not allowing them to smear individuals or officials by name if they were not indicted.

The House started its Easter recess Wednesday but the Senate stayed on to plug away on its heavy calendar.

The Senate Roads and Highways Committee approved a House - passed bill increasing Highway Patrol salaries about $500,000 a year and adding the rank of corporal.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee recommended repeal of the 3 - cent state property tax which raises about $3 million a year.

The criticism came from Sen. R. J. King, R-Clayton, House minority leader, and Sen. Thomas G. Woolsey, R - Versailles, Senate minority leader.

King said the House calendar is cluttered with bills that never should have come out of

Farm Unrest Growing

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rebellious farmers spilling milk on pastures and streets is marking a price struggle many persons believe is reaching a crisis with repercussions from rural voting booths to big city supermarkets.

The milk holding and dumping initiated in 25 states is the most dramatic expression of what farmers and their representatives in Congress describe as deep unrest over declining prices, rising costs — and the seemingly greener pasture on the city side of the fence.

A march by 100 farmers on the New Jersey state house in Trenton, dynamiting of a milk truck in Tennessee, vandalism spoilage to stored milk in Minnesota — these were among developments Wednesday as the week-long National Farmers Organization campaign to boost milk prices heightened in intensity.

More demonstrations, boycotts and strikes are expected, said a Midwestern congressman. "He (the farmer) wants to be part of the affluent society."

With farm prices skidding for six consecutive months, farmers charge they are being shortchanged in a booming economy.

Conscious of declining power at the polls, some farmers argue the administration simply is using its support tools to tamp down prices and court the favor of urban consumers.

Farmer Cyril Habiger of Bavaria, Kan., figures it adds up to this: "There are fewer farmers, more votes among consumers, so policies favor consumers."

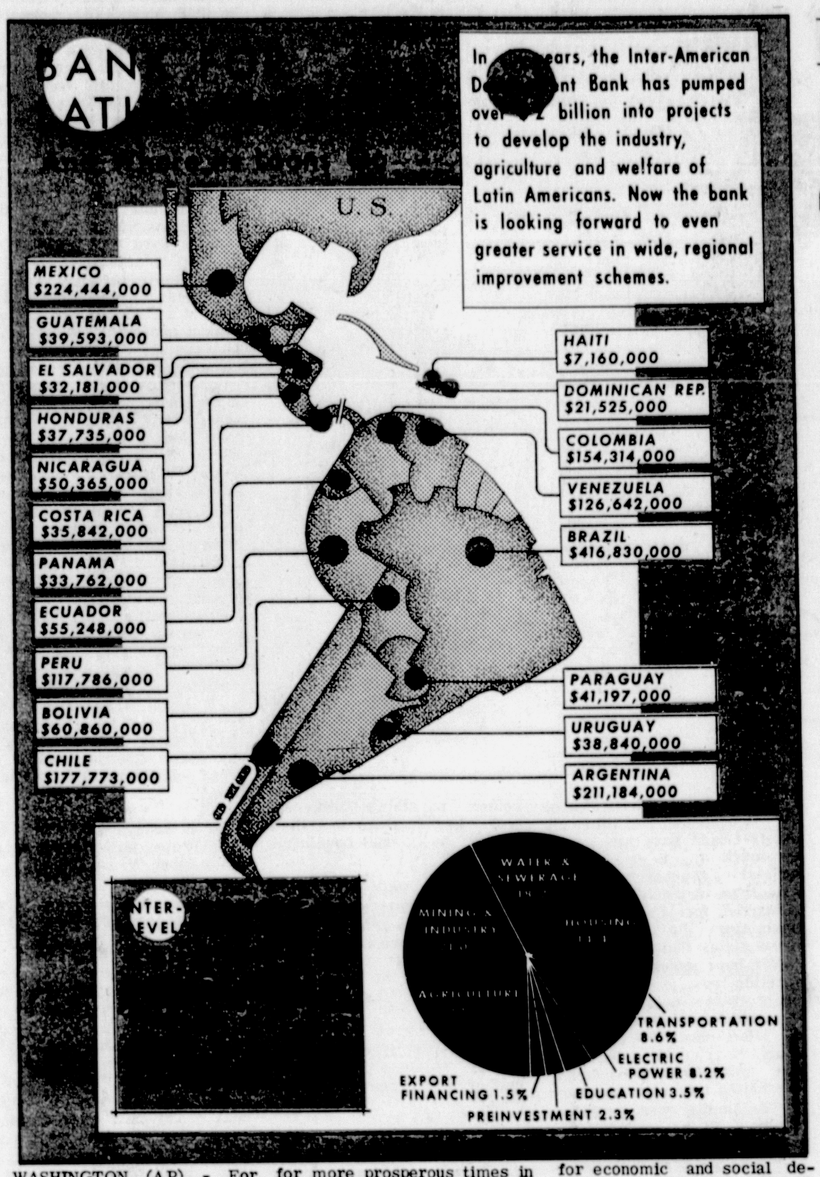
The planet, Saturn, today is almost directly beyond the sun and it is invisible. Saturn is 978 million miles from the Earth today, its greatest distance from us in 1967.



WASHINGTON (AP) - For years, Latin Americans talked about a development bank of their own. They said there was a need for an international lending institution attuned to their nagging problems of education, public health, housing, highways, agricultural and industrial advancement, and political stability.

Despite some skepticism in Washington and a few of their own capitals, the Inter-American Development Bank got into operation in 1961. Since then, its loans have sparked direct development projects costing more than $5.3 billion. Of this sum, about $3.3 billion has come from governments and private resources of Latin America itself. It has drawn in more than $125 million in investment capital from Europe, Canada, Japan and Israel.

The bank has even greater plans for the future. It is giving particular emphasis to projects in which two or more nations join in regional efforts to meet broad economic and social needs.

Chilean economist Felipe Herrera has been president of the bank since its founding. He is a key figure in general planning for more prosperous times in Latin America, now striving to speed the Alliance for Progress plan of economic and social development.

Only recently the bank announced without fanfare that its total credits to Latin America has passed the $2 billion mark. It now has become the major lender of development funds in Latin America, outdistancing in this category the giant of international financing, the World Bank.

As of last Dec. 31, the Inter-American bank had extended credits of $1.9 billion, against $1.6 billion by the World Bank.

The Inter-American bank is owned by the governments of 19 Latin American nations and the United States. Each is represented on the bank's board of governors.

The United States made the biggest capital subscription to the bank's capital -- $761 million, or 42.4 per cent of the total. This capital and other U.S. funds made available to the bank, however, exceed $1 billion.

The bank has been hampered by the fact that, until it was organized, Latin American nations had no long-range plans for economic and social development and lacked personnel to make such plans.

Now the bank is cooperating with the Inter-American Committee on the Alliance for Progress, the U.S. Aid Agency, the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund in pressing for tax, fiscal and other reforms considered necessary for real progress in Latin America.

The bank makes loans to governments, their agencies and to private individuals, firms and institutions. The projects vary. Sometimes they involve credit to a government agency to teach farmers in backward communities to get away from wooden plows, ox power and antiquated farming methods.

Others might involve credit to give some sizeable city in Latin America its first water system, a hospital, a school or a farm-to-market road to bring an isolated community into communication with a major consumers' market.

The bank also helps finance national highway systems, railroads, housing for the poor and dozens of other projects aimed at boosting living standards.

Budget Foes Gaining

WASHINGTON (AP) — Their ranks swollen by last year's elections, House budget-cutters have indicated in the first test vote this year that President Johnson's domestic programs face real trouble.

They showed considerable muscle Wednesday as the House passed and sent to the Senate the first of a series of appropriations bills financing domestic programs for the fiscal year starting July 1.

The action came on the eve of recess by the House and Senate for a 10-day Easter vacation. The legislators were to meet briefly today — with no major action scheduled — and won't return until April 3.

The appropriations bill carried $7.5 billion for the Treasury and Post Office departments and the executive office of the President. Since it finances the jobs of thousands of mail carriers and other postal employes, it is one of the most difficult to cut.

Yet, it reached the House floor trimmed $112 million below the President's request. And, with almost solid Republican backing, the House chopped out another $2.4 million earmarked for more postal field employes and more personnel for the office of the Treasury secretary.

More significantly, the budget-cutters came much closer than in any recent year to imposing an across the board reduction in spending next year for activities financed in the bill.

The over-all cut, proposed by Rep. Charles R. Jones, R-N.C., and supported by most Republicans, would have in essence trimmed spending next year 5 per cent from amounts set out in the President's budget.

Worship, Shopping and Hunt Usher in Early Easter

For, lo, the winter is past,
The rain is over and gone;
The flowers appear on the earth;
The time of the singing of the birds is come,
And the voice of the turtle is heard in our land.
--- Song of Solomon

Holy Week observances prevail in the Sikeston area.

Many churches are holding daily services observing the events preceding Easter --- principal Christian festival of the year which commemorates the resurrection of Christ.

Easter is early this year. Spring was late. Easter is early on the calendar and Spring is late in terms of weather.

Spring arrived Tuesday bringing warmth and Easter comes five days later bringing what residents hope will be more of the same.

Nature is cooperating. The unfamiliar smell of new mown grass fills the air. The sun is warmer. Birds sing with more assurance their full throated song. The yellow effusion of forsythia and jonquils stand out against greener grass. The delicate white of thousands of tiny spirea blossoms adorn the landscape.

Spring arrives with the vernal equinox. Easter day is the first Sunday after the full moon following the equinox. Its earliest date is March 22 and latest April 25.

This is the season of the Easter parade -- a time to buy new clothing, particularly the hat, and wear it on Sunday. A time to spade, to put in garden, and for children to play outdoors.

Good Friday will be observed at a union service at 2 p.m. in the First Assembly of God church. Many business establishments will close for the hour long rites at which the Rev. James W. Hackney, First Baptist church pastor, will preach on "The Incomparable Triumph of the Cross."

Saturday from 9 a.m. until noon small fry, aged one to 10, will search for Easter eggs in Malone park in the annual hunt sponsored by the Junior Women's club.

A selection of drip dry and permanent press fabrics may be a practical approach to Easter preparations.

Churches at New Madrid hope to attract a thousand persons to the Mississippi river bank at the end of Main street for annual sunrise interdominational services Sunday.

In Sikeston General Baptist churches will hold a service at 5:30 a.m. at the Second General Baptist church.

There will be a union sunrise service in Morehouse at 6 a.m. Sunday in the high school gymnasium sponsored by the Kiwanis club there.

If history repeats itself pews of churches, usually half filled, will all but overflow with

District Revision Stalls

Sen. Omer H. Avery, D-Troy, chairman of the committee which produced the bill, offered what he called a corrective amendment.

But he had to lay the bill over so senators could study the amendment, which would change the boundaries of the 2nd and 3rd districts in St. Louis City and County.

As originally presented, the bill split the 2nd District represented now by Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, Webster Groves Republican, and turned it into a Democratic district.

Defeated on a 13-15 vote was a bill designed to limit grand juries to returning indictments and making reports but not allowing them to smear individuals or officials by name if they were not indicted.

The House started its Easter recess Wednesday but the Senate stayed on to plug away on its heavy calendar.

The Senate Roads and Highways Committee approved a House - passed bill increasing Highway Patrol salaries about $500,000 a year and adding the rank of corporal.

The Senate Ways and Means Committee recommended repeal of the 3 - cent state property tax which raises about $3 million a year.

The criticism came from Sen. R. J. King, R-Clayton, House minority leader, and Sen. Thomas G. Woolsey, R - Versailles, Senate minority leader.

King said the House calendar is cluttered with bills that never should have come out of

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
EASTER

Easter will soon be here again. And, though few may know it, the theme of Easter is older than Christianity itself. In the modern world, it celebrates the Resurrection of Christ. But similar rites were held in times long before He lived. Rituals of rebirth, historians tell us, were common in the ancient civilizations.

Now Easter is greeted with sunrise services, and these date back to the medieval custom of praying while the sun begins its climb into the heavens. One legend holds that the rays of light which break through the clouds on Easter morning are angels dancing for joy. This is, indeed, a happy time - even as it is a time for thoughts of those aspects of life which go far beyond the mere material.

In many communities, elaborate Easter parades are held, and ladies appear in their new finery - a flamboyant Easter hat has become something of a tradition. And then there is one of the most charming of customs - the Easter egg hunt for children. Easter bunnies, the eager children are told, laid the eggs. And this, too, has its origins in antiquity - in pre-Christian times the rabbit was a symbol of abundant new life in the spring season.

Easter thus combines a rich mixture of laughter and solemnity. Both are good - both are needed by the soul of man. Let all enjoy this Easter - and, in enjoying it, pray that the spirit of He who was Resurrected from the dead will some day rule this world.

A MILK STRIKE THAT CAN'T BE WON

The supply of any commodity in relation to demand affects price. If N. E. O. dairy farmers choose to hold supplies off the market in an effort to increase prices, that is their right, even though it does seem a shame to waste good food. They do not have the right to prevent others from delivering milk.

It seems to us, however, that the milk strike is a futile effort for two principal reasons. First, not enough milk can be withheld from the market to increase prices, except, perhaps in specific local areas. Second, if we should concede that prices would be given a boost, the increases would bring additional production which would only mean that the government would have to buy more of the surplus.

Milk supply and demand were getting into a close balance in early 1966. In fact, government authorities feared that a shortage might develop because many farmers were either quitting the business or shifting to other farm enterprises. They were making a natural response to low prices.

The government raised price supports twice in 1966 and said that the current level ($4 per hundred pounds on milk used for manufacturing purposes) would be maintained until March, 1968.

Now there is no milk shortage. Production is greater than a year ago and with higher retail prices, consumption is down a little. The government supports milk prices by buying the surplus and taking it out of regular market channels. In January and February of this year, the government bought more surplus dairy products than in all of 1966. This suggests how much "dumping" the N. F. O. famers would have to do before they caused a shortage.

It is possible, but not probable, that the N. F. O. milk strike might induce the govment to raise support prices again. In that case, it is certain that production would rise further unless some sort of controls were invoked.

Certainly it is conceivable that farmers could reduce total milk production to a 'point where higher prices would be forced. But they could not force the market to take all the milk they would want to produce at the higher prices. This same situation would apply on any product, farm or otherwise.

The N. F. O. farmers, we fear, don't take this economic fact of life into consideration.

Onetime public servant not permanently cured of the virus, hence reluctant to be identified or expose other principles in this drama, relates a series of circumstances and snapper denouement.

There was a man in our town who fancied horses, and kept a string of them in a sizeable bookyard pasture, until the city moved in and instructed him to show cause why he should not dispose of them. He appeared for a hearing, and his elders in judgment advised him that the law provided that a person might keep animals unless other people complained, and that there had been complaints about his horses.

Our public servant speaking on behalf of the city, was on the witness stand, and the horse owner demanded to know who had complained about his remuda. The public servant demurred, and the horse man asked the judge to instuct the witness to expose the complainant. The judge was about to, when the witness said:

"Judge, may I have a word with you in private before I carry out the court's order?" The Judge agreed, and the public servant-witness approached the bench, leaned over, and whispered in the judge's ear.

"The complainant was this man's wife," he confided, and went back to the witness stand.

"The court will not require the witness to identify the complainant," ruled the judge.

Advertisements in a local newspaper boost the economic level of the entire community.

Residents of a Texas city proved the worth of advertising in 1964, when they were threatened with economic extinction. An Air Force base closeup and a freak ruinous freeze caused 6,000 residents to leave during 1963. The town was dying.

But a $5,214 campaign was started in Midwestern newspapers. The campaign quickly brought 325 new residents to the ailing town by stressing its retirement possibilities.

Encouraged by the quick results, the town's Chamber of Commerce now spends $100,000 annually on a drive to boost the city's population to 100,000 by 1975. And it's working.

The local Chamber of Commerce is not generally a main advertiser, though. Local merchants and businessmen draw more economic power and prosperity to their town with each ad they run. Economic prosperity, once centralized, multiplies. Merchants who advertise draw more customers for more profit, and are able to advertise more in return.

The local level of circulation of money is easily related to a community's economic growth. Thus, in every growing community can be found a number of merchants who wisely invest in advertising. Sometimes advertisements help the town as much as they help the retailer directly.

That a town can gain 325 residents by spending only $5,000 is evidence of the drawing power of newspaper advertising. The town correctly assumed that additional advertising would bring multiplied results.

Governor Warren E. Hearnes has proclaimed May as Vehicle Safety-Check Month in Missouri. Governor Hearnes said in his proclamation that proper safety maintenance of motor vehicles can reduce accidents and reduce hazards on the streets and highways. He called upon every responsible citizen and community to join in this important traffic safety program.

The Motor Vehicle Safety-Check Program is being sponsored nationally by the Auto Industries Highway Safety Committee. The program is conducted primarily in states without a motor vehicle inspection law. It is voluntary. The Missouri State Highway Patrol is the coordinator of the national program in Missouri.

Mr. James F. Horton of the Ford Motor Company is currently working with the Patrol to coordinate the voluntary Safety-Check Program in Missouri. He is one of 22 special representatives on loan from automobile and tire industries for the purpose of promoting the program in those states that do not currently have motor vehicle inspection laws.

Last year over thirty-five thousand vehicles went through the safety-check lanes in Missouri. Nearly sixty-six hundred were found to be faulty, and better than nine thousand unsafe items were revealed.

Colonel E. L. (Mike) Hockaday, the Highway Patrol Superintendent, commenting on the importance of the Vehicle Safety-Check, said, "Keeping vehicles in safe operating condition is one phase of an over-all traffic safety program, and is an important part of our total effort to reduce highway accidents.

"We need the help of local groups and organizations to assist in promoting and conducting the voluntary Vehicle Safety-Check Program in Missouri," he declared.

"Any civic organization, school, church, fraternal group or any person interested in sponsoring a free motor vehicle inspection program in their community is urged to contact the State Highway Patrol Headquarters in their area," the Colonel concluded.

Accidents in the United States claimed 5,000 more lives in 1966 than in 1965, according to the statisticians. Last year's death toll was about 112,000, or some 20,000 more than five years ago.

The 1966 accidental death rate of 57 per 100,000 population was 4 percent over the rate for the previous year and 13 percent higher than in 1961.

The major reason for the upswing was the continuing rise in motor vehicle fatalities. The 53,000 persons who perished in motor vehicle accidents in 1966 outnumbered by 4,000 their counterparts of the year before. At 27 per 100,000, the 1966 death rate from motor vehicle accidents was by far the highest in a quarter of a century. Statisticians also estimated from preliminary data that the rate of accidental deaths per 100 million miles traveled was slightly above the 5.6 recorded in 1965.

Accidents in and about the home also accounted for a substantial portion of the rise. There were 29,000 such deaths in 1966, about 1,000 more than in 1965.

However, the death toll from catastrophes - accidents claiming five or more lives - was smaller in 1966 than a year ago. Although motor vehicle and water transportation catastrophes caused more deaths, this was offset by a smaller loss of life in tornadoes, civil and military aviation, hurricanes, floods, fires and explosions.

There were at least 71 motor vehicle catastrophes in 1966, taking more than 440 lives in all. These accounted for nearly half of all catastrophes and almost two-fifths of catastrophic deaths.

The past year saw six major catastrophes, each of which took more than 25 lives. The largest of these was the crash of a military chartered plane on April 22 in Oklahoma, causing 83 deaths. On March 3 tornadoes killed 57 persons in Mississippi and 1 in Alabama. A severe blizzard, also in March, claimed 28 lives in the northern Great Plains. On August 6 a scheduled plane plunged to earth in Nebraska and killed 42. Two tankers collided near Bayonne, New Jersey, in June, taking 33 lives; and the remaining disaster involved the sinking of a freighter on November 29 in Lake Huron, with 28 lives lost.

FREEDOM NEEDS YOU - #2

Apathy among our citizenry is a confederate of the enemy seeking to destroy our Freedom and this Republic. Doing for freedom is of the utmost importance. Following are some things you can do for Freedom. Start now!

Note the names of businessmen favoring freedom by advertising in patriotic papers or with patriotic programs on the air. Write, phone, or visit expressing your pleasure, admiration and appreciation for what they are doing. Inasmuch as "the customer (sometimes Queen) is always right," you will be certain to get results.

Get to know the freedomist members of the communications media. Nearly every publication, TV or radio station has at least one active patriot on its staff. Learn to spot them and encourage them. Alert them to news developments - which constitute good news for the cause of liberty.

For each 100,000 of the U.S. population there is one daily paper published. In communist countries the closest to the U.S. ratio is one paper for each 700,000 in Czechoslovakia; in Rumania the ratio is 1,400,000 population for one daily. In the USSR the ratio is one daily for each 4.7 million; and in Red China one daily for each 85 million. These are seldom published statistics, but newsmen will find them interesting in evaluating their means of livelihood in the event of takeover by freedom's enemies.

Learn to write an intelligent letter to the editor of 150 words or less favoring the Freedom side. Letters become a record for later study and research. Freedom has the distinct advantage of having the truth on its side and wins in the forum debate.

Encourage your friends to write a letter to the editor and be certain to commend others who write good letters as well as the newspaper which publishes it.

Any who have lost freedom would say, if they could, that it is too precious to take for granted. May we never learn that lesson the hard way!

NEW YORK (AP) — Ursula Andress, whose body is a poem, is having a love affair with life.

"I would like to be perfect," she said. "I would like to see the whole world, to know everything, to take full advantage of the beauty of the earth."

Ursula — her name means "little bear" -- is the Swiss-born miss who stepped to stardom in a tiny bikini as the romantic buddy of James Bond in "Dr. No."

In her latest film, "Casino Royale," based on another Ian Fleming spy fable, Ursula is cast as "the richest woman in the world," a role which appeals to her Swiss sense of thrift and which she would just as soon play in real life.

"I love beautiful things," she said frankly. "If I had a million dollars, I wouldn't be bored in my life. I would buy houses and paintings — and invest the rest, and make it a little more."

The honey-blonde actress, who has the kind of shape that haunts the dreams of hermits, doesn't particularly care to be regarded as a sex symbol. According to her studio form sheet, her mathematical measuremments are 37-22-35, and in her case figures certainly don't lie.

"I really don't know my dimensions," said Miss Andress. "Only my dressmaker knows them, I suppose. The rest is visual."

Although she has now made 13 pictures, Ursula has no ambition to wind up the dean of the film industry.

"I am a strong person, mentally and physically," she said. "I like to work, and work is good because it helps you to know and enjoy things, and it broadens your mind.

"But if I had enough security, I might want to do other things, such as decorating people's houses, or writing poems or playing the piano."

Ursula is divorced from actor John Derek and has been escorted recently by Jean Paul Belmondo, who also stars in "Casino Royale."

"But I am not engaged," she said. "I am not married. I am simply me. But I can never tell you whether I want to stay that way.

"I just want to live as much as I can. I feel I am born too late already. If it were possible, I would like to have done everything and known everybody. Time goes so fast."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- A secret meeting of California democratic congressmen has set up a political boycott of Bobby Kennedy. They decided Bobby would not be invited to address fund-raising dinners in California -- at least for the time being.

Behind the snub was indignation over Bobby's recent speeches on peace in Vietnam, which many California Democrats felt were a challenge to President Johnson's leadership and were splitting the democratic party wide open.

Rep. George Matler of Oakland was especially indignant; also Charles Wilson of Los Angeles and Chet Holifield of Montebello.

Rep. Ed Roybal of Los Angeles had suggested that Bobby be invited to an upcoming fund-raising democratic dinner. "He would be a good drawing card," he said.

This started the sparks flying.

"I certainly do not like the position he's taken against the President on Vietnam," declared Miller. "And I doubt he would be much of a drawing card right now. The chances are he wouldn't."

"I don't think he should be invited at all," snapped Wilson. "It would do great damage to the administration."

Roybal, George Brown of Monterey Park and Don Edwards of San Jose pointed to Bobby's contribution to the last campaign, but they were overruled.

So it looks as if Bobby would save himself some time and carfare traveling to the West Coast during the next few months.

ADAM'S SEAT

Sentiment on Capitol Hill is veering away from any showdown with the courts over Adam Clayton Powell. Congressmen talk big publicly about thumbing their nose at the courts, but privately they sing low. They don't want to put themselves in the same position of flouting the federal courts that Adam Powell is in with the New York courts.

Furthermore, most congressmen realize they made a serious error when they did not seat Powell first and kick him out later. The constitution is quite clear that they had no right to exclude him from taking a seat as long as he was 25 years old, had been a citizen of the United States for seven years, and was a resident of his state.

It's a foregone conclusion that Powell will be overwhelmingly reelected. When that happens on April 11 you can be sure congress will seat him -- then take some disciplinary action afterward.

It's long been the belief of congressional leaders that when a congressional district elects a representative, he should be seated. Even after Mayor Jim "the last hurrah" Curley of Boston was sent to the jug, he was later relected by the people of Boston. It was their choice, even though a bad one.

The action on Powell will doubtless be similar. Disciplinary action will come after he's seated.

BEHIND THE NEWS

Justice Abe Fortas, who as a member of the supreme court is supposed to keep distinctly aloof from the executive branch of the government, continues to dabble in executive matters. He's now pushing David Bress, U. S. Attorney in Washington, to be a federal judge. Bress kicked up a rumpus inside the Negro and Jewish communities when he came up for appointment to be U. S. Attorney. . . The best job of cross-examination during the Dodd hearings was done by Sen. Jim Pearson, Kansas Republican -- no kinship involved. . . Now that Charlie Bennett of Florida is within earshot of becoming chairman of the new House Ethics Committee, he's suddenly adopted an attitude of hear-no - evil, see - no - evil toward his fellow congressmen. Once hell - bent for scrutinizing unethical conduct, Charlie actually wrote to Leo B. Reed of Bradenton, Fla., regarding his colleague Rep. Mendel Rivers of South Carolina: "I have served on his committee 15 years and have never seen him take a drink or be under the influence." (Neither did the senators on the ethics committee ever see Tom Dodd sign checks to detour $175,000 of campaign funds to his personal account.). . . Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., gray, gaunt GOP leader, had to join AFTRA -- the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists -- before he could cut his oratorical disc. Ev is now a full-fledged member of the union. . . Though the United States brags about its baby care, Richard Schumaker, the AFL-CIO health expert, has shown that the United States has dropped from sixth to fourteenth among the nations of the world in infant mortality. . . Lafayette Park, facing the White House and a favorite spot for protest groups, would be renamed in honor of President Andrew Jackson if the congress adopts a proposal by Rep. Joe Evins of Tennessee. Andy was a great protester himself.

TWO SENATORS FROM CONNECTICUT

Sen. Abe Ribicoff, D-Conn., who ran the senate hearings on auto safety, castigated General Motors for hiring a private eye to investigate Ralph Nader, a senate witness. Ribicoff was so outraged that he hauled GM officials before his committee and gave them a tongue-lashing.

Yet what was wrong for General Motors was all right for the other senator from Connecticut. Tom Dodd hired Detective James Lynch to shadow and harrass witnesses before the Senate Ethics Committee. Lynch gave the impression he was a government investigator and badgered witnesses who refused to cooperate with him. He secured an affidavit from one witness by threatening to question her at the jail house. He boasted to another witness that he had managed to sneak into Jack Anderson's office, also rummage through his garbage.

Lynch even attended the first Dodd hearings and slipped notes to Dodd's attorneys. Ethics committee senators, unlike Ribicoff, kept silent.

Hoffa's Power Imprisoned With Him in Cell.

Thus, there will not be a national trucking strike at month's end -- which he "positively" planned when he brooded in the final hours before joining his old buddy Tony Provenzano over in Lewisburg.

For the first time now there comes authenticated word of his final strategy from at least two members of the Teamsters Brotherhood high command.

On March 31 he planned to pick the biggest of the van owners in Menlo Park, Calif., Chicago, New York and some key southern cities. By crippling their terminals and other transshipment points he could paralyze not only transcontinental haulage, but also considerable inter - and intra-community trucking.

This would have provoked the Trucking Employers, Inc., into locking out hundreds of thousands of non - striking teamsters. Transportation would have been strangled. Food, fuel and other vital freight would have clogged rail, dock and airport loading platforms and yards. The goverment would have had to move in -- and deal with him personally or through Taft - Hartley for many months.

To execute the strategy, however, Hoffa had to remain free till at least midnight, March 31.

At the same time he had dispatched one of the few men he believed he could trust to fly to Latin America for a personal conversation with the itinerant Supreme Court Justice Earl Warren. At that moment the jurist was in Bolivia.

Somehow the word of Hoffa's emissary got through and the envoy from "The Man" was told to save his breath and fare. The Chief Justice would do no such extraordinary thing as consult with such a courier -- especially one who was not a lawyer.

So Hoffa got free transportation to Lewisburg.

But, say several of those on the Teamsters International Executive Board, he still carried with him his one big hope -- that the contract negotiations involving 440,000 drivers and some 16,000 truckers, the lifeblood arteries of the nation, would blow geyser - high.

This would prove that even in today's mechanized America the transportation system could not function without "Hoffa" -- as he always refers to himself.

Then came the test. Would he be able to run the Teamsters from his cell?

He hasn't. He cannot communicate with his caretaker government now run by the 59-year - old "Fitz" (Frank Fitzsimmons). The acting president is not even on the approved list of prison visitors.

"Fitz", for his part is running some very businesslike, garden variety contract negotiations. The big issue -- as it is everywhere else -- is money. The rank and file want lots of it.

He is surrounded by lots of talent. And it can be quite accurately reported from within the sanctum that the name of Jimmy Hoffa rarely comes up.

There may be strikes -- selective ones -- if the bargaining goes the full length. One or two big transcontinental carriers -- affecting perhaps 25,000 big vans -- will be chosen and hit. Pickets will stream in front of all "barns".

But this will be pressure stragegy -- and not an effort to strangle the nation.

"Fitz" knows that the rest of the Teamsters high command is watching him. They want to see him act and react -- all alone -- under pressure.

They want to watch the lines of communication between Lewisburg, Detroit and Washington during the next 60 to 90 days. Those vice - presidents not involved in the direct negotiations are touring the country getting a reading. Then they'll act.

They're not certain of Fitz. But most of them are convinced that "Hoffa" is now only a footnote.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

EASTER

Easter will soon be here again. And, though few may know it, the theme of Easter is older than Christianity itself. In the modern world, it celebrates the Resurrection of Christ. But similar rites were held in times long before He lived. Rituals of rebirth, historians tell us, were common in the ancient civilizations.

Now Easter is greeted with sunrise services, and these date back to the medieval custom of praying while the sun begins its climb into the heavens. One legend holds that the rays of light which break through the clouds on Easter morning are angels dancing for joy. This is, indeed, a happy time - even as it is a time for thoughts of those aspects of life which go far beyond the mere material.

In many communities, elaborate Easter parades are held, and ladies appear in their new finery - a flamboyant Easter hat has become something of a tradition. And then there is one of the most charming of customs - the Easter egg hunt for children. Easter bunnies, the eager children are told, laid the eggs. And this, too, has its origins in antiquity - in pre-Christian times the rabbit was a symbol of abundant new life in the spring season.

Easter thus combines a rich mixture of laughter and solemnity. Both are good - both are needed by the soul of man. Let all enjoy this Easter - and, in enjoying it, pray that the spirit of He who was Resurrected from the dead will some day rule this world.

A MILK STRIKE THAT CAN'T BE WON

The supply of any commodity in relation to demand affects price. If N. E. O. dairy farmers choose to hold supplies off the market in an effort to increase prices, that is their right, even though it does seem a shame to waste good food. They do not have the right to prevent others from delivering milk.

It seems to us, however, that the milk strike is a futile effort for two principal reasons. First, not enough milk can be withheld from the market to increase prices, except, perhaps in specific local areas. Second, if we should concede that prices would be given a boost, the increases would bring additional production which would only mean that the government would have to buy more of the surplus.

Milk supply and demand were getting into a close balance in early 1966. In fact, government authorities feared that a shortage might develop because many farmers were either quitting the business or shifting to other farm enterprises. They were making a natural response to low prices.

The government raised price supports twice in 1966 and said that the current level ($4 per hundred pounds on milk used for manufacturing purposes) would be maintained until March, 1968.

Now there is no milk shortage. Production is greater than a year ago and with higher retail prices, consumption is down a little. The government supports milk prices by buying the surplus and taking it out of regular market channels. In January and February of this year, the government bought more surplus dairy products than in all of 1966. This suggests how much "dumping" the N. F. O. famers would have to do before they caused a shortage.

It is possible, but not probable, that the N. F. O. milk strike might induce the govment to raise support prices again. In that case, it is certain that production would rise further unless some sort of controls were invoked.

Certainly it is conceivable that farmers could reduce total milk production to a 'point where higher prices would be forced. But they could not force the market to take all the milk they would want to produce at the higher prices. This same situation would apply on any product, farm or otherwise.

The N. F. O. farmers, we fear, don't take this economic fact of life into consideration.

(Mike) Hockaday, the Highway Patrol Superintendent, commenting on the importance of the Vehicle Safety-Check, said, "Keeping vehicles in safe operating condition is one phase of an over-all traffic safety program, and is an important part of our total effort to reduce highway accidents.

"We need the help of local groups and organizations to assist in promoting and conducting the voluntary Vehicle Safety-Check Program in Missouri," he declared.

"Any civic organization, school, church, fraternal group or any person interested in sponsoring a free motor vehicle inspection program in their community is urged to contact the State Highway Patrol Headquarters in their area," the Colonel concluded.

Accidents in the United States claimed 5,000 more lives in 1966 than in 1965, according to the statisticians. Last year's death toll was about 112,000, or some 20,000 more than five years ago.

The 1966 accidental death rate of 57 per 100,000 population was 4 percent over the rate for the previous year and 13 percent higher than in 1961.

The major reason for the upswing was the continuing rise in motor vehicle fatalities. The 53,000 persons who perished in motor vehicle accidents in 1966 outnumbered by 4,000 their counterparts of the year before. At 27 per 100,000, the 1966 death rate from motor vehicle accidents was by far the highest in a quarter of a century. Statisticians also estimated from preliminary data that the rate of accidental deaths per 100 million miles traveled was slightly above the 5.6 recorded in 1965.

Accidents in and about the home also accounted for a substantial portion of the rise. There were 29,000 such deaths in 1966, about 1,000 more than in 1965.

However, the death toll from catastrophes - accidents claiming five or more lives - was smaller in 1966 than a year ago. Although motor vehicle and water transportation catastrophes caused more deaths, this was offset by a smaller loss of life in tornadoes, civil and military aviation, hurricanes, floods, fires and explosions.

There were at least 71 motor vehicle catastrophes in 1966, taking more than 440 lives in all. These accounted for nearly half of all catastrophes and almost two-fifths of catastrophic deaths.

The past year saw six major catastrophes, each of which took more than 25 lives. The largest of these was the crash of a military chartered plane on April 22 in Oklahoma, causing 83 deaths. On March 3 tornadoes killed 57 persons in Mississippi and 1 in Alabama. A severe blizzard, also in March, claimed 28 lives in the northern Great Plains. On August 6 a scheduled plane plunged to earth in Nebraska and killed 42. Two tankers collided near Bayonne, New Jersey, in June, taking 33 lives; and the remaining disaster involved the sinking of a freighter on November 29 in Lake Huron, with 28 lives lost.

FREEDOM NEEDS YOU - #2

Apathy among our citizenry is a confederate of the enemy seeking to destroy our Freedom and this Republic. Doing for freedom is of the utmost importance. Following are some things you can do for Freedom. Start now!

Note the names of businessmen favoring freedom by advertising in patriotic papers or with patriotic programs on the air. Write, phone, or visit expressing your pleasure, admiration and appreciation for what they are doing. Inasmuch as "the customer (sometimes Queen) is always right," you will be certain to get results.

Get to know the freedomist members of the communications media. Nearly every publication, TV or radio station has at least one active patriot on its staff. Learn to spot them and encourage them. Alert them to news developments - which constitute good news for the cause of liberty.

For each 100,000 of the U.S. population there is one daily paper published. In communist countries the closest to the U.S. ratio is one paper for each 700,000 in Czechoslovakia; in Rumania the ratio is 1,400,000 population for one daily. In the USSR the ratio is one daily for each 4.7 million; and in Red China one daily for each 85 million. These are seldom published statistics, but newsmen will find them interesting in evaluating their means of livelihood in the event of takeover by freedom's enemies.

Learn to write an intelligent letter to the editor of 150 words or less favoring the Freedom side. Letters become a record for later study and research. Freedom has the distinct advantage of having the truth on its side and wins in the forum debate.

Encourage your friends to write a letter to the editor and be certain to commend others who write good letters as well as the newspaper which publishes it.

Any who have lost freedom would say, if they could, that it is too precious to take for granted. May we never learn that lesson the hard way!

NEW YORK (AP) — Ursula Andress, whose body is a poem, is having a love affair with life.

"I would like to be perfect," she said. "I would like to see the whole world, to know everything, to take full advantage of the beauty of the earth."

Ursula — her name means "little bear" -- is the Swiss-born miss who stepped to stardom in a tiny bikini as the romantic buddy of James Bond in "Dr. No."

In her latest film, "Casino Royale," based on another Ian Fleming spy fable, Ursula is cast as "the richest woman in the world," a role which appeals to her Swiss sense of thrift and which she would just as soon play in real life.

"I love beautiful things," she said frankly. "If I had a million dollars, I wouldn't be bored in my life. I would buy houses and paintings — and invest the rest, and make it a little more."

The honey-blonde actress, who has the kind of shape that haunts the dreams of hermits, doesn't particularly care to be regarded as a sex symbol. According to her studio form sheet, her mathematical measurements are 37-22-35, and in her case figures certainly don't lie.

"I really don't know my dimensions," said Miss Andress. "Only my dressmaker knows them, I suppose. The rest is visual."

Although she has now made 13 pictures, Ursula has no ambition to wind up the dean of the film industry.

"I am a strong person, mentally and physically," she said. "I like to work, and work is good because it helps you to know and enjoy things, and it broadens your mind.

"But if I had enough security, I might want to do other things, such as decorating people's houses, or writing poems or playing the piano."

Ursula is divorced from actor John Derek and has been escorted recently by Jean Paul Belmondo, who also stars in "Casino Royale."

"But I am not engaged," she said. "I am not married. I am simply me. But I can never tell you whether I want to stay that way.

"I just want to live as much as I can. I feel I am born too late already. If it were possible, I would like to have done everything and known everybody. Time goes so fast."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- A secret meeting of California democratic congressmen has set up a political boycott of Bobby Kennedy. They decided Bobby would not be invited to address fund-raising dinners in California -- at least for the time being.

Behind the snub was indignation over Bobby's recent speeches on peace in Vietnam, which many California Democrats felt were a challenge to President Johnson's leadership and were splitting the democratic party wide open.

Rep. George Matler of Oakland was especially indignant; also Charles Wilson of Los Angeles and Chet Holifield of Montebello.

Rep. Ed Roybal of Los Angeles had suggested that Bobby be invited to an upcoming fund-raising democratic dinner. "He would be a good drawing card," he said.

This started the sparks flying.

"I certainly do not like the position he's taken against the President on Vietnam," declared Miller. "And I doubt he would be much of a drawing card right now. The chances are he wouldn't."

"I don't think he should be invited at all," snapped Wilson. "It would do great damage to the administration."

Roybal, George Brown of Monterey Park and Don Edwards of San Jose pointed to Bobby's contribution to the last campaign, but they were overruled.

So it looks as if Bobby would save himself some time and carfare traveling to the West Coast during the next few months.

ADAM'S SEAT

Sentiment on Capitol Hill is veering away from any showdown with the courts over Adam Clayton Powell. Congressmen talk big publicly about thumbing their nose at the courts, but privately they sing low. They don't want to put themselves in the same position of flouting the federal courts that Adam Powell is in with the New York courts.

Furthermore, most congressmen realize they made a serious error when they did not seat Powell first and kick him out later. The constitution is quite clear that they had no right to exclude him from taking a seat as long as he was 25 years old, had been a citizen of the United States for seven years, and was a resident of his state.

It's a foregone conclusion that Powell will be overwhelmingly reelected. When that happens on April 11 you can be sure congress will seat him -- then take some disciplinary action afterward.

It's long been the belief of congressional leaders that when a congressional district elects a representative, he should be seated. Even after Mayor Jim "the last hurrah" Curley of Boston was sent to the jug, he was later relected by the people of Boston. It was their choice, even though a bad one.

The action on Powell will doubtless be similar. Disciplinary action will come after he's seated.

BEHIND THE NEWS

Justice Abe Fortas, who as a member of the supreme court is supposed to keep distinctly aloof from the executive branch of the government, continues to dabble in executive matters. He's now pushing David Bress, U. S. Attorney in Washington, to be a federal judge. Bress kicked up a rumpus inside the Negro and Jewish communities when he came up for appointment to be U. S. Attorney. . . The best job of cross-examination during the Dodd hearings was done by Sen. Jim Pearson, Kansas Republican -- no kinship involved. . . Now that Charlie Bennett of Florida is within earshot of becoming chairman of the new House Ethics Committee, he's suddenly adopted an attitude of hear-no-evil, see-no-evil toward his fellow congressmen. Once hell-bent for scrutinizing unethical conduct, Charlie actually wrote to Leo B. Reed of Bradenton, Fla., regarding his colleague Rep. Mendel Rivers of South Carolina: "I have served on his committee 15 years and have never seen him take a drink or be under the influence." (Neither did the senators on the ethics committee ever see Tom Dodd sign checks to detour $175,000 of campaign funds to his personal account.). . . Sen. Everett Dirksen, R-Ill., gray, gaunt GOP leader, had to join AFTRA -- the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists -- before he could cut his oratorical disc. Ev is now a full-fledged member of the union. . . Though the United States brags about its baby care, Richard Schumaker, the AFL-CIO health expert, has shown that the United States has dropped from sixth to fourteenth among the nations of the world in infant mortality. . . Lafayette Park, facing the White House and a favorite spot for protest groups, would be renamed in honor of President Andrew Jackson if the congress adopts a proposal by Rep. Joe Evins of Tennessee. Andy was a great protester himself.

TWO SENATORS FROM CONNECTICUT

Sen. Abe Ribicoff, D-Conn., who ran the senate hearings on auto safety, castigated General Motors for hiring a private eye to investigate Ralph Nader, a senate witness. Ribicoff was so outraged that he hauled GM officials before his committee and gave them a tongue-lashing.

Yet what was wrong for General Motors was all right for the other senator from Connecticut. Tom Dodd hired Detective James Lynch to shadow and harrass witnesses before the Senate Ethics Committee. Lynch gave the impression he was a government investigator and badgered witnesses who refused to cooperate with him. He secured an affidavit from one witness by threatening to question her at the jail house. He boasted to another witness that he had managed to sneak into Jack Anderson's office, also rummage through his garbage.

Lynch even attended the first Dodd hearings and slipped notes to Dodd's attorneys. Ethics committee senators, unlike Ribicoff, kept silent.

Inside Labor

Hoffa's Power Imprisoned With Him in Cell.

Thus, there will not be a national trucking strike at month's end -- which he "positively" planned when he brooded in the final hours before joining his old buddy Tony Provenzano over in Lewisburg.

For the first time now there comes authenticated word of his final strategy from at least two members of the Teamsters Brotherhood high command.

On March 31 he planned to pick the biggest of the van owners in Menlo Park, Calif., Chicago, New York and some key southern cities. By crippling their terminals and other transshipment points he could paralyze not only transcontinental haulage, but also considerable inter - and intra-community trucking.

This would have provoked the Trucking Employers, Inc., into locking out hundreds of thousands of non-striking teamsters. Transportation would have been strangled. Food, fuel and other vital freight would have clogged rail, dock and airport loading platforms and yards. The goverment would have had to move in -- and deal with him personally or through Taft - Hartley for many months.

To execute the strategy, however, Hoffa had to remain free till at least midnight, March 31.

At the same time he had dispatched one of the few men he believed he could trust to fly to Latin America for a personal conversation with the itinerant Supreme Court Justice Earl Warren. At that moment the jurist was in Bolivia.

Somehow the word of Hoffa's emissary got through and the envoy from "The Man" was told to save his breath and fare. The Chief Justice would do no such extraordinary thing as consult with such a courier -- especially one who was not a lawyer.

So Hoffa got free transportation to Lewisburg.

But, say several of those on the Teamsters International Executive Board, he still carried with him his one big hope -- that the contract negotiations involving 440,000 drivers and some 16,000 truckers, the lifeblood arteries of the nation, would blow geyser - high.

This would prove that even in today's mechanized America the transportation system could not function without "Hoffa" -- as he always refers to himself.

Then came the test. Would he be able to run the Teamsters from his cell?

He hasn't. He cannot communicate with his caretaker government now run by the 59-year - old "Fitz" (Frank Fitzsimmons). The acting president is not even on the approved list of prison visitors.

"Fitz", for his part is running some very businesslike, garden variety contract negotiations. The big issue -- as it is everywhere else -- is money. The rank and file want lots of it.

He is surrounded by lots of talent. And it can be quite accurately reported from within the sanctum that the name of Jimmy Hoffa rarely comes up.

There may be strikes -- selective ones -- if the bargaining goes the full length. One or two big transcontinental carriers -- affecting perhaps 25,000 big vans -- will be chosen and hit. Pickets will stream in front of all "barns".

But this will be pressure stragegy -- and not an effort to strangle the nation.

"Fitz" knows that the rest of the Teamsters high command is watching him. They want to see him act and react -- all alone -- under pressure.

They want to watch the lines of communication between Lewisburg, Detroit and Washington during the next 60 to 90 days. Those vice - presidents not involved in the direct negotiations are touring the country getting a reading. Then they'll act.

They're not certain of Fitz. But most of them are convinced that "Hoffa" is now only a footnote.

DURING the Allied occupation of Vienna, a streetcar was passing through the American Zone of the city. The conductor, noticing a GI among the passenger, decided to provide a little entertainment for the Austrians on board. Every time the car passed an American installation, he would call out its name with an atrocious pseudo-American accent and then give its former Austrian title. "Silver Dollar Club, formerly Cafe' Goethe," "Yankee Sports Center, formerly Kolloseum Lichtispielhaus" and so on.

The GI paid no attention to the commentary or to the broad grins of his fellow passengers, but continued to read his Stars and Stripes. Just before reaching his stop, however, he stood up, turned to the occupants and in very passable German said politely, "Auf Widersehen, formerly Heil Hitler!"

Happy Easter Planned in Supermarkets

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK AP -- Dairymen are dumping milk in Idaho. A freeze has heavily damaged the peach crop in South Carolina and West Virginia. Heavy rains have left muddy fields in California. And blizzards have disrupted meat and produce shipments in the Northeast.

But it still should be a happy Easter in the supermarkets.

Wholesale food prices this week plunged the lowest since November 1965.

Ham is lower than a year ago. And egg prices are down again.

Pork prices have been dropping for months, but it may not last much longer. Hog farmers have begun to cut back production as a result of declining prices.

In Idaho, farmers seek a 26 percent increase in the amount they receive for their milk. If it were passed on to the housewife, milk prices could rise from 27 cents a quarter to 33 or 34 cents.

A weekend freeze destroyed at least half of South Carolina's $23-million peach crop and thinned buds in Georgia. A large part of the crop in West Virginia's eastern Panhandle may have been destroyed.

But a U.S. Department of Agriculture experimental station in Georgia reported that about 30 per cent of the original peach blooms remain -- enough for another bumper crop, barring another freeze.

Heavy rains have cut into the naval oranges in California, kept apricot growers from spraying, slowed tomato seeding, delayed the asparagus harvest and left coastal spinach fields too muddy to work.

But there are more fresh fruits and vegetables than there were a year ago when Florida suffered from a severe freeze. The main problem has been getting them to market through he spring snowdrifts in the North.

DURING the Allied occupation of Vienna, a streetcar was passing through the American Zone of the city. The conductor, noticing a GI among the passenger, decided to provide a little entertainment for the Austrians on board. Every time the car passed an American installation, he would call out its name with an atrocious pseudo-American accent and then give its former Austrian title. "Silver Dollar Club, formerly Cafe' Goethe," "Yankee Sports Center, formerly Kolloseum Lichtispielhaus" and so on.

The GI paid no attention to the commentary or to the broad grins of his fellow passengers, but continued to read his Stars and Stripes. Just before reaching his stop, however, he stood up, turned to the occupants and in very passable German said politely, "Auf Widersehen, formerly Heil Hitler!"

SOMETIMES the sprawling distances between the dependent - housing areas and the commissary on an Army post are as much as six miles. This can pose a problem if your soldier has left for duty in the family car. However, Sally, my next-door neighbor at Fort Campbell, Ky., was undaunted. Two or three times a week we'd hear the whir of a helicopter and watch enviously as Sally's pilot husband would hover over the front lawn and lower a basketful of groceries.

Happy Easter Planned in Supermarkets

By SALLY RYAN

NEW YORK AP -- Dairymen are dumping milk in Idaho. A freeze has heavily damaged the peach crop in South Carolina and West Virginia. Heavy rains have left muddy fields in California. And blizzards have disrupted meat and produce shipments in the Northeast.

But it still should be a happy Easter in the supermarkets.

Wholesale food prices this week plunged the lowest since November 1965.

Ham is lower than a year ago. And egg prices are down again.

Pork prices have been dropping for months, but it may not last much longer. Hog farmers have begun to cut back production as a result of declining prices.

In Idaho, farmers seek a 26 percent increase in the amount they receive for their milk. If it were passed on to the housewife, milk prices could rise from 27 cents a quarter to 33 or 34 cents.

A weekend freeze destroyed at least half of South Carolina's $23-million peach crop and thinned buds in Georgia. A large part of the crop in West Virginia's eastern Panhandle may have been destroyed.

But a U.S. Department of Agriculture experimental station in Georgia reported that about 30 per cent of the original peach blooms remain -- enough for another bumper crop, barring another freeze.

Heavy rains have cut into the naval oranges in California, kept apricot growers from spraying, slowed tomato seeding, delayed the asparagus harvest and left coastal spinach fields too muddy to work.

But there are more fresh fruits and vegetables than there were a year ago when Florida suffered from a severe freeze. The main problem has been getting them to market through he spring snowdrifts in the North.

The class S team last season had an all - senior lineup while the class M had two juniors who were selected for this year's squad. Buffalo's Chuck Williams and Valley Park's Sam Williams (no relation) were named.

Track Outlook

By Babe

Take your mark -- get set-- bang!! That's a few familiar words that will be harped many a time in the next two months.

Yep, that's right, the track season has gotten underway. The senior Bulldogs have been under strenuous workouts now for over a week preparing for the 1967 tilt.

The Dogs had had little opportunity to get out and really open up with their training. The weather has had them at a disadvantage. But now that it is getting warmer, the boys are getting a chance to loosen up and start preparing for their first meet, April 4, at Charleston. If the weather holds out, time trials will be run next week, to give the coach a chance to see how the squad is shaping up.

As in the past three years, the squad is under the supervision of Norman Lambert. This is Coach Lambert's third year as head coach. Coach Lambert is optimistic about the approaching season although his squad is much younger and more inexperienced than in previous years.

Returning lettermen for the 1967 cindermen are seniors Roger Blackman, Gary White, Eddie Hodges, and Allen Craig. John Childress is the only underclassmen returning.

Blackman is the team's leading high jumper and is one-quarter of an inch off the school record of six feet. The record is held by late "Horse" McClellan.

Craig holds the pole - vault record of 12 feet, which he set last season. White runs the 100-yard dash, Hodges throws the discus, and John Childress runs the open quarter and participates in the mile relay.

Coach Lambert has high hopes for the 880 - relay team. The team consists of three sophomores and a senior, Riley Gross, Dennis Snelling, Arthur Jackson, and Roger Blackman. The boys are shooting for the school record of one minute, 32.6 seconds set in 1963 by Dave Collier, Doug Johnson, Tom Critchlow, and Normal Howlett.

Tennis Squad Prepairing

By ARNIE

The high school tennis team is practicing diligently for its first match at Caruthersville April 5. Under the coaching of Earl Richmond, this year's squad gives signs of being much stronger than last year's team.

The top prospects as starters on this year's squad include seniors Bill Dickerson and Tom Phillips, and juniors Brad Crumpecker, Hank Lippert, Bob McCord, and Bucko Miller. Other boys fighting for top spots include Ron Hill, Tom Eaton, Alan Bryant, John Hough, and Jackie Spears.

Starting his second year as Sikeston's coach, Richmond says he believes that his boys are working hard, and, with most of last year's team returning, the state playoffs in May could be rewarding for the squad.

76ers Even Playoffs

CINCINNATI (AP) — "Their game strategy was obvious with the first play and that was with Wilt going to the basket. At that point we knew what we were in for," Coach Jack McMahon of the Cincinnati Royals said quietly.

What the Royals were in for was a dazzling one-man show as Wilt Chamberlain poured in 37 points to lead Philadelphia to a 123-102 victory that evened the National Basketball Association's best-of-5 Eastern Division playoffs at 1-1 Wednesday night.

Chamberlain scored the 76ers' first basket to tie the score and the Royals never went ahead. Wilt also pulled down 27 rebounds and was credited with 11 assists as the 76ers avenged their series-opening upset in Wednesday's only playoff game.

"Wilt showed why he should be recognized as the greatest player in the history of the game," Coach Alex Hannum said in the 76ers dressing room.

"We also tried to key in on (Oscar) Robertson a little more tonight and since Wally Jones is smaller we tried to shift other men on him too."

"We've got two tough ball clubs, but I feel Philadelphia is physically stronger than the Royals," said Hannum. "I would like to play them again tomorrow (Thursday) instead of Friday."

Over in the Royals' dressing room, McMahon said it was not just a matter of strength.

"I was not at all surprised at their going to Wilt," he said. "We knew what to expect. We just didn't play well enough.

"You know, I know and all the rest know that Philadelphia plays zone defense at least partially and the basic adjustment against zone defense is to move the ball. In the final analysis, it was the shooting that killed us."

Robertson scored 29 points to lead the Royals and Connie Dierking — the star of Tuesday night's game — added 21, plus 17 rebounds. Hal Greer scored 28 for Philadelphia.

The class S team last season had an all - senior lineup while the class M had two juniors who were selected for this year's squad. Buffalo's Chuck Williams and Valley Park's Sam Williams (no relation) were named.

CONGRATULATIONS.....ALL-STATERS

Today's All-State team features 30 of the state's top high school basketball players and we Southeast Missouri basketball fans, are mighty proud of our four athletes named to the team as well as those who received special mention.

Out of almost 6,000 boys throughout the state who participated in basketball...You...are one of the members of the "cream of the crop".... That's a mighty big honor.

Southeast Missouri was fortunate to have such outstanding athletes this past season.....

Remember...The boys named to today's All-State team not only had to excel on the floor... but most important of all...had to burn "that midnight oil" a few nights to keep their outstanding scholastic records in order to participate in sports....These athletes will most likely go on to college.

Southeast Missouri can be proud of these boys... Congratulations...On a job well done....On the floor and in the classroom.....

DEVIL RETIRES BULB

Our little devil retired his lightbulb for this season and will be looking forward to trying to call the games beginning with football in the Fall.....

He send his regards to the ball players and teams in the area and hopes that all will follow him in the coming campaign.

WHY NOT BROOKS

Charles Brooks...the district's most prolific scorer and top guard to come out of the area in years was not named to the state's all state team!!!!!

Yes! Brooks earned berths on the all-class M, New Madrid county, and all-district squads this past season and was the top vote getter in each... but somehow he failed to prove himself throughout the state and therefore failed by one vote to place on the team.

In my mind and I am sure in many others... Charles is the area's best athlete in basketball to come out of the area this season and deserved the honor of all-state.....

He's all-state in my book and in many others.... The only thing...He's not on the list compiled by sportscasters and broadcasters and therefore will have to settle for special mention...

He's a great gentleman and ranked 10th in his senior class scholastically...We say he's all-state....but others didn't....

Sorry.....Chuck.

By ED SCHUYLER Jr.
Associated Press Sports Writer

Frankly speaking they were grand sights for Baltimore fans — those two balls soaring over the fence at Sarasota, Fla.

They were the first home runs of the exhibition season for Frank Robinson, and they came on consecutive times at bat Wednesday in the Orioles' 5-4, 10-inning victory over Chicago.

Robinson, who has been quietly rounding into shape since underdoing knee surgery during the off season, only played four innings, but it was long enough to give opposing American League pitchers an early start toward a good case of the jitters.

Chicago tied the game at 4-4 on rookie Bill Voss' two-run single in the eighth, and then Baltimore won it on two wild pitches by Danny Lazar and Dave Johnson's single.

Two players St. Louis is counting heavily on had a big day in the Cardinal' 7-2, victory over the New York Mets at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Roger Maris got three singles and a double and scored four times, and Orlando Cepeda collected a single, double and two-run homer. Maris had collected only four hits in 10 previous exhibition games. Ron Swoboda hit a two-run homer for the Mets.

In other games, Cincinnati outslugged Philadelphia 10-6, Houston edged Atlanta 4-3, Pittsburgh nipped Kansas City 2-1, Boston downed the New York Yankees 5-2, Washington topped Detroit 6-4, Los Angeles trounced Minnesota 15-2, California defeated the Chicago Cubs 5-2 and Cleveland walloped San Francisco 14-5.

Vada Pinson and Lee May paced Cincinnati's 16-hit attack at Tampa, Fla., with home runs. Philadelphia managed only three hits — doubles by Tony Gonzalez and Grant Jackson and Johnny Callison's homer.

Meanwhile, at the Phillies' camp at Clearwater, Fla., owner Bob Carpenter announced that Manager Gene Mauch's contract has been extended through 1968.

Norm Miller's two-out, two-strike homer in the last of the ninth lifted Houston past Atlanta at Cocoa, Fla. John Hoffman hit a two-run homer for Atlanta.

Bill Mazeroski singled home both Pittsburgh runs, the second one in the top of the ninth, in the Pirates' victory over Kansas City. The A's scored off Dennis Ribant, who pitched the first five innings. Jim Shellenback worked the last four for the Pirates.

KO's Folley

Cassius Ends Bout In Seventh

Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Heavyweight champion Cassius Clay has finished off the last of a list of fighters who could be called — with kindness — contenders with his seventh-round knockout of Zora Folley.

Argentina's Oscar Bonavena will be the next sacrificial lamb for the super-fast, invincible champion. The match will be in Tokyo, May 27, unless Clay's legal appeal for a stay from Army induction April 11 is rejected.

Folley, the 34-year-old, No. 1 contender, was knocked out when the supremely confident Clay, or Muhammad Ali as he prefers, decided he wanted to pull the trigger on Wednesday night.

The end came at 1:48 of the seventh round from a chopping right to the jaw. Another right had dropped the bloody-nosed veteran for nine in the fourth round.

These were the highlight rounds of a bout that became one-sided when Clay decided the time had become ripe to open up in the third round. Before that he danced around the ring, virtually conceding the first two rounds to the plodding, methodical challenger.

Folley was a prohibitive 7-1 long shot for his first shot at the title. What odds against Oscar? 100 to 1?

"There is no one around today who can beat him," said Folley in an interview in the Garden's basement after the fight. "I know, I've fought them all.

"All I remember of the end of the fight was a right--right on the chin. After that I just don't remember."

Clay heatedly denied, in answer to a question, that he had carried Folley.

"I was not carrying him," he said. "He was a better fighter than Sonny Liston, or Floyd Patterson or Ernie Terrell.

He was slick, tricky and a good boxer."

When Clay came after im, Folley fought back like a wounded tiger. Although he may still have been dazed, he instinctively fired back with both hands, and a hard right sent Clay to the ropes.

"He hurt me with that punch," said Clay, superbly fit at 211½ pounds over his 6-foot-3 frame. Folley weighed 202½.

Clay started chopping away in the next two rounds with streams of left jabs to the bleeding nose and the lump under Folley's left eye. He didn't let go with the big punch.

But in the seventh Folley scored with a good right to the head that brought a roar from the crowd of 13,780. The roar had barely died down when Clay let loose with his finishing right that dropped Folley for the second and last time.

CONGRATULATIONS.....ALL-STATERS

Today's All-State team features 30 of the state's top high school basketball players and we Southeast Missouri basketball fans, are mighty proud of our four athletes named to the team as well as those who received special mention.

Out of almost 6,000 boys throughout the state who participated in basketball...You...are one of the members of the "cream of the crop".... That's a mighty big honor.

Southeast Missouri was fortunate to have such outstanding athletes this past season.....

Remember...The boys named to today's All-State team not only had to excel on the floor... but most important of all...had to burn "that midnight oil" a few nights to keep their outstanding scholastic records in order to participate in sports....These athletes will most likely go on to college.

Southeast Missouri can be proud of these boys... Congratulations...On a job well done....On the floor and in the classroom.....

Minimum Wage Bill Clears Committee

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- The House Labor Committee Wednesday approved a bill establishing a state minimum wage of $1.25 an hour.

The measure exempts those employed in agriculture, domestic service, in executive, administrative or professional capacity, by the government-national, state or local-and by educational, charitable, religious or non-profit organizations where service is on a volunteer basis.

The committee, which had heard arguments on the bill earlier, took only a few minutes to approve the bill.

Copeland Tells of Remap Problem

NEW MADRID -- State Rep. Fred E. "Gene" Copeland of New Madrid, says that he believes it is unjust to expect any legislator to properly represent citizens of both highly industralized and almost totally agricultural geographican districts such as the City of St. Louis and Southeast Missouri.

He made that belief known in a talk to the New Madrid County Farm Bureau.

Copeland had been appointed chairman of the Missouri house congressional redistricting committee by Speaker James Godfrey.

Copeland explained the need for another redistricting of Missouri and expressed his opinion on the manner in which it should be accomplished.

He promised the Farm Bureau members attending the meeting that he and his committee would "strive to seek an equitable and unbiased solution to this very difficult situation" -- the complete redistricting of Missouri to form a one-man, one-vote situation that will meet standards set up by the United States supreme court.

Humane Official Says Few Animals Given At Easter Survive

ST. LOUIS (AP) -- Few of the cute baby chicks, ducklings and rabbits parents buy their children for Easter survive, the manager of the Humane Society of Missouri said today.

Don Anthony said adults who take these animals home are exposing them to almost certain death or painful injury at the hands of children.

Anthony estimated only about one in 10 easter gift animals survive children and the environment of the home.

A St. Louis ordinance forbids the sale of chicks and ducklings in lots of less than 12 and requires rabbits under six weeks old be sold with the mother, but the law does not always work, Anthony said.

I was coming home early one evening on a Milwaukee bus. The bus driver was urging the passengers to move to the rear, but was havng little success. Finally, in desperation, he shouted, "Fill up the back, just like you do in church!"

Marie Gregoire.

A schoolteacher friend of mine in Virginia received a form letter from a loan company that began, "Because you are a teacher you can borrow $100 to $1000 by mail."

His reply began, "Perhaps I can borrow this money because I am a teacher, but I couldn't pay it back for the same reason."

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) -- The House Labor Committee Wednesday approved a bill establishing a state minimum wage of $1.25 an hour.

The measure exempts those employed in agriculture, domestic service, in executive, administrative or professional capacity, by the government-national, state or local-and by educational, charitable, religious or non-profit organizations where service is on a volunteer basis.

The committee, which had heard arguments on the bill earlier, took only a few minutes to approve the bill.

Copeland Tells of Remap Problem

NEW MADRID -- State Rep. Fred E. "Gene" Copeland of New Madrid, says that he believes it is unjust to expect any legislator to properly represent citizens of both highly industralized and almost totally agricultural geographican districts such as the City of St. Louis and Southeast Missouri.

He made that belief known in a talk to the New Madrid County Farm Bureau.

Copeland had been appointed chairman of the Missouri house congressional redistricting committee by Speaker James Godfrey.

Copeland explained the need for another redistricting of Missouri and expressed his opinion on the manner in which it should be accomplished.

He promised the Farm Bureau members attending the meeting that he and his committee would "strive to seek an equitable and unbiased solution to this very difficult situation" -- the complete redistricting of Missouri to form a one-man, one-vote situation that will meet standards set up by the United States supreme court.

Humane Official Says Few Animals Given At Easter Survive

ST. LOUIS (AP) -- Few of the cute baby chicks, ducklings and rabbits parents buy their children for Easter survive, the manager of the Humane Society of Missouri said today.

Don Anthony said adults who take these animals home are exposing them to almost certain death or painful injury at the hands of children.

Anthony estimated only about one in 10 easter gift animals survive children and the environment of the home.

A St. Louis ordinance forbids the sale of chicks and ducklings in lots of less than 12 and requires rabbits under six weeks old be sold with the mother, but the law does not always work, Anthony said.

I was coming home early one evening on a Milwaukee bus. The bus driver was urging the passengers to move to the rear, but was havng little success. Finally, in desperation, he shouted, "Fill up the back, just like you do in church!"

Marie Gregoire.

A schoolteacher friend of mine in Virginia received a form letter from a loan company that began, "Because you are a teacher you can borrow $100 to $1000 by mail."

His reply began, "Perhaps I can borrow this money because I am a teacher, but I couldn't pay it back for the same reason."

The Story on China Today: Nobody Knows the Truth

By LEON DENNEN
Foreign News Analyst
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(N E A)—The only truth about the developments in Red China is that nobody in the West or East really knows the whole truth.

Winston Churchill once said of Communist Russia that it was "a riddle wrapped in a mystery inside an enigma." But historic events took a new turn in the last three decades. Today it is China that is the great enigma while even Russia has become, by comparison, a relatively open society.

Thus, much of what has been written by the China watchers from Hong Kong and Tokyo has been discredited by subsequent events. Much that is reported today could become obsolete tomorrow.

Like Russia in the 1930s, China is, from all outside appearances, still suffering from the childhood diseases of revolution which afflict every developing nation at one time or another. That these diseases are still virulent in Red China 17 years after its coming into the world political arena is by no means a unique phenomenon.

Stalin's blood purges took place some 20 years after the Communists seized power in Russia. It took another two decades before the Soviet Communist party reached a point where it is being run, at least for the present, by what seems to be a stable leadership.

TROUBLE IS BREWING in Red China, but outsiders can't be sure just what's happening.

The underlying reason for the current convulsions in China seems to be Mao Tse-tung's fear of letting his revolution lose its real Marxist-Leninist fervor and deteriorate into a revisionistic and gradualistic revolution.

The victory of revisionism in Russia and eastern Europe has at least provided the argument for the necessity of maintaining a permanent revolution within China itself.

This plan might seem quixotic to outsiders. But for men brought up on violent revolution the deterioration of violence into graduality and flexibility could well-appear as a collapse of their entire r e v o l u t i o n a r y endeavor.

However confusing the crisis in China—with the constant seesawing of personalities—may appear from the outside, it is becoming increasingly clear that the crux of the whole matter is a bitter conflict between dogmatic Marxism-Leninism and the forces of pragmatism and moderation.

Judged by the Russian precedent, the Chinese conflict is likely to remain unresolved for many years. But should Mao's and Lin Piao's die-hards emerge as the victors it would mean a long reign of terror in China with more purges and greater retribution. There would also be a very real danger of the regime e m b a r k i n g on military adventures, in India for instance, to divert attention from domestic misery.

On the other hand, the cool-headed pragmatic modernizers may prevail. They would certainly wish to stimulate economic development and build a modern, effective and highly technical army. They would also be more friendly to revisionist ideas and much less hostile towards Russia.

The likelihood that the great Red rivals will agree to reconcile their political and territorial differences may be slight, but it should not be excluded. A reconciliation, or even a truce between Russia and China would immeasurably strengthen the forces of communism throughout the world.

Whatever the o u t c o m e of the present turmoil in China, it is sure to have a radical effect on the world political situation. No matter which faction ultimately wins, there will be little cause for the Free World to rejoice.

Missouri Newspaper History

Missouri has a long history of unusual newspaper names.

THE UNTERRIFIED DEMOCRAT, Linn, 1866, named by Col. Lebbeus Zevely in defiance of "Drake's Constitution." Fiercely opposed to "carpet bag government," Zevely told a Union general to "go to hell" and continued his newspaper in support of Southern cause. Still published by Zevely family.

THE ILLMO JIMPLICUTE, named after mythical animal of Ozark folklore. Ozarkians used legend of the roaming "jimplicute" to frighten naughty children. Jimplicute still published in Illmo.

Other interesting newspaper names of Missouri's past:

'BLACKBOARDS' have already given way to green slate in many of today's schools, but now the green may even be replaced by a white chalkboard. Built of glass for use with colored chalk, it can double as a projection screen. The board, made of a new product called white nucite, is guaranteed to last for the life of the building.

Equality: The Level of Mediocrity

MOST of us are conscious of the fact that the world contains multitudes of men who are far abler than ourselves. Far from making us jealous or unhappy, we are e x c e e d i n g l y g r a t e f u l for them. We enjoy great music, but we could not write it, as Beethoven, Bach, Brahms, Chopin, T c h a i k o v s k y, Schubert, Mozart, Verdi and a host of others have done. We can play a few instruments, but not like Liszt, Paderewski, Kreisler, Heifetz, Rubinstein and many other immortals who have brought heaven down to earth with their superb excellence.

Our libraries are filled with good books, the treasuries of history, literature and culture. We take great delight in reading Shakespeare's plays and Tennyson's poetry, but we could not have written such marvelous works. We are fortunate that they could. Suppose we had no great minds such as these! How fortunate that we can ride along with them, enjoying their creations as if they were our own. Why should we be jealous of them? Rather we should be thankful and pay tribute to them.

Our devotion and spiritual perception is vastly inferior to that of a Saint Paul, a Saint Francis of Assisi, a Saint Augustine or a Saint Thomas Aquinas, but we can soar up into the heavens on the spiritual power generated by a host of saints and prophets.

We enjoy our automobile, riding about the world in jet planes, our radio, television, and stereophonic music. We could not have developed the great industrial giants of our country that have lifted the burden of toil from our backs and emancipated us from the handicraft age into a degree of luxury unknown by kings a few centuries ago, but we can enjoy the results of the efforts of the great men who created these things for our enjoyment.

When taking a loved one to the hospital, who wants a common, average surgeon? We all want a doctor, not only with superior skill, but a conscientious, honorable man whom we know has spent many long years developing the knowledge and skill required to save the life of the dear one we entrust to his care.

We don't want equality. If there were no men in this world superior to ourselves, no men capable of earning more than we earn, no men capable of preaching finer sermons, organizing greater businesses, developing greater skill in medicine, in the arts and in literature, and no men of great devotion or spiritual insight, it would be a poor, drab world in which to live. Let us have done with the cult of the common man and begin to recognize and appreciate worth, talent, ability and devotion wherever we find it. Gifted men have carried the world forward on their shoulders. Whatsoever progress we have made, we owe to them. Let us acknowledge it and be grateful for it, and not try to clip their wings and reduce them to the level of mediocrity.

But should Mao's and Lin Piao's die-hards emerge as the victors it would mean a long reign of terror in China with more purges and greater retribution. There would also be a very real danger of the regime embarking on military adventures, in India for instance, to divert attention from domestic misery.

On the other hand, the cool-headed pragmatic modernizers may prevail. They would certainly wish to stimulate economic development and build a modern, effective and highly technical army. They would also be more friendly to revisionist ideas and much less hostile towards Russia.

The likelihood that the great Red rivals will agree to reconcile their political and territorial differences may be slight, but it should not be excluded. A reconciliation, or even a truce between Russia and China would immeasurably strengthen the forces of communism throughout the world.

Whatever the outcome of the present turmoil in China, it is sure to have a radical effect on the world political situation. No matter which faction ultimately wins, there will be little cause for the Free World to rejoice.

Missouri Newspaper History

Missouri has a long history of unusual newspaper names.

THE UNTERRIFIED DEMOCRAT, Linn, 1866, named by Col. Lebbeus Zevely in defiance of "Drake's Constitution." Fiercely opposed to "carpet bag government," Zevely told a Union general to "go to hell" and continued his newspaper in support of Southern cause. Still published by Zevely family.

THE ILLMO JIMPLICUTE, named after mythical animal of Ozark folklore. Ozarkians used legend of the roaming "jimplicute" to frighten naughty children. Jimplicute still published in Illmo.

Other interesting newspaper names of Missouri's past:

'BLACKBOARDS' have already given way to green slate in many of today's schools, but now the green may even be replaced by a white chalkboard. Built of glass for use with colored chalk, it can double as a projection screen. The board, made of a new product called white nucite, is guaranteed to last for the life of the building.

Equality: The Level of Mediocrity

MOST of us are conscious of the fact that the world contains multitudes of men who are far abler than ourselves. Far from making us jealous or unhappy, we are exceedingly grateful for them. We enjoy great music, but we could not write it, as Beethoven, Bach, Brahms, Chopin, Tchaikovsky, Schubert, Mozart, Verdi and a host of others have done. We can play a few instruments, but not like Liszt, Paderewski, Kreisler, Heifetz, Rubinstein and many other immortals who have brought heaven down to earth with their superb excellence.

Our libraries are filled with good books, the treasuries of history, literature and culture. We take great delight in reading Shakespeare's plays and Tennyson's poetry, but we could not have written such marvelous works. We are fortunate that they could. Suppose we had no great minds such as these! How fortunate that we can ride along with them, enjoying their creations as if they were our own. Why should we be jealous of them? Rather we should be thankful and pay tribute to them.

Our devotion and spiritual perception is vastly inferior to that of a Saint Paul, a Saint Francis of Assisi, a Saint Augustine or a Saint Thomas Aquinas, but we can soar up into the heavens on the spiritual power generated by a host of saints and prophets.

We enjoy our automobile, riding about the world in jet planes, our radio, television, and stereophonic music. We could not have developed the great industrial giants of our country that have lifted the burden of toil from our backs and emancipated us from the handicraft age into a degree of luxury unknown by kings a few centuries ago, but we can enjoy the results of the efforts of the great men who created these things for our enjoyment.

When taking a loved one to the hospital, who wants a common, average surgeon? We all want a doctor, not only with superior skill, but a conscientious, honorable man whom we know has spent many long years developing the knowledge and skill required to save the life of the dear one we entrust to his care.

We don't want equality. If there were no men in this world superior to ourselves, no men capable of earning more than we earn, no men capable of preaching finer sermons, organizing greater businesses, developing greater skill in medicine, in the arts and in literature, and no men of great devotion or spiritual insight, it would be a poor, drab world in which to live. Let us have done with the cult of the common man and begin to recognize and appreciate worth, talent, ability and devotion wherever we find it. Gifted men have carried the world forward on their shoulders. Whatsoever progress we have made, we owe to them. Let us acknowledge it and be grateful for it, and not try to clip their wings and reduce them to the level of mediocrity.

REMEMBER EXPLORER I, the first satellite launched by the United States? It is still clinging tenaciously to space, just as another explorer, Girl Scout Diana Crawford of Huntsville, Ark., is clinging to a model of the space vehicle here. Diana was born on the same day Explorer I was launched—Jan. 31, 1958. The model shown here is on display at the space flight center at Huntsville.

Total expenditures for all state and local government welfare functions, says Tax Foundation's Fiscal Outlook for State and Local Government to 1975, may reach $17 billion by 1975 or an estimated $79 per person. The chart shows the actual per capita rise in welfare spending 1948-65, the rise if 1948-61 trends continued, and the projected rise to 1975.

A MUSICAL WEDDING is scheduled to take place between singers Eddie Fisher and Connie Stevens. Connie received her ring backstage at a New York theatre, where she is starring in "Star Spangled Girl." Both are awaiting divorce decrees—Eddie's a technical one from Liz Taylor, who divorced him more than two years ago.

Subterranean Sailors

They may look like a couple of sailors who took a wrong turn, but these are airmen with a job concerned with air defense. Task of this vessel and crew is to sail the waters of and inspect the reservoirs inside a mountain near Colorado Springs, Colo., that houses the North American Air Defense Command's underground combat operations center. The subterranean reservoirs, blasted out of the rock of the granite mountain, can store more than five million gallons of water for human consumption, as well as for use in cooling the power plant and in the air conditioning and heating systems. It is part of the resources in the self-sufficient complex that makes it possible for the population of the aerospace defense command post to button up and operate and survive in event of an attack. The New Knits: Fresh As Springtime Breeze

KNITS HAVE BECOME A WAY OF LIFE. And when they are made in Italy for the American figure they are handsome as well as practical. Three-part beige knit costume (left) has belted jacket over a side-pleated skirt and a diagonally striped shell in beige, white and bright orange with a side tie. Bright green wool knit with high turtleneck (right) has a tortoise and gold link belt that rides low and loose. These are from the spring collection of Francesca for Damon.

The New Knits: Fresh As Springtime Breeze

KNITS HAVE BECOME A WAY OF LIFE. And when they are made in Italy for the American figure they are handsome as well as practical. Three-part beige knit costume (left) has belted jacket over a side-pleated skirt and a diagonally striped shell in beige, white and bright orange with a side tie. Bright green wool knit with high turtleneck (right) has a tortoise and gold link belt that rides low and loose. These are from the spring collection of Francesca for Damon.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE NIFTY MAYOR

When it came to politics, Gentleman George could dodge an issue with all the aplomb of a bullfighter. His agility in dodging the Internal Revenue Service, however, left something to be desired with the result that he was shipped off to jail after being convicted of income tax evasion.

Upon his release, George fell right back into the swing of things. He ran for mayor, kissed a few babies of all ages and won the election without even having to breathe hard. And, to make his comeback complete, the governor restored to him all the rights he had lost by virtue of his conviction.

The city council, on the other hand, was less than forgiving. In fact, they refused to recognize him as mayor.

"But I won the election," George protested, "and the governor restored my rights. You've got to recognize me as mayor."

"No we don't," responded the councilmen." To hold office in this state, a person must be a citizen and a qualified voter. Since you were convicted of a federal offense, only the President can restore your citizenship and the right to hold office. Until the governor becomes President, he had no right to do either!"

George then demanded in court that the city council be ordered to recognize him as mayor.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you crown George as mayor?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! He held that since a state determines who can vote and who can hold office within the state, the governor had the authority to restore George's rights. Furthermore, the judge added, a criminal is not deprived of his state or national citizenship when he is convicted of a crime, except in the case of treason, He merely loses certain of his rights, such as voting and holding office, as prescribed by statute.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I am an Information Operator for the telephone company. For years I have read the pet gripes of others in your column, and now I want to air mine.

You would not believe the abuse an Information Operator takes from the public in a normal day's work. To begin with, we are available for a special service. Most people who call information are too lazy to look up the number, so we are doing them a favor.

Is it unreasonable to expect the person calling to know the correct spelling of the name he is inquiring about? You'd be surprised at the people who become nasty when questioned. Also, they get belligerent when asked for an address or a first name or initial. I have had women as well as men use obscene language and shout such things as "Hurry up you ignorant broad. I don't have all day!"

Since everyone reads your column, will you kindly print my letter and ask your readers this question: "When you last asked Information to help you, were you courteous?"

-GOODBYE CENTRAL

Dear Central: From now on I'm going to be extra polite to "Information". Thanks for the reminder.

Dear Ann Landers: When our 19-year-old soldier son was home on leave recently he asked me to unpack his suitcase. I was warned against throwing away any papers that might be important.

When I went through his suitcase I was sick at what I found. His girl friend had sent him a stack of unbelievably filthy pictures.

I am a woman in my forties and I did not know such dirty stuff existed.

I was so upset I took the pictures, slipped them into a magazine and hid it.

Our son has left for camp and I have the pictures. Now I don't know what to do with them. Should I send them to him with a note of apology? I want him to know I know what kind of a girl he is going with. Your opinion is needed. -- FINDERS WEEPERS

Dear Finders: There's a law against sending pornography in the mail so you MUST keep the pictures until your son comes home. Then, tell him how you happen to have the pictures and say no more. Your silence will speak far more eloquently than anything you could say.-

Dear Ann Landers: My husband asked for a divorce 11 months ago so he could marry another woman. It nearly killed me but I agreed.

He did not marry the woman but he still sees her, I am told. His visiting day to see our children is Sunday but he has been coming over two evenings during the week after the children are in bed. He still cares for me, Ann, and I'm ashamed to tell you that I am putty in his hands.

I get awfully disgusted with myself for being so weak but I am helpless. Please advise. -- STILL LOVE HIM

Dear Still: If you want him back for keeps you'll have to add some cement to that putty. Tell him he is not welcome to drop in unexpectedly. If he does, don't let him in the house. Be sure to have a neighbor or relative present on his "visiting day." If he REALLY cares for you he will be unable to tolerate the frustration and he'll let you know it.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex and How To Tell The Difference." Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your present.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mr. C. L. Blanton, Jr., Editor
Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Mr. Blanton:

Enclosed you will find a mimeographed copy of a letter which we received from the Director of Nursing at Missouri Baptist Hospital in St. Louis. She speaks in glowing terms of the graduates of our two-year college nursing program. We thought you would like to see this.

Very truly yours,
Mark Scully
President

Dr. Helen Kinney, Head
School of Nursing
Southeast Missouri State College
Cape Girardeau, Missouri

Dear Dr. Kinney:

We have had four of the 1966 graduates of your nursing program on our staff for approximately six months and I just want to let you know how very fortunate we feel we are to have them. They are: Alice McCann, Sandra Krokroskia, Patricia Wyckoff and Janet Maurer.

If these nurses are a sample of what your program produces, I would be most happy if you would send all of your graduates to us! I feel we have gained a great deal from them -- an understanding of the associate degree nurse has been a very important part of our gain. Our experience with graduates of the associate degree program, prior to last September, was limited to one person from a St. Louis program. She, also, was an exceptional person.

These nurses have been most receptive to guidance. They have been very conscious of what their role is and have stayed very much in the patient area. They were placed on a 50-bed division with 1966 graduates of our own school. They were all placed on the same unit for two reasons: 1) we were in the final stages of opening the last two nursing units in our new facility and I felt the usual settling-down process of a new unit could be frustrating to an "old" nurse, not to mention a brand new one. . . .therefore, the support the four of them could give each other seemed wise (this point seemed to prove itself as the weeks passed); and 2) the head nurse on this unit is excellent with staff development and would be the best one to whom these nurses should be assigned (this point also proved itself).

Miss Maurer and Miss Wyckoff are the most congenial and get along well with patients and personnel. Miss Krokroskia has a very keen mind and approaches assignments very seriously. Miss McCann is quiet, but thorough. They have all felt the pressure of assignments at times but have handled things quite well. Their basic understanding of patient care is good and, with continued supervision, will no doubt deepen. They have adjusted well to the stress and strain of a new environment and have sought help.

This week, the four of them will be separated. They seem to need to be independent of each other and we believe this change will be a maturing process for them. They will remain in the med-surg areas, but will be on different units.

We admit we have a long way to go to develop our inservice education to its fullest; however, we have seen the real value of giving concentrated supervision and guidance to new graduates and feel our efforts have been rewarded.

I do hope you will be able to visit us sometime. Perhaps on your next visit to St. Louis you could arrange your schedule to allow time for lunch with us and a tour of our new facility. I would appreciate your letting me know if this could be done.

Sincerely,
(Miss) Joan O. Walsh, R.N.

Rep. Tony Heckemeyer Reports

JEFFERSON CITY - This week the legislature was working at a pretty good clip in anticipation of an Easter recess which will start Wednesday, March 22nd at noon. All of the appropriation bills were passed by the House and sent to the Committee. The total amount of money that the state will spend this year is in excess of $1 billion, but the good thing about it, in Missouri, we cannot spend more money than we have. Therefore, deficit finance does not exist and we can pay our bills as we go. These bills must now go to the Senate and will probably be changed somewhat before their final passage.

The senate reapportionment committee reported out the reapportionment bill "do pass" Monday afternoon. The 10th district will not have to take Jefferson county, but instead will be composed of Oregon, Howell, Shannon, Iron, Reynolds, Carter, Ripley, St. Francios, Madison, Wayne, Butler, St. Genevieve, Perry, Bollinger, Cape Girardeau, Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Dunklin and Pemiscot Counties. This is very good, as it will preserve the political identity of the 10th District and will allow the representative to better able represent the feelings of a homogeneous group of people. I anticipate this will be the new 10th District.

Other bills of interest:

House bill 47 was perfected which will allow Old Age Assistance people to live with their relatives and still draw their Old Age Assistance benefits. Of all the welfare programs we have to consider this year, this is probably one of the better bills, although it is rather expensive. It will cost approximately Five and One Half Million Dollars a year, which is about one-third of the cost of the program, the federal government paying the rest. This will allow old folks to live and retain some of their self-sufficiency and pride.

House bill 84 was passed which greatly stiffens the penalty for misuse of a telephone. Anyone who uses vulger, profane, obscene or indecent language or knowlingly permits someone to use their telephone in such a manner with the intent to harass, annoy or intimidate another can be guilty for punishment up to one year and a fine of $1,000. The telephone companies now inform us that they have very efficient means of discovering who these offenders are due to new electronic equipment now in their possession. Although, the person who is the victim of this type caller must still report to the telephone company and ask them for such surveillance as it is necessary to trap the guilty.

House bill 311 was passed which provides that all public buildings from now on in the State of Missouri will be built in such a manner that the handicapped will have easy access and use. This means the building of ramps for wheel chairs and certain toilet facilities necessary for handicapped people.

A controversial bill was perfected this morning which will allow the unemployed father to remain in the home while the family draws assistance. The man must register with the Employment Security Division and accept any work offered him. Also he must make himself available for retraining where possible or he forfeits said money.

A good clarifying bill, house bill 324, was perfected which should clear up the existing problem concerning when sales tax should be charged for certain agriculture chemicals used in crop production. The present law has been very vague in that it states tax will be exempt when chemicals are used on a growing crop, but no one has ever been able to clearly define what a growing crop is or when it starts to grow. This clearly defines what a growing crop is or when it starts to grow. This new law proposed would exempt all such chemicals used in connection with the growth and production of crop applied before, during or after planting.

Two good bills were perfected, 160 and 161, which will require haulers of material which may become dislodged and fall on the highway, to tarp or cover their trucks. This will cover people hauling gravel and other things which might break windshields, headlights, etc. Also, big trucks will be required to have mid flaps. This bill is probably 25 years too late, but will be a welcome addition to the statutes of Missouri.

House bill 320 passed which will make it a felony for a person to willfully set a forest fire in the State of Missouri.

A bill which would greatly increase the penalty and protect the people from polution of streams and waters was passed today. This also is a welcome addition into our law.

House bill 245 was passed. It allows a municipality to sell or dispose of property acquired with the proceeds of revenue bonds. This should be a great help to small communities in attracting industries to their areas.

Shifts in Patrol Command Coming

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) Two Highway Patrol troop commanders will retire soon and two lieutenants are being promoted to captain to succeed them.

Col. E. I. Mike Hockaday, patrol superintendent, made the announcement Wednesday.

On April 30 Capt. C. R. Oliver will retire as commander of Troop I at Rolla, a job he has held since 1961. Lt. A.H. Leslie, stationed at Rolla since 1957, will be promoted to captain to succeed him.

On June 1, Capt. P.M. Inman, one of the original members of the patrol, will retire as commander of Troop H at St. Joseph. Lt. R.D. Davis, now at Lee's Summit, will be promoted to captain to succeed him.

THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO BETTER DRIVING

With 74 million private cars registered in America, everyone is now talking about building safety into the cars, yet few seem to be concerned with building safety into the driver, particularly women drivers. And there are over 40 million women drivers in the United States and Canada.

This comment was made today by Julie Candler, one of the country's foremost women authorities on automobiles in connection with the announcement that Mrs. Candler's views on women drivers had been expanded into a book.

The work is "Woman at the Wheel," published today by Paperback Library of New York. The book, filled with helpful advice, is priced at 75 cents.

Mrs. Candler, who lives in Detroit, the center of the automotive industry, remarked that women demonstrate their capacity to be good organizers and good managers each day as they run their homes and their families.

"Most women don't know the difference between a spark plug and a carburetor, yet hundreds of thousands of women join the ranks of new car drivers every year," she said. "They really want to know, but no one has taken the trouble to tell them."

Mrs. Candler began taking the trouble to tell them several years ago when she began writing a column of advice for women drivers for The Birmingham (Mich.) Eccentric, a weekly.

Since then, she has written several national magazine articles on the same subject and is the authority on driving for the 7,000,000 readers of "Woman's Day."

"The question women ask me most is 'Why do we have to change oil so often?,' " Mrs. Candler added. I usually answer that it's for the same reason you don't wash clothes in dirty water. By the time the car is due for an oil change, the goo in the oil causes the engine to run sluggishly. This goo is loaded with carbon, gum and acids which, of course, cause wear, tear and repair.

"Every woman should know more about her car, safety for her family, how to save on insurance, how to cut down on repairs and how to lay down the law to teen-age drivers."

One of the 1,001 money-saving and life-preserving tips in the book is the sound advice concerning high speed driving on a long trip. Says Mrs. Candler, "Before a long trip, have four to six pounds of extra pressure (depending on manufacturer's recommendation) pumped into the tires. Many flats at high speeds are caused because tire pressure was not increased to handle the extra load."

Stoddard Drama Meet at Dexter

DEXTER - The Stoddard county drama meet will be next Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Dexter high school auditorium.

O Son of God, our Leader, ever let our eyes look unto Thee, for Thou hast trod the way before us, and cannot fail us on the road ahead. At every turning point of our lives lead us in the right way, that we may follow it joyfully in Thy Name and in Thy strength. Amen.

FOLDER TELLS CONSUMERS HOW TO USE GRADES

If you find it difficult to judge quality in the foods you buy, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has help for you.

This help comes in a folder issued by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service, the agency responsible for federal grading of farm foods.

"How to Use USDA Grades in Buying Food," shows the official grade marks used on meat, eggs, poultry, dairy products, fruits and vegetables. It explains what the grades mean for each of these products and gives tips on how to buy food by grade.

In addition, the publication explains that C&MS also inspects foods for wholesomeness. It shows the official inspection marks used on meat and poultry products and reminds "Look for the inspection mark for assurance of wholesomeness. Look for the grade mark to tell the quality."

Learning to recognize the grade mark and knowing what it means can help you to know more about what you are buying, to compare prices of foods in different stores, and to get the most for your money.

Single copies of "How to Use USDA Grades in Buying Foods" (PA-708) may be obtained by postcard request from the Office of Information, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250. Please include your zipcode in your return address.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE NIFTY MAYOR

When it came to politics, Gentleman George could dodge an issue with all the aplomb of a bullfighter. His agility in dodging the Internal Revenue Service, however, left something to be desired with the result that he was shipped off to jail after being convicted of income tax evasion.

Upon his release, George fell right back into the swing of things. He ran for mayor, kissed a few babies of all ages and won the election without even having to breathe hard. And, to make his comeback complete, the governor restored to him all the rights he had lost by virtue of his conviction.

The city council, on the other hand, was less than forgiving. In fact, they refused to recognize him as mayor.

"But I won the election," George protested, "and the governor restored my rights. You've got to recognize me as mayor."

"No we don't," responded the councilmen." To hold office in this state, a person must be a citizen and a qualified voter. Since you were convicted of a federal offense, only the President can restore your citizenship and the right to hold office. Until the governor becomes President, he had no right to do either!"

George then demanded in court that the city council be ordered to recognize him as mayor.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you crown George as mayor?

This is how the judge ruled: Yes! He held that since a state determines who can vote and who can hold office within the state, the governor had the authority to restore George's rights. Furthermore, the judge added, a criminal is not deprived of his state or national citizenship when he is convicted of a crime, except in the case of treason. He merely loses certain of his rights, such as voting and holding office, as prescribed by statute.

ANN LANDERS Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: I am an Information Operator for the telephone company. For years I have read the pet gripes of others in your column, and now I want to air mine.

You would not believe the abuse an Information Operator takes from the public in a normal day's work. To begin with, we are available for a special service. Most people who call information are too lazy to look up the number, so we are doing them a favor.

Is it unreasonable to expect the person calling to know the correct spelling of the name he is inquiring about? You'd be surprised at the people who become nasty when questioned. Also, they get belligerent when asked for an address or a first name or initial. I have had women as well as men use obscene language and shout such things as "Hurry up you ignorant broad. I don't have all day!"

Since everyone reads your column, will you kindly print my letter and ask your readers this question: "When you last asked Information to help you, were you courteous?"

-GOODBYE CENTRAL

Dear Central: From now on I'm going to be extra polite to "Information". Thanks for the reminder.

Dear Ann Landers: When our 19-year-old soldier son was home on leave recently he asked me to unpack his suitcase. I was warned against throwing away any papers that might be important.

When I went through his suitcase I was sick at what I found. His girl friend had sent him a stack of unbelievably filthy pictures.

I am a woman in my forties and I did not know such dirty stuff existed.

I was so upset I took the pictures, slipped them into a magazine and hid it.

Our son has left for camp and I have the pictures. Now I don't know what to do with them. Should I send them to him with a note of apology? I want him to know I know what kind of a girl he is going with. Your opinion is needed. -- FINDERS WEE PERS

Dear Finders: There's a law against sending pornography in the mail so you MUST keep the pictures until your son comes home. Then, tell him how you happen to have the pictures and say no more. Your silence will speak far more eloquently than anything you could say.-

Dear Ann Landers: My husband asked for a divorce 11 months ago so he could marry another woman. It nearly killed me but I agreed.

He did not marry the woman but he still sees her, I am told. His visiting day to see our children is Sunday but he has been coming over two evenings during the week after the children are in bed. He still cares for me, Ann, and I'm ashamed to tell you that I am putty in his hands.

I get awfully disgusted with myself for being so weak but I am helpless. Please advise. -- STILL LOVE HIM

Dear Still: If you want him back for keeps you'll have to add some cement to that putty. Tell him he is not welcome to drop in unexpectedly. If he does, don't let him in the house. Be sure to have a neighbor or relative present on his "visiting day." If he REALLY cares for you he will be unable to tolerate the frustration and he'll let you know it.

How will you know when the real thing comes along? Ask Ann Landers. Send for her booklet "Love Or Sex and How To Tell The Difference." Send 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your present.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mr. C. L. Blanton, Jr., Editor
Daily Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Mr. Blanton:

Enclosed you will find a mimeographed copy of a letter which we received from the Director of Nursing at Missouri Baptist Hospital in St. Louis. She speaks in glowing terms of the graduates of our two-year college nursing program. We thought you would like to see this.

Very truly yours,
Mark Scully

Dr. Helen Kinney, Head
School of Nursing
Southeast Missouri State College
Cape Girardeau, Missouri

Dear Dr. Kinney:

We have had four of the 1966 graduates of your nursing program on our staff for approximately six months and I just want to let you know how very fortunate we feel we are to have them. They are: Alice McCann, Sandra Krokroskia, Patricia Wyckoff and Janet Maurer.

If these nurses are a sample of what your program produces, I would be most happy if you would send all of your graduates to us! I feel we have gained a great deal from them -- an understanding of the associate degree nurse has been a very important part of our gain. Our experience with graduates of the associate degree program, prior to last September, was limited to one person from a St. Louis program. She, also, was an exceptional person.

These nurses have been most receptive to guidance. They have been very conscious of what their role is and have stayed very much in the patient area. They were placed on a 50-bed division with 1966 graduates of our own school. They were all placed on the same unit for two reasons: 1) we were in the final stages of opening the last two nursing units in our new facility and I felt the usual settling-down process of a new unit could be frustrating to an "old" nurse, not to mention a brand new one. . . .therefore, the support the four of them could give each other seemed wise (this point seemed to prove itself as the weeks passed); and 2) the head nurse on this unit is excellent with staff development and would be the best one to whom these nurses should be assigned (this point also proved itself).

Miss Maurer and Miss Wyckoff are the most congenial and get along well with patients and personnel. Miss Krokroskia has a very keen mind and approaches assignments very seriously. Miss McCann is quiet, but thorough. They have all felt the pressure of assignments at times but have handled things quite well. Their basic understanding & patient care is good and, with continued supervision, will no doubt deepen. They have adjusted well to the stress and strain of a new environment and have sought help.

This week, the four of them will be separated. They seem to need to be independent of each other and we believe this change will be a maturing process for them. They will remain in the med-surg areas, but will be on different units.

We admit we have a long way to go to develop our inservice education to its fullest; however, we have seen the real value of giving concentrated supervision and guidance to new graduates and feel our efforts have been rewarded.

I do hope you will be able to visit us sometime. Perhaps on your next visit to St. Louis you could arrange your schedule to allow time for lunch with us and a tour of our new facility. I would appreciate your letting me know if this could be done.

Sincerely,
(Miss) Joan O. Walsh, R.N.

Rep. Tony Heckemeyer Reports

JEFFERSON CITY - This week the legislature was working at a pretty good clip in anticipation of an Easter recess which will start Wednesday, March 22nd at noon. All of the appropriation bills were passed by the House and sent to the Committee. The total amount of money that the state will spend this year is in excess of $1 billion, but the good thing about it, in Missouri, we cannot spend more money than we have. Therefore, deficit finance does not exist and we can pay our bills as we go. These bills must now go to the Senate and will probably be changed somewhat before their final passage.

The senate reapportionment committee reported out the reapportionment bill "do pass" Monday afternoon. The 10th district will not have to take Jefferson county, but instead will be composed of Oregon, Howell, Shannon, Iron, Reynolds, Carter, Ripley, St. Francois, Madison, Wayne, Butler, St. Genevieve, Perry, Bollinger, Cape Girardeau, Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi, New Madrid, Dunklin and Pemiscot Counties. This is very good, as it will preserve the political identity of the 10th District and will allow the representative to better able represent the feelings of a homogeneous group of people. I anticipate this will be the new 10th District.

Other bills of interest:

House bill 47 was perfected which will allow Old Age Assistance people to live with their relatives and still draw their Old Age Assistance benefits. Of all the welfare programs we have to consider this year, this is probably one of the better bills, although it is rather expensive. It will cost approximately Five and One Half Million Dollars a year, which is about one-third of the cost of the program, the federal government paying the rest. This will allow old folks to live and retain some of their self-sufficiency and pride.

House bill 84 was passed which greatly stiffens the penalty for misuse of a telephone. Anyone who uses vulger, profane, obscene or indecent language or knowlingly permits someone to use their telephone in such a manner with the intent to harass, annoy or intimidate another can be guilty for punishment up to one year and a fine of $1,000. The telephone companies now inform us that they have very efficient means of discovering who these offenders are due to new electronic equipment now in their possession. Although, the person who is the victim of this type caller must still report to the telephone company and ask them for such surveillance as it is necessary to trap the guilty.

House bill 311 was passed which provides that all public buildings from now on in the State of Missouri will be built in such a manner that the handicapped will have easy access and use. This means the building of ramps for wheel chairs and certain toilet facilities necessary for handicapped people.

A controversial bill was perfected this morning which will allow the unemployed father to remain in the home while the family draws assistance. The man must register with the Employment Security Division and accept any work offered him. Also he must make himself available for retraining where possible or he forfeits said money.

A good clarifying bill, house bill 324, was perfected which should clear up the existing problem concerning when sales tax should be charged for certain agriculture chemicals used in crop production. The present law has been very vague in that it states tax will be exempt when chemicals are used on a growing crop, but no one has ever been able to clearly define what a growing crop is or when it starts to grow. This clearly defines what a growing crop is or when it starts to grow. This new law proposed would exempt all such chemicals used in connection with the growth and production of crop applied before, during or after planting.

Two good bills were perfected, 160 and 161, which will require haulers of material which may become dislodged and fall on the highway, to tarp or cover their trucks. This will cover people hauling gravel and other things which might break windshields, headlights, etc. Also, big trucks will be required to have mid flaps. This bill is probably 25 years too late, but will be a welcome addition to the statutes of Missouri.

House bill 320 passed which will make it a felony for a person to willfully set a forest fire in the State of Missouri.

A bill which would greatly increase the penalty and protect the people from polution of streams and waters was passed today. This also is a welcome addition into our law.

House bill 245 was passed. It allows a municipality to sell or dispose of property acquired with the proceeds of revenue bonds. This should be a great help to small communities in attracting industries to their areas.

Shifts in Patrol Command Coming

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) Two Highway Patrol troop commanders will retire soon and two lieutenants are being promoted to captain to succeed them.

Col. E. I. Mike Hockaday, patrol superintendent, made the announcement Wednesday.

On April 30 Capt. C. R. Oliver will retire as commander of Troop I at Rolla, a job he has held since 1961. Lt. A.H. Leslie, stationed at Rolla since 1957, will be promoted to captain to succeed him.

On June 1, Capt. P.M. Inman, one of the original members of the patrol, will retire as commander of Troop H at St. Joseph. Lt. R.D. Davis, now at Lee's Summit, will be promoted to captain to succeed him.

THE COMPLETE GUIDE TO BETTER DRIVING

With 74 million private cars registered in America, everyone is now talking about building safety into the cars, yet few seem to be concerned with building safety into the driver, particularly women drivers. And there are over 40 million women drivers in the United States and Canada.

This comment was made today by Julie Candler, one of the country's foremost women authorities on automobiles in connection with the announcement that Mrs. Candler's views on women drivers had been expanded into a book.

The work is "Woman at the Wheel," published today by Paperback Library of New York. The book, filled with helpful advice, is priced at 75 cents.

Mrs. Candler, who lives in Detroit, the center of the automotive industry, remarked that women demonstrate their capacity to be good organizers and good managers each day as they run their homes and their families.

"Most women don't know the difference between a spark plug and a carburetor, yet hundreds of thousands of women join the ranks of new car drivers every year," she said. "They really want to know, but no one has taken the trouble to tell them."

Mrs. Candler began taking the trouble to tell them several years ago when she began writing a column of advice for women drivers for The Birmingham (Mich.) Eccentric, a weekly.

Since then, she has written several national magazine articles on the same subject and is the authority on driving for the 7,000,000 readers of "Woman's Day."

"The question women ask me most is 'Why do we have to change oil so often?,' " Mrs. Candler added. I usually answer that it's for the same reason you don't wash clothes in dirty water. By the time the car is due for an oil change, the goo in the oil causes the engine to run sluggishly. This goo is loaded with carbon, gum and acids which, of course, cause wear, tear and repair.

"Every woman should know more about her car, safety for her family, how to save on insurance, how to cut down on repairs and how to lay down the law to teen-age drivers."

One of the 1,001 money-saving and life-preserving tips in the book is the sound advice concerning high speed driving on a long trip. Says Mrs. Candler, "Before a long trip, have four to six pounds of extra pressure (depending on manufacturer's recommendation) pumped into the tires. Many flats at high speeds are caused because tire pressure was not increased to handle the extra load."

Stoddard Drama Meet at Dexter

DEXTER - The Stoddard county drama meet will be next Thursday at 7 p.m. in the Dexter high school auditorium.

O Son of God, our Leader, ever let our eyes look unto Thee, for Thou hast trod the way before us, and cannot fail us on the road ahead. At every turning point of our lives lead us in the right way, that we may follow it joyfully in Thy Name and in Thy strength. Amen.

FOLDER TELLS CONSUMERS HOW TO USE GRADES

If you find it difficult to judge quality in the foods you buy, the U.S. Department of Agriculture has help for you.

This help comes in a folder issued by USDA's Consumer and Marketing Service, the agency responsible for federal grading of farm foods.

"How to Use USDA Grades in Buying Food," shows the official grade marks used on meat, eggs, poultry, dairy products, fruits and vegetables. It explains what the grades mean for each of these products and gives tips on how to buy food by grade.

In addition, the publication explains that C&MS also inspects foods for wholesomeness. It shows the official inspection marks used on meat and poultry products and reminds "Look for the inspection mark for assurance of wholesomeness. Look for the grade mark to tell the quality."

Learning to recognize the grade mark and knowing what it means can help you to know more about what you are buying, to compare prices of foods in different stores, and to get the most for your money.

Single copies of "How to Use USDA Grades in Buying Foods" (PA-708) may be obtained by postcard request from the Office of Information, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250. Please include your zipcode in your return address.

Hearnes Explains Criticism

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today that his recent criticism of federal programs and legislation was not and "has not been directed at the President or the office of the President of the United States."

He stated his position in a talk this morning before the Jasper County Democratic Committee.

"I have been criticized for my stand against certain federal programs and the press has made it appear that I was attacking the President," he said. "This is not so."

He added that the states "faltered years ago, turning to the federal government to solve problems and my stand is that the states should solve their own problems."

The Missouri chief executive said in 1950 there were 13 federal grants - in - aid programs while today there are 220.

"This crusade of mine is simply this — as long as I believe the programs from Washington are for the benefit of the people of this state I will work for them," he said. "But, if they do not benefit our citizens I will fight them."

"No one wants Missouri to secede from the Union," he added, "but if the federal legislation continues in its previous pattern we would have no state government."

The governor said in recent meetings with the President and other high government officials, it was indicated that closer relations will be established between the states and the federal government. More control by the states will be forthcoming, including supervision of federal programs, he said.

On the subject of highways the governor said the only alternatives for future road construction in the state are toll roads or an increase of at least 3-1/2 cents in the state gasoline tax.

He indicated that present support of toll road legislation looks good, but proponents will have a fight on their hands in the General Assembly.

The governor has often spoken of plans for a toll road from near Kansas City south to the Arkansas line between Joplin and Springfield.

"If we're not successful in getting toll road legislation now our children will not see much change in the present highways when they grow up," he declared.

At one point, he said he had been told by engineers that to construct a four-lane road using the present U.S. 71 from Harrisonville to the Arkansas line would take 39 months at leas-

Earlier, in the day, Republican leaders set a goal of $5 billion to $6 billion in spending reductions for next year and singled out such things as rent subsidies, the war on poverty, the Teachers Corps and some phases of the foreign-aid program as potential targets.

In the Senate, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's renewed call for cutbacks in U.S. troops levels in Europe drew support from freshman Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.

Percy said, "It's time we adjust our position in Europe to the changing facts of life," and cited lessened East-West tension, a stronger European economy and the U.S. balance of payments deficit.

committee. Woolsey said the Senate situation is a little better because the Senate committees give the go-ahead to bills sponsored by Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Both said the governor's budget was out of line. King said his studies showed the state will have a surplus of around $75 million in 1968 instead of the $25 million estimated by the budget office.

King also called the Senate's congressional redistricting bill a monstrosity — "a brazen attempt to bust up any chance to have a Negro congressman from St. Louis."

Woodsey charged the governor has spent money on political patronage agencies instead of trying to meet the state's real needs. He said the state is "reaching the point of no return" in taxing property.

As the House worked overtime before going on vacation it passed and sent to the Senate a batch of bills including ones to:

Set up a state safety commission after deleting a provision for a state fire marshal.

Allow cities to sell industrial development plants built with bond issues.

Make it a misdemeanor to harass with profane or threatening phone calls.

Increase state aid for memorial hospitals from $10,000 to $25,000.

The House will come back to work April 5.

ence in Washington, one after another rose to complain about prices for wheat, feed grains, milk and other dairy products, beef cattle, rice. Many felt the government could do more to bolster prices if it wanted to.

Democrats and Republicans agree the situation foreshadows trouble for the administration, a battle in Congress and a key conflict in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Recalling past election oratory in Grange halls and corn fields, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., observed: "I think a politician who goes around the country now telling farmers they never had it so good will be rebuffed."

There is no agreement on the depth and scope of the farm problem. Some contend it is a temporary matter of overproduction, the recurring bugaboo of the American agriculture cornucopia.

Others see a crisis -- with the only solution higher prices in the market place, sure to bring down the wrath of the housewife.

Is Victory Worth It?

Even in Alley Oop's Bone Age there was an attempt to be civilized. When King Guz tried to make peace-loving people out of the defeated Neanderthals he found the problems of peace were as big as the logistics of war. How he settled his problems is now being told in the comic strip

Hearnes Explains Criticism

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes said today that his recent criticism of federal programs and legislation was not and "has not been directed at the President or the office of the President of the United States."

He stated his position in a talk this morning before the Jasper County Democratic Committee.

"I have been criticized for my stand against certain federal programs and the press has made it appear that I was attacking the President," he said. "This is not so."

He added that the states "faltered years ago, turning to the federal government to solve problems and my stand is that the states should solve their own problems."

The Missouri chief executive said in 1950 there were 13 federal grants - in - aid programs while today there are 220.

"This crusade of mine is simply this — as long as I believe the programs from Washington are for the benefit of the people of this state I will work for them," he said. "But, if they do not benefit our citizens I will fight them."

"No one wants Missouri to secede from the Union," he added, "but if the federal legislation continues in its previous pattern we would have no state government."

The governor said in recent meetings with the President and other high government officials, it was indicated that closer relations will be established between the states and the federal government. More control by the states will be forthcoming, including supervision of federal programs, he said.

On the subject of highways the governor said the only alternatives for future road construction in the state are toll roads or an increase of at least 3-1/2 cents in the state gasoline tax.

He indicated that present support of toll road legislation looks good, but proponents will have a fight on their hands in the General Assembly.

The governor has often spoken of plans for a toll road from near Kansas City south to the Arkansas line between Joplin and Springfield.

"If we're not successful in getting toll road legislation now our children will not see much change in the present highways when they grow up," he declared.

At one point, he said he had been told by engineers that to construct a four-lane road using the present U.S. 71 from Harrisonville to the Arkansas line would take 39 months at leas[illegible]

Earlier, in the day, Republican leaders set a goal of $5 billion to $6 billion in spending reductions for next year and singled out such things as rent subsidies, the war on poverty, the Teachers Corps and some phases of the foreign-aid program as potential targets.

In the Senate, Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield's renewed call for cutbacks in U.S. troops levels in Europe drew support from freshman Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill.

Percy said, "It's time we adjust our position in Europe to the changing facts of life," and cited lessened East-West tension, a stronger European economy and the U.S. balance of payments deficit.

committee. Woolsey said the Senate situation is a little better because the Senate committees give the go-ahead to bills sponsored by Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes.

Both said the governor's budget was out of line. King said his studies showed the state will have a surplus of around $75 million in 1968 instead of the $25 million estimated by the budget office.

King also called the Senate's congressional redistricting bill a monstrosity — "a brazen attempt to bust up any chance to have a Negro congressman from St. Louis."

Woodsey charged the governor has spent money on political patronage agencies instead of trying to meet the state's real needs. He said the state is "reaching the point of no return" in taxing property.

As the House worked overtime before going on vacation it passed and sent to the Senate a batch of bills including ones to:

Set up a state safety commission after deleting a provision for a state fire marshal.

Allow cities to sell industrial development plants built with bond issues.

Make it a misdemeanor to harass with profane or threatening phone calls.

Increase state aid for memorial hospitals from $10,000 to $25,000.

The House will come back to work April 5.

ence in Washington, one after another rose to complain about prices for wheat, feed grains, milk and other dairy products, beef cattle, rice. Many felt the government could do more to bolster prices if it wanted to.

Democrats and Republicans agree the situation foreshadows trouble for the administration, a battle in Congress and a key conflict in the 1968 presidential campaign.

Recalling past election oratory in Grange halls and corn fields, Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., observed: "I think a politician who goes around the country now telling farmers they never had it so good will be rebuffed."

There is no agreement on the depth and scope of the farm problem. Some contend it is a temporary matter of overproduction, the recurring bugaboo of the American agriculture cornucopia.

Others see a crisis -- with the only solution higher prices in the market place, sure to bring down the wrath of the housewife.

McNutt Will Study High Rate of Burns

NEW MADRID -- Gary McNutt has been named field representative of the county health department to work on the burn injury program in New Madrid and Pemiscot counties, David Townsend, administrator of the New Madrid office announced today.

McNutt is conducting a study of deaths and injuries due to a burn in order to determine the cause of such a high incident rate in this area.

After the causes have been determined, educational programs will be developed to reduce death and injury from burns.

New Madrid and Pemiscot are among six Southeast Missouri counties with death rates from burns ranging from two to four times the state's rate. The other four counties are Mississippi, Scott, Stoddard and Butler.

McNutt will need to interview every person who receives a burn of any significance. Persons who have received a burn since the first of January, are asked to contact the office. Information will be held in confidence and coded for statistical information.

No Evidence of Junior College Backlash

GIDEON -- There is no evidence of a backlash against high school superintendents and school board members who are opposing the Bootheel junior college proposal, according to James Fletcher of Gideon.

Fletcher, president of the Gideon board of education and chairman of a large group of citizens opposed to the junior college, said today that the junior college steering committee is grasping for straws in its efforts to sell the public on something that they don't want to buy.

"The Bootheel isn't ready to finance a junior college, because most of the school districts already are in dire need of more money," said Fletcher. "Our educators understand this problem and are speaking out now before it is too late," he said.

Fletcher said that 30 cents tax increase doesn't sound like much, but it opens the door for more increases later. He said that state and federal aid is also misleading----"Who pays the taxes to provide the state and federal aid?"

"I do not understand a state department of education that advocates fewer high school districts and more and more junior college districts," said Fletcher. "If we have to support two or three junior colleges in the Bootheel when one would be sufficient, we will never get our secondary schools upgraded."

Fletcher said that the junior college steering committee is being unfair by singling out school officials as being the only ones opposed to the proposal. "Our committee is composed of people from all walks of life and there has never been one iota of pressure put on school teachers or officials to be for or against the junior college proposal."

He explained that several school districts had not wanted to be a part of the junior college district, but were included under the provision of the law that allows a small number of people to sign a petition. Fletcher said that the Three Rivers Junior College at Poplar Bluff was approved only because the city of Poplar Bluff was able to outvote the rest of the district combined. These districts are stuck whether they like it or not. They can't outvote Poplar Bluff and so far lawsuits have been unsuccessful.

Fletcher said there appears to be little public sentiment for the proposal except in the Kennett-Bragg City-Hayti areas. The proposed district would include all of Pemiscot and Dunklin counties plus Risco, Gideon, and Portageville school districts in New Madrid county.

Peach Crop In Good Shape

CAMPBELL -- The Southeast Missouri peach crop seems to have escaped any damage by the two recent cold spells although peach growers in Southern Illinois report considerable damage and crop loss.

Lloyd Miller of Campbell, who has 60 acres in peaches, reports that all growers in that region were very concerned about the effect of the snow, ice and cold but that inspection of their orchards reveal the 1967 crop is in very good shape.

Another grower reported "it will be a few days before I can fully assess the damage but unless it is 50 per cent or more, I will not feel that my orchard has been hurt at all."

There are over 1,000 acres in peaches in the Campbell area and the crop has a tremendous effect on the economy. A badly damaged peach crop could really hurt.

As one grower expressed it, "We can afford to suffer some loss from such cold spells as we had last week. A little bit of damage saves the peach grower the chore of thinning buds, which we sometimes have to do to produce a good crop."

So, with the first day of spring here, and if winter will go for good -- there should be an ample supply of "home-grown" peaches for the Bootheel this year.

Grain School On April 10

PORTAGEVILLE -- Grading procedures for the various grains produced in Missouri will be demonstrated at a grain grading school at the University of Missouri Delta Center April 10. The session, one of five being held over the state, will start at 8:30 a.m.

Grain producers, processors and dealers are invited to attend the meeting sponsored by the Missouri department of agriculture grain warehouse division, the University of Missouri college of agriculture and the United States department of agriculture. A Dutch treat luncheon will be served at noon.

Participating in the program will be C. Dale Stanton, director, Missouri department of agriculture grain warehouse division and J. M. Ragsdale, marketing specialist, University of Missouri college of agriculture.

Topics will include: "Grain Inspection in Missouri," "Correct Sampling -- Accurate Grades," "The Feed Grains," and pending state and federal legislation affecting various aspects of Missouri's grain industry. A representative of the federal food and drug administration will discuss the importance of keeping grain clean and the safe use of insecticides.

We Fight The Ideologic - Economic War At Home And Abroad - Alone!

Just for kicks let's make next week "Eat - More - Rice - In-Vietnam Week" so the Cong might have another national holiday. Then, let's declare a cease-fire truce for the week, as we proclaimed recently during the Vietnamese lunar New Year, and see what happens.

Well, here's what happened during the lunar cease-fire: NEWS ITEM: "The Communists fired large (144mm) rockets of Russian and Red Chinese design into Da Nang Air Base, killing 12 Americand and 35 Vietnamese civilians. . . The rockets and launching tubes, largest ever used on the Americans, were brought in on river barges during the Vietnamese lunar New Year truce earlier this month."

Only 12 Americans were killed, of course, so the cost of giving the Cong a holiday wasn't so great. Twelve American lives, valued at $1 million each (if we could entice the boys' mothers to give them up for that) totals only $12,000,000.

How ridiculous and stupid can we get?!

So that's the way the ideological (Capitalism vs Communism) war is going in Vietnam. How is it going in other parts of the world?

Things are really popping all over in the economic and political war which the United States is fighting in practically every nation on this earth and in outer space as well!

1. The United States is negotiating a treaty with Russia to require peaceful use of outer space, i.e., no missiles can be fired from "space wagons" of the future, like "shooting fish in a barrel". If Russia signs, then all is well -- just like "all is well" in Vietnam today where Americans are being killed by rockets and guns made in Russia and Czechoslovakia and Red China.

2. In Southern Rhodesia, the United States is collaborating with Great Britain to invoke sanctions on that white - and-black commonwealth which is trying to run its own affairs without outside interference.

3. Much closer to home, in the Caribbean Islands, generally, and in Cuba, specifically, I noted from my Grand Bahama vantage point that skulduggery is afoot. Great Britain and Canada are doing a thriving business with the Big C-Communist Castro's Cuba.

With $100 dollar bills going through the slit beneath the hands of the crap dealer, other games are going on as Canadians and British deal with the nearby Cubans. The new Negro prime minister, Lynden Pindling - first Negro government chief in the Bahamas since Columbus - is a fellow-traveler (can you believe it?) with the Honorable Adam Clayton Powell, U.S. congressman!

Yes, citizens and soldiers, Mr. Prime Minister Pindling is a stockholder in Huff Enterprise, Ltd, to which Congressman Powell's yacht is- or was - attached. Nice cozy little group, this, Pindling and Powell and bikini-clad babes cruising in the U.S. tax-supported yacht on these beautiful, innocent-looking coral-blue Castro waters!

4. In nearby Miami, now overrun with no-work "refugee Cubans" reportedly receiving $100 monthly U.S. subsidy to remain here rather than go back and fight Castro and Communism, report that Castro is building the big island a few miles off Key West (I could almost see Cuba through glasses from my chartered boat) into a Communist military base, including submarine supply pens and missile emplacements.

Several genuinely anti-Castro Cubans, armed with guns and supplies and loaded in a boat, tried to embark from the U.S. keys to get a closer look at Castro's bastion. But, "No, no, senors," say the U.S. guards, "Come with us, we take you to jail." So that's for that with 12 less citrus pickers.

5. For more than 20 years, this nation has tried to police the world, feed it and protect it from Godless Communism. But Communism has continued to spread with Russia, Red China and their satellites doing all they can to counteract our program.

The small "emerging nations," the age-old "neutrals" and even the Communist countries have taken the billions upon billions of our dollar-aid and their ungrateful people turn upon us, spit upon our flag, demonstrate at our consulates and burn our information centers.

One has only to read the newspapers from day to day to know of these maddening, frustrating un-ending chain of "incidents." We financed the Marshal Plan, subsidized the United Nations and NATO and still the great majority of the people on this earth (including most members of the United Nations) hold us in contempt.

But Washington refuses to give up or let up on the economic war, either at home or abroad. Foreign aid continues to flow by the billions. Here at home, President Johnson has asked more billions for world-wide education, using communications satellites to spread our ideology over the world. He is asking more and more for health, education, civil rights, poverty.

The United States has become a lone "defender of freedom" and practically the sole supporter of the world's impoverished (and sometimes enslaved) people.

We are fighting the ideologic-economic war at home and abroad, and fighting it alone!

JFK Birthplace Gets Historic Site Support

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Senate passed by a voice vote Tuesday a bill to establish the birthplace of John F. Kennedy in Brookline, Mass., as a national historic site.

The bill, by Sens. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., was considered and approved by the Senate Interior Committee only Monday.

Under the measure, the federal government would accept as a donation from the Kennedy family the nine-room, two-story frame structure at 83 Beals St. in Brookline, and maintain it for the public.

200 Farm Workers Will Be Trained

WARDELL -- The Missouri Associated Migrant Opportunities Services has received funds for an adult education and pre - employment training program by the Office of Economic Opportunity. The program is designed for 200 migrant and seasonal farm workers, in Dunklin, Pemiscot and New Madrid counties.

Qualifications for participation in the program.

1. Participants must have earned one - half their income in the past year from farm labor.

2. They must have worked for more than one employer in the past year.

3. They must be poor.

Approximately 80 per cent of the trainees will be male heads of families.

There are three phases of the program. Adult Education, pre - employment training, and family - living.

The adult education program is divided into four sections: participants who are in grades 1 through 3, participants who are in grades 4 through 6, participants who are in grades 7 and 8, and participants who are at the high school level.

The pre - employment phase is designed to provide occupational experience and orientation for trainees. Problems such as employer - employe relations, on - the - job safety, mutual responsibility, the eight - hour day, the changing world of work, etc. will be discussed. In addition, there will be training in specific skills such as mechanics, carpentry, small appliance repair, repair and maintenance of farm machinery, body - fender repair, etc.

The family - living program will strive to bridge the gap the trainee at the training center, and the trainee's family. If changes are made in the life of the trainee at the center, similar supportive changes must occur in the home. It will be the task of the family - service aide to be this bridge.

Trainees will participate for at least 30 hours per week. A weekly sussistance allowance will be paid each trainee while in class. The allowance will be $35 per week, plus $4 per each of the first two dependents.

It is the goal of the NAMOS to build a skilled labor force of strong, independent families in the Bootheel.

Two centers are being organized. The main offices are at the Hodgens school in Wardell. A second center will be at the old Gobler school in Gobler.

Trainees are being recruited throughout the three county area with the cooperation of neighborhood service centers. Eligible people may contact their center of the NAMOS Office.

A project director has not been employed. Supervision of the program is in the hands of the Bootheel executive committee. Members of the committee are Leroy Jones of Hayti, Father Wallace Ellinger and Rev. William Chapman of Kennett.

McNutt Will Study High Rate of Burns

NEW MADRID -- Gary McNutt has been named field representative of the county health department to work on the burn injury program in New Madrid and Pemiscot counties, David Townsend, administrator of the New Madrid office announced today.

McNutt is conducting a study of deaths and injuries due to a burn in order to determine the cause of such a high incident rate in this area.

After the causes have been determined, educational programs will be developed to reduce death and injury from burns.

New Madrid and Pemiscot are among six Southeast Missouri counties with death rates from burns ranging from two to four times the state's rate. The other four counties are Mississippi, Scott, Stoddard and Butler.

McNutt will need to interview every person who receives a burn of any significance. Persons who have received a burn since the first of January, are asked to contact the office. Information will be held in confidence and coded for statistical information.

No Evidence of Junior College Backlash

GIDEON -- There is no evidence of a backlash against high school superintendents and school board members who are opposing the Bootheel junior college proposal, according to James Fletcher of Gideon.

Fletcher, president of the Gideon board of education and chairman of a large group of citizens opposed to the junior college, said today that the junior college steering committee is grasping for straws in its efforts to sell the public on something that they don't want to buy.

"The Bootheel isn't ready to finance a junior college, because most of the school districts already are in dire need of more money," said Fletcher. "Our educators understand this problem and are speaking out now before it is too late," he said.

Fletcher said that 30 cents tax increase doesn't sound like much, but it opens the door for more increases later. He said that state and federal aid is also misleading----"Who pays the taxes to provide the state and federal aid?"

"I do not understand a state department of education that advocates fewer high school districts and more and more junior college districts," said Fletcher. "If we have to support two or three junior colleges in the Bootheel when one would be sufficient, we will never get our secondary schools upgraded."

Fletcher said that the junior college steering committee is being unfair by singling out school officials as being the only ones opposed to the proposal. "Our committee is composed of people from all walks of life and there has never been one iota of pressure put on school teachers or officials to be for or against the junior college proposal."

He explained that several school districts had not wanted to be a part of the junior college district, but were included under the provision of the law that allows a small number of people to sign a petition. Fletcher said that the Three Rivers Junior College at Poplar Bluff was approved only because the city of Poplar Bluff was able to outvote the rest of the district combined. These districts are stuck whether they like it or not. They can't outvote Poplar Bluff and so far lawsuits have been unsuccessful.

Fletcher said there appears to be little public sentiment for the proposal except in the Kennett-Bragg City-Hayti areas. The proposed district would include all of Pemiscot and Dunklin counties plus Risco, Gideon, and Portageville school districts in New Madrid county.

Foreman to Conduct Burn Study in Area

Dr. Thelma C. Buckthorpe, administrator of the Scott County health department announces the appointment of William D. Foreman as a field representative. Foreman will work on the burn injury program in Scott and Mississippi counties.

These counties are among six in Southeast Missouri that have a death rate from burns ranging from two to four times the rate for the state.

The other four counties in the program are Butler, Stoddard, New Madrid and Pemiscot.

Foreman is conducting a study of deaths and injuries due to a burn in order to determine the cause of the high rate. After the causes have been determined, education programs will be developed aimed at reducing death and injury from burns.

Foreman will need to interview every person who receives a burn of any significance. Any person who has received a burn since the first of January or who knows of a person who has received one, is asked to call the county health department.

Information received will be held in confidence and coded to be used in statistical information.

Missourians' Knowledge of Reds Limited

Editors Note: This is another in a continuing series of reports on public opinion and attitudes in Missouri, based on periodic surveys conducted by the Public Opinion Survey Unit of the Research Center, School of Business and Public Administration, University of Missouri, Columbia.)

COLUMBIA --- In a recent address at Fulton, Vice - President Hubert H. Humphrey reaffirmed a basic policy commitment of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations. Speaking from the same platform where Winston Churchill warned in 1947 that the Soviet Union had lowered an Iron Curtain isolating Eastern Europe from the West, Humphrey argued that it was time to lift the Curtain. He called on the United States, the Soviet Union, and communist states of Eastern Europe to find new areas of economic cooperation.

This policy of "building bridges to the East," as it is sometimes called, has been increasingly evident since the 1962 Cuban missile crisis. The Nuclear Test Ban Treaty has been followed by a series of proposals for greater East - West economic and cultural intercourse.

Last week the U. S. senate approved a consular agreement with the Soviet Union which presumably will stimulate economic and cultural exchange.

An East - West trade bill has also been presented to the Congress. In a more direct way, this proposal is designed to facilitate trade between the United States and Eastern European countries.

Some Congressmen have agrued that increasing American trade with Eastern Europe will make these countries less dependent on the Soviet Union, thus resulting in less political control by the Soviets.

Other Congressmen have voiced vigorous opposition to the measure, charging that it would only aid and abet the enemy. Economic isolation, they argue, will increase political instability and the likelihood of an overthrow of these regimes. Most of these Congressmen have backed up their position by pointing out that their constituents and the American public simply would not stand for trade with communist countries.

Public opinion on complex matters of foreign policy is always elusive. In an effort to find out how Missourians viewed communist - bloc countries, the Public Opinion Survey Unit asked a sample of nearly 1,000 Missouri adults to (1) identify from a selected list of communist and non - communist countries those that are presently communist, (2) indicate the extent of control exerted by the Soviet Union over each of these countries, and (3) rank the countries that constitute the most serious threat to U. S. interests.

The findings, soon to be published in an article by Professors Robert Sharlet and David C. Leege of the University of Missouri, Columbia, indicate that Missourians have limited information about communist countries, particularly those in Eastern Europe.

The selected list of countries presented in the survey included the non-communist countries of Indonesia, UAR, India, and France. The percentage of people identifying each country as "presently having a communist government" is noted below; the remaining percentage simply didn't know or said that the country was non-communist.

Country	Communist Identification
North Vietnam	82
China (mainland)	78
East Germany	78
Yugoslavia	55
Poland	53
Rumania	36
Albania	24
Indonesia	24
UAR (Egypt)	17
India	10
France	7

Only East Germany of the Eastern European countries is known to be communist by as many as three - fourths of the Missouri adults; Poland and Yugoslavia are identified as communist by barely one-half of them; while Rumania and Albania are identified by only one - third to one - fourth of them respectively. Only those countries with whom the United States has had recent cold or hot conflict receive extensive mention as communist countries -- Cuba, North Vietnam, China, and East Germany.

Several non - communist countries are labeled communist by as many as one - tenth to one-fourth of the sample.

Except for the first three countries listed above and the Soviet Union, no communist on the list were perceived as threats to U. S. interests to any significantly greater degree than were the non - communist countries. Only East Germany of the Eastern European countries was thought to be under the tight control of the Soviet Union; the tightest control was thought to be exerted over Cuba.

Lightest Mexico

MEXICO CITY -- Over at the Carretones glass factory they claim to have the finest hand-blown glass anywhere but from what I can see it is blown by mouth.

Another curious thing. The name of the factory is not Carretones. That's the name of the street. And probably nobody but the owners know what the factory's official title is.

Anyhow, the Lady from Puebla invited me to take her over the other day and see what was new in the wind -- and--bottle industry.

It was an edifying morning because the blowing gentlemen were running all over the place with red hot glass on the end of rods and making many fascinating objects.

And we were informed by the foreman that the glass actually is a rather low quality because it is full of air bubbles, which is the thing that lends character and makes people want to buy some.

The way it works, they have truck loads of busted bottles and window panes brought in each day and dumped in a very hot furnace.

Pretty soon they have a big pot of boiling glass and the maestros file by and dip one end of a long, metal tube in the pot. Twist it around until they get a ball of molten glass like you would wind honey on a spoon.

Then they back off a little and begin huffing and puffing (on the cool end of the tube). All the time rotating and pushing the wad of glass against things to shape it while they blow.

Suddenly they have a glass or a vase. Looks extremely complicated to me but the maestro says it is not more than a matter of talent and routine.

Everybody except the flunkies around this factory is called maestro, this being the term for master craftsmen. You hear maestro this and maestro that until pretty soon it sounds like the orchestra is getting ready to start.

One maestro puts his metal tube through a slot to the pot and winds on just enough glass to measure from here to there. Then another maestro winds the end of this pipe into the wad until they are both glued together.

At this point, with the glass glowing like a volcano, maestro "A" walks this way and maestro "B" goes in the opposite direction and the first thing you know they have stretched out some glass tubing maybe twenty or thirty feet long.

And there was one fellow blowing water pitchers and another blowing glass birds. The master maestro explained his troops could blow absolutely anything and when I said (just casually, mind you) how about somebody blowing a checkerboard the Lady from Puebla brought her spike heel down sharply on my instep.

Well, the master maestro said he had a fellow once with no talent at all and he couldn't even blow his nose well. He kept trying but everything came out abstract like Salvador Dali and leaked badly and it looked like this would never get beyond shoveling old beer bottles into the melting pot.

The oddest thing happened one day right after lunch when he was trying to blow a real skinny vase and developed a case of hiccoughs. And the master maestro said it came out covered with huge blisters and they were about to fire this fellow until somebody discovered they could cut the lumps off and make glass domes for coffee percolators.

Anyhow, the master maestro said this boy got a good job in the coffee pot division. And all they have to do is keep him full of indigestion and let him blow after he eats.

CAB Wants to Hear Air Service Gripes

WASHINGTON (AP) - If you had to wait a long time to retrieve your baggage after an airline trip, the Civil Aeronautics Board wants to know about it.

The CAB has launched a study of air passenger gripes - including luggage handling foulups, delayed flights or other schedule irregularities.

The board emphasized that few passengers complain about what goes on while they're airborne, "but complaints indicate that procedures and facilities for handling passengers and their property on the ground have not kept pace with traffic growth."

He comes. Make haste and prepare.
He comes. The Savior of the world.
A great and almighty Man is He.
He comes.
The Angels sing of glad tidings and great joy.
He comes.
He comes from a kingdom far from the fight of man.
With the fate of man in His hands,
He comes.
He comes.
And on a cold and wintry night.
He came.
He humbled Himself so much as to become our brother.
He comes.

Mike Olds

As a treat for their three youngsters, friends of ours planned to spend New Year's Eve with them. They would all get dressed up, there would be one punch bowl for the children and one for Mommy and Daddy, there would be a dinner of the youngers' choice, with hats, noisemakers, etc. The children were wide - eyed with excitement at the prospect. After a few minutes of whooping and shouting, the seven - year-old boy turned to his mother and asked, "Mommy, can we wake Daddy up at midnight?"

When I Was A Boy

Since the publication of the late H. J. (Jack) Blanton's "When I Was A Boy" reminiscenes in book form in 1942, they have become increasingly popular. All the books have been sold, and are difficult to obtain. Because of the increasing demand for these articles, the Standard is reprinting them during the next few weeks in the belief that its readers, young and old, will enjoy reading about 70 to 100 years ago. Clip and save them.

WHEN WE TOOK OUR RELIGION SERIOUSLY

When I was a boy people took their religion seriously, meaning their denominationalism. Most every family had at least one member who could, and at frequent intervals did, give a reason for the faith that was in him. All the Protestant families heard terrible things about the Catholics. Baptists, Presbyterian and Methodist churches heard things equally unfavorable to the Campbellites by which odious name the Christian Church was then spoken of. All those sects lambasted us Baptists because we limited communion in the Lord's supper to those of our own faith and order, although they really didn't care so much about eating and drinking with us as about being barred from the table.

There was much theological brick - throwing from the various pulpits. I recall an evangelist named Martin who held a meeting at the Christian church. His chief mission in life seemed to be the matter of showing other denominations the error of their way. He took the other churches in rotation, hewing to the line and letting the chips fall where they would. The night set apart for showing the Baptists up was a Wednesday night. Prayer meeting at the Baptist Church was dismissed early in order that the pastor might gather material with which to load a theological gun for his Sunday morning reply.

The church was filled when the Baptist martyrs arrived. Only back seats in the little Sunday School room remained unoccupied. In order that they might see as well as hear Evangelist Martin, the Baptist minister and his deacons sat on the high back of the bench. While the evangelist was unlimbering his heaviest guns at their doctrines and practices the back of that bench suddenly gave way and with a resounding crash the Baptist pastor and his deacons fell to the floor. This embarrassing moment rated by admirers of the evangelist as a knockout to the enemy, only added to the fury of the counter - attack the Baptist pastor unleashed the following Sunday.

How times have changed! Several years ago I asked all pastors of local churches to write statements in which the doctrines of their denomination would be given. Only one responded -- a young man who had just been called to the pastorate of the Christian church. He very carefully avoided anything that might have started a controversy, while all the others declined to say anything for publication, lest denominational antagonisms would be revived.

My first recollection of Paris churches is of interiors with a rail through the center of the middle pews. Men sat on one side of that rail, women on the other. Young people with an eye to opportunity so managed that the girl sat against the rail on one side, and the boy against it on the other. Boys seldom took their sweethearts to church. The big idea was to take them home after the benediction, in furtherance of which the boys always ganged up at the door, with most of the elders looking on with interest, then as a favored girl came out her admirer would rush up say, "May I see you home?" Occasionally, some scamp who had no interest in her would get there first, and great was the glee of the spectators.

THE PRIVY

When I was a boy the privy was a family necessity on the farm & in all towns that were without water works and sewerage, a problem in cities like St. Louis and Kansas City that were undertaking to put water mains and sewer pipes under practically every street. Although condemned by health authorities and loathed to well-to-do people, thousands of city home owners refused to abandon them, for one excuse or another. Some argued that they were financially unable to install toilet facilities and make sewer connections. Others, who could spare the money, clung to the privy from pure contrariness or from unwillingness to go modern.

Everywhere, modesty restrained people from even so much as indirectly mentioning the privy during a conversation. People of those generations little dreamed that the time would come when one of America's best sellers in literature would be a book which discussed nothing else. It was "The Specialist," by Chic Sale. After typewritten copies of it had been read at service clubs and other gatherings for men only, a St. Louis man, the late W.S. McClevey, manager for the Western Newspaper Union, offered to publish it in book form, market it at his own expense and give the author half the profits for the privilege. Two years after the first book appeared, Mr. McClevey told me, more than 700,000 copies had been sold at a dollar a copy, and the demand continued to be good. The book contained about 20 pages.

The privy was about the only thing besides appetites which both rich and poor had in common in town and country. Our more cultured people called it a backhouse. Some of them tried to conceal it from the public view by erecting vineclad trellises. As a rule, however, it stood in the open, like a wart on the nose, evidently aware of its important place in the scheme of things and willing to look a passing world full in the face. When new houses were to be contracted for in all small towns, three additional structures were required. One was the privy. Another was a hen house. The third was the smokehouse, in which meat for the family table was to be cured and smoked and kept. Priority over all others, including the residence, was given to the privy, for the convenience of the contractor and his assistants.

Every church and every school had two, one for boys, the other for girls. They were placed just as far apart as possible. Every office and store had at least one, to which no one would venture without a quick survey of the landscape for the purpose of learning whether it was occupied or that no one of the opposite sex was in sight.

Each structure was constructed with a view to Hallowe'en. This means that strength to hold together when overturned was a prime necessity when boys went forth for Hallowe'en stunts. On the following morning the landscape abounded with privies that were flat on their backs. Always, the first ones to suffer were at schoolhouse and church. Before Paris installed waterworks and sewers there was a two-holer back of my office. We had a standing arrangement with two scout Negro men for the necessary service the morning after Hallowe'en. One year, however, the boys went to great extremes with that structure. When I came down to work the day after, great was my surprise and indignation at seeing the privy standing erect in the middle of Main street in front of the office, with a rail fence built around it and a box of corn cobs at the door.

When the privy door was closed it was notice to everybody to keep away, for there was a customer inside. Too often it was a temptation passing boys could not resist. Always, it seemed, a stone or two was handy. Usually, the privy was considered a legitimate target for a test of throwing skill. The crash of a rock was very disconcerting to the unsuspecting inmate. Young people in the late teens lived in constant terror of being seen by one of the opposite sex while entering or emerging from the family privy. When, once in a long time, this did occur they evaded each other for weeks on end. It seemed that they would never get on speaking terms again.

The largest privy in our town, which was the county seat, was an eight-holer. It was located on the courthouse lawn, right in the middle of the business district. It probably was never patronized so much as one time by a female of the species, so conspicuous was its location. The most remarkable privy in our part of the state was the one operated by the Glenn Hotel, a three story building. It was three stories high and was reached by bridge-like walks which led from each floor of the hotel. This structure was very unpopular with local Hallowe'en boys. During all of its long life it baffled every attempt to overturn it.

By a strange coincidence calomel and the privy passed out of general use at about the said time. Family doctors labored under the delusion that every patient should undergo a course of calomel at least once a year, or any other time when less energetic medicines had failed them. Few people got through the winter without experiencing this ordeal. Nineteen times out of twenty the stuff took effect between midnight and morning. When the call came there was not to reason why. There was only to arise and fly. On no other occasion did the victim don clothing and reach his destination in such a minimum of time as he did under the urge of a heroic dose of calomel. In zero weather, with privy 100 yards to the rear, it became an endurance test in which no quarter was asked and none was given. A motion picture of that performance would have outdone our old custard pie comedies as funnybone thrillers.

No matter how modest a woman guest might be, she lost no time in a whispered conversation with her hostess about where the privy was located when she arrived for a visit. Masculine guests usually solved the problem by leisurely sauntering around the premises, on the pretext of inspecting the fruit and shade trees keeping a wary eye out for what they were really looking for. On a trip to Europe I once learned from the European agent of the Hines Company, at whose table I sat, that the first thing to learn when about to enter a foreign country was the word for toilet or privy. Never was there a more valuable bit of information.

Except for privies many towns and cities would never have had sewers. Thus, after voting bonds for waterworks people would discover that there had to be a choice between privies as a public health menace or sewers for the elimination of privies. The sewer side of the proposition most always won.

THE ART OF GETTING ALONG

Sooner of later, a man, if he is wise, discovers that business life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take, ups and downs.

He learns that it doesn't pay to be a sensitive soul--that he should let some things go over his head like water off a duck's back.

He learns that he who loses his temper usually loses.

He learnes that all men have burnt toast for breakfast now and then and that he shouldn't take the other fellow's grouch too seriously.

He learns that the quickest way to become unpopular is to carry tales and gossip about others.

He learns that it doesn't matter who gets the credit so long as the business shows a profit.

He learns that buck-passing always turns out to be a boomerang and that it never pays.

He comes to realize that the business could run along perfectly well without him.

He learns that it doesn't do any harm to smile and say, "Good morning," even if it is raining.

He learns that most of the other fellows are as ambitious as he is, that they have brains that are as good or better, and that hard work and no cleverness is the secret of success.

He learns to sympathize with the youngster coming into the business, because he remembers how bewildered he was when he first started out.

He learns not to worry when he loses an order because experience has shown that if he always gives his best, his average will break pretty well.

He learns the bosses are not monsters trying to get the last ounce of work out of him for the least amount of pay, but they are usually fine men who have succeeded through hard work and who want to do the right thing.

He learns that the gang is not any harder to get along with in one place than another and that "getting along" depends about 98 per cent on his own behavior. (The End)

When I Was A Boy

Since the publication of the late H. J. (Jack) Blanton's "When I Was A Boy" reminiscenes in book form in 1942, they have become increasingly popular. All the books have been sold, and are difficult to obtain. Because of the increasing demand for these articles, the Standard is reprinting them during the next few weeks in the belief that its readers, young and old, will enjoy reading about 70 to 100 years ago. Clip and save them.

WHEN WE TOOK OUR RELIGION SERIOUSLY

When I was a boy people took their religion seriously, meaning their denominationalism. Most every family had at least one member who could, and at frequent intervals did, give a reason for the faith that was in him. All the Protestant families heard terrible things about the Catholics. Baptists, Presbyterian and Methodist churches heard things equally unfavorable to the Campbellites by which odious name the Christian Church was then spoken of. All those sects lambasted us Baptists because we limited participation in the Lord's supper to those of our own faith and order, although they really didn't care so much about eating and drinking with us as about being barred from the table.

There was much theological brick - throwing from the various pulpits. I recall an evangelist named Martin who held a meeting at the Christian church. His chief mission in life seemed to be the matter of showing other denominations the error of their way. He took the other churches in rotation, hewing to the line and letting the chips fall where they would. The night set apart for showing the Baptists up was a Wednesday night. Prayer meeting at the Baptist Church was dismissed early in order that the pastor might gather material with which to load a theological gun for his Sunday morning reply.

The church was filled when the Baptist martyrs arrived. Only back seats in the little Sunday School room remained unoccupied. In order that they might see as well as hear Evangelist Martin, the Baptist minister and his deacons sat on the high back of the bench. While the evangelist was unlimbering his heaviest guns at their doctrines and practices the back of that bench suddenly gave way and with a resounding crash the Baptist pastor and his deacons fell to the floor. This embarrassing moment rated by admirers of the evangelist as a knockout to the enemy, only added to the fury of the counter - attack the Baptist pastor unleashed the following Sunday.

How times have changed! Several years ago I asked all pastors of local churches to write statements in which the doctrines of their denomination would be given. Only one responded -- a young man who had just been called to the pastorate of the Christian church. He very carefully avoided anything that might have started a controversy, while all the others declined to say anything for publication, lest denominational antagonisms would be revived.

My first recollection of Paris churches is of interiors with a rail through the center of the middle pews. Men sat on one side of that rail, women on the other. Young people with an eye to opportunity so managed that the girl sat against the rail on one side, and the boy against it on the other. Boys seldom took their sweethearts to church. The big idea was to take them home after the benediction, in furtherance of which the boys always ganged up at the door, with most of the elders looking on with interest, then as a favored girl came out her admirer would rush up say, "May I see you home?" Air Route Bid Went Smoothly

"We've done everything we can o get air service for Sikeston, ow all we can do is wait for he board's decision," City Manager W. Raymert Miller remarked today.

Miller returned with six other Sikeston representatives who ttended the Civil Aeronautic Board hearings on air routes Thursday in Oklahoma City.

The presentation went smoothly in proceedings, he said. The planned testimony was reduced to writing and forwarded to the CAB, prior to the oral presentation.

Sikeston asked to be a stop on a route between Memphis and Dyersburg, Tenn., and St. Louis. Several cities were represented at the hearing, which covered air routes over a broad segment of the nation.

Richard Pinkerton, Chamber of Commerce manager, said the presentation was well made for Sikeston. It may be eight to 10 months before the city is notified of the results, he said.

The Sikeston bid was made in about 45 minutes of testimony by representatives of the city government, business and industry.

Miller was the first to testify. He spoke on behalf of the city citing the needs for air service and was questioned by city attorney Manuel Drumm.

Bob Matthews, spoke on behalf of the business segment, and was cross examined by Drumm.

Charles Stamp, presented the industrial needs and potential needs.

Following the prepared testimony, each man offered to answer questions of the board.

Pinkerton said the city was well represented by the attending delegation. Several favorable comments were received on the presentation he noted.

Pasaka Choice Of Committee

Donald J. Pasaka

Donald J. Pasaka, grocer, one of three men chosen as finalists for the postmastership, received the endorsement of the county Democratic Central committee, Tom Arnold, Benton, committee chairman, announced today.

A letter recommending Pasaka for the appointment has been sent to congressman Paul C. Jones.

The other two finalists are acting postmaster, Ewart S. Taylor and Herman A. Poe, superintendent of mails.

Both Taylor and Poe have more than 20 years with the post office.

The final three candidates were chosen from a list of 15 applicants by the civil service commission on the basis of examination of their qualifications. The names were then submitted to the county committee for their recommendation.

The normal procedure for the $9,221-a-year position, now that the committee has recommended Pasaka to Jones, is for the congressman to recommend that he be appointed.

The President then will submit the name to the United States Senate for confirmation, normally a routine action.

After the Senate acts, the President makes the appointment.

Pasaka is a former city councilman and has served as manager of Edwards IGA Supermarket, 863 West Malone, for 21 years.

Taylor has served as acting postmaster since the death of Pleas Malcolm June 2, 1966.

Plant Bombed Again

SAIGON (AP) — Warplanes from two U.S. aircraft carriers penetrated the missile envelope around North Vietnam's industrial heartland Friday to attack the Thai Nguyen thermal power plant 39 miles from Hanoi.

It was the second big strike against the power plant, which is close to the vital Thai Nguyen steel plant. The steel plant has been bombed four times. Both targets were barred to U.S. pilots until early this month but have since been subjected to heavy bombing despite continuous bad weather over North Vietnam.

Pilots from the 85,000-ton nuclear-powered carrier Enterprise and the 76,000-ton Kitty Hawk streaked through the Thai Nguyen antiaircraft defenses under cover of the darkness before dawn. Flying A6 all-weather Intruders, they rained down 1,000-pound bombs aimed by radar and computers.

While one group of raiders was going after the Thai Nguy-

Gals Find Out About Car Parts

BOSTON (AP) — The girls had just taken apart a rear axle and now Ed Downs had them up at the front of the car showing them what goes on under the hood.

"This is a motor," he said.

The girls giggled.

Sister Madelyn Jewers of the Grey Nuns leaned in and poked at the motor. She twisted a gizmo on the top of the whatchamacallit until the gizmo came off. Then she twisted it back on again.

The girls applauded.

"Gracious," she said. "I never dreamed there was so much that went on inside a car."

Sister Madelyn, 30, a nurse and instructor in obstetrics at St. Elizabeth Hospital, is one of 40 women taking part in a powder puff mechanics course at an automobile agency.

"The purpose of the course is to improve the condition and safety of female driving by giving woman a basic understanding of the automobile," said Downs.

Beyond that, he said, one of the main purposes is to give women enough knowledge to stand up to a cigar-chewing mechanic who says they need new transmission oil and say, "Hey, wait a minute. Let me see that dip stick."

The course continues four nights, once a week, and when it's over the women get diplomas that say they are powder puff mechanics. They will know how to change tires, adjust a motor, check oil, fix a fan belt.

The students are professional women who drive a lot — nurses, secretaries, executives. They think the course is great.

"It's really tremendous," said Sister Madelyn. "Why, do you know, I didn't have the faintest idea where the spark plugs were before this course. And now I really think I could do something like change a tire and jack up the car and get it down in one piece."

"The only trouble," said Miss Helen Packard, a public relations specialist with a textile firm, "is that I never knew there were so many things that could go wrong with a car. Now I'm nervous."

"I thought it was a spider," she said.

Cross Spells Victory Baptist Pastor Says

"The cross spells victory for the individual Christian," the Rev. James W. Hackney, pastor of the First Baptist church, said of the crucifixion of Jesus Christ.

"Our own resources are inadequate but by the cross we can conquer," he said at the annual Good Friday service sponsored by the ministerial alliance.

"The person who has never experienced the power of the cross and who would merely sit down and read the story of the cross would certainly be prone to say, 'Can there possibly be any triumph or victory in such a ghastly story as this? How can the bitter experience of a cruel death on the cross possibly mean victory or triumph?

"But it does! Yes, if it had not been for the glorious, incomparable triumph of the cross, this story would have never been written."

The Rev. Mr. Hackney told his audience at the First Assembly of God church that there were "three great victories in the triumph," quoting literally from the scriptures:

"The first victory concerned himself. He prayed, 'And now, O Father, Glorify thou me with thine own self with the Glory which I had with thee before the world was.' Glory had always been His as the Son of God. Now He was to be glorified as the Son of Man. Looking through the gloom to glory our blessed Lord, 'for the joy that was set before Him,' endured the cross, despising the shame." He had taken on the body of man -- had been born in the lowly manger. He had been victor over the most powerful temptation Satan could present in the wilderness. As a man on earth He had been forsaken by His own people. He had endured the hardness of heart of all mankind. Now it was time for the final victory -- to completely glorify the Father by complete denial of self.

"The second victory was over Satan. 'How is the judgment of this world; now shall the Prince of This World be cast out.' 'After calvary the title 'Prince of this World' is never applied to Him. He is called 'God of this Age' and 'The Prince of the Powers of the Air.' But not again 'Prince of this World.' Satin came to this power through Adam. Now at the cross this power was broken. 'Behold the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world.' The book of Revelation, chapter five, reveals His complete victory, the final victory through the mighty weapon of the cross.

"The third victory is the victory concerning redeemed men. John 12:32 reads, 'And, If I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me.' 'Lifted up' signified which death He should die. 'Will draw all men' suggests that while Christ had been ministering primarily to Israel, now, through the cross, all men would be beckoned."

Capitol Recess Begins

By WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

WASHINGTON (AP) — Leaders disagree about what, if anything, the 90th Congress can boast about after 11 weeks of activity.

But as they left today on the first prolonged recess of the year, there was general agreement that tough problems lie ahead for the five months between April 3, when the session resumes, and Labor Day, when Congress hopes to quit for the year.

House Democratic Leader Carl Albert of Oklahoma said he was pleased, and I believe the country should be pleased, at the progress we are making and the pace we are setting in the House."

That wasn't the way House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan saw it. Congress, said Ford, is "wallowing in inaction" and its record is "near zero."

Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told his colleagues he hoped they would "return with renewed vigor for the work ahead in the next few months."

He said plans are underway for an Aug. 1 adjournment but added: "I, for one, will gladly settle for Sept. 1."

Most headlines so far have come from nonlegislative actions involving personal conduct of members.

The House had declared vacant the seat of Adam Clayton Powell, New York Democrat whose personal affairs and handling of committee funds were the subject of two committee probes. The Powell case may confront the House again, for the Negro clergyman is a favorite to be re-elected in a special election April 11.

Albert said he expects the House would seat Powell but take other punitive actions. Ford said "my judgement is that the House is as adamant today as it was" when it took earlier action against Powell.

The Senate got into the ethics act with a committee investigation of the financial problems of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn. The hearings have ended but the committee has taken no action.

On the legislative side of the ledger, four major bills have been sent to President Johnson. They authorize more military hardware for use in Vietnam $12.2 billion to pay for additional war costs in Southeas Asia, an increase in the national debt ceiling and emergency food relief for famine-threatened India.

Two others have been passed in differing forms by the House and Senate and are awaiting compromise. They would liberalize veterans' benefits and reorganize the Indian Claims Commission.

Measures passed by the House, including a renewed business tax incentives bill and a resolution intended to strengthen the President's position at the Latin-American summit conference next month, are high on the Senate priority list for after Easter.

Draft Revisions Draw Strong Opposition

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans writing their congressmen about the draft overwhelmingly oppose president Johnson's plans to induct 19-year-olds first and choose them by lottery, an Associated Press survey showed today.

And there is strong support for continuation of college deferments, letters and telegrams indicate.

The President's announcement that draft priorities will be reversed to take youngest men first has drawn personal and passionate objections.

"These young boys are not men yet and certainly deserve to live to be at least 21 years of age," wrote the mother of one. "18 is too young to die for any cause."

Reflecting the historic anguish of mothers whose sons go to war, she added: "I would go in my son's place gladly because I have lived."

One man said "an army of boys too young to buy a drink, own a car or marry without parental consent is an army of children."

Johnson announced in a message to Congress March 6 that he will issue executive orders to begin the youngest-first callup and the lottery. The lottery should be in operation by Jan. 1, 1969, he said.

Letters and telegrams opposing the 19-year-old callup plan come mainly from parents. The sample of about 500 turned up none which could be identified as from youths themselves.

A number of professional military men expressed support for idea, saying younger men adapt more easily to the military.

The opposition to eliminating college deferments was overwhelming.

One father of three sons told of how he worked to impress them with the importance of getting a college education.

Now that his son has been accepted to a college, he wrote, "If you take him, and millions like him into the service for several years, many of them will either lose their enthusiasm for studying or else lose their ability to study and absorb knowledge."

A presidential commission on the draft found no evidence "that the abolishment of student deferments would deter young men selected for service from going to college, or returning to college, when their service was completed."

One mother said of college boys: "Just because they are smarter with books and went on to college don't make them one bit better than the laboring boy."

A lottery opponent said, "We would be taking a hit or miss, by guess and by golly approach to decide which of our most critical resources, men, we would get."

Another said, "A game of chance to decide a boy's fate is primitive."

Hundreds of letters went to Chairman L. Mendel Rivers, D-S.C., of the House Armed Services Committee, which begins hearings next month on the draft law.

Many other congressmen, reporting as few as 6 or 12 or 15 letters, said the response was lighter than they expected.

Van Damaged By Motor Fire

The fire department extinguished a grass fire at 9:27 a.m. today at 350 Broadway.

A delivery van owned by the Woehlecke Florist & Greenhouse, 524 South New Madrid, was damaged by a fire in the motor Thursday morning, firemen reported.

The fire was caused by a backfire when an employe started the motor at the shop. The motor wiring, hoses and belts were damaged.

A false alarm was answered by the department at 10 p.m. Thursday at 357 Magnolia.

Parades, Sunrise Services Herald Easter's Arrival

NEW YORK (AP) — The earliest Easter in 16 years Sunday and wintry weather in many parts of the country apparently haven't dampened plans for traditional sunrise religious services and displays of finery in the Easter parade.

While preparations were being made for the services and parades, Pope Paul VI led Roman Catholics in the annual Good Friday observance today of Christ's Crucifixion.

Thursday night in Rome, the Pope washed the feet of 12 boys, emulating in a Holy Thursday Mass at the Basilica of St. John Lateran the action of Christ at the Last Supper.

Good Friday is not a legal holiday nationally, but still many business offices across the country were closed today, including the stock and principal commodity exchanges in New York.

department stores were generally open for Easter shoppers.

In an extended five-day forecast which covers Easter Sunday, the Weather Bureau said temperatures would average below normal in the West, Southwest and along the Eastern Seaboard. The forecast called for rain over most of the nation except in the far Southwest. No snow was forecast anywhere.

An Associated Press survey showed retail sales of spring clothes down two to five per cent in the snowy Northeast and Midwest, but up as much as 25 per cent in Richmond, Va., and about five per cent nationally.

New York's Easter parade up Fifth Avenue is expected to be as gaudy as ever.

Many will join the parade after attending sunrise services at Radio City Music Hall where such observances have been held every year since the building opened 34 years ago.

Washington will have its traditional sunrise services, and the egg rolling on the White House lawn Monday. Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson's Easter outfit will be a mimosa-yellow silk dress with matching coat.

Los Angeles will observe Easter with dawn services in the Hollywood Bowl for the 47th time. The 33rd annual sunrise service will take place in the most spectacular setting of all — Arizona's Grand Canyon.

Easter will be the high point of a four-day holiday for most Hawaiians with state and city offices closed from today through Monday. Monday is a state holiday honoring Prince Jonah Kuhio Kalanianahole, Hawaii's delegate to the U.S. Congress from 1902 to 1922. Historically, the most interesting observance is expected to be the 195th Moravian sunrise service in Winston-Salem, N.C.

The 600-piece Moravian band, divided into sections, will tour the city beginning at 1:45 a.m. "to awaken the worshippers." From 15,000 to 20,000 persons usually join them in Salem Square.

Although city-wide celebrations are only 195 years old, the 207th sunrise service will take place at the Bethania Moravian Church, built in 1759, at 5:45

Kansas City Firemen On Partial Sit Down Strike

KANSAS CITY AP - Kansas City firemen today began answering only fire alarms and emergency ambulance calls - they went on a sit-down strike as far as other duties were concerned.

Charles Shafer Jr., attorney for Firefighters Local No. 42, said the action began shortly after a meeting of firemen this morning. At a meeting Thursday about half of the members voted for a sit-down.

The fire fighters are seeking a 10 per cent increase in wages and a 50-hour work week. The city has authorized a 5 per cent hike in wages for all city employes.

Stanton Gladden, union president, said Shafer was in contact with Mayor Ilus Davis in an effort to renew negotiations in the long dispute between the firemen and the city.

All three shifts of firemen will report for work. Last year only one shift of firemen reported in a walkout, the other two shifts reporting "sick" and unable to work.

Truck Overturns After Collison, Four Injured

Four were hurt in a truck-car collision last night at 7:30 p.m., one and one-half miles west of Micola.

A 1965 Chevrolet pickup truck, driven by Randall Fisher, 17, Caruthersville, met a car on a bridge on a country road, ran into a ditch and overturned.

The driver received a sprained back, while three occupants, Gary Thomas and Robert Thomas, both 18 and from Steele, were injured. Gary Thomas was cut on one hand and his neck. Robert Thomas suffered a bruised arm. Jimmie Ray Green, 16, Steele, a fourth occupant had a cut wrist.

On highway 61 at Portageville last night at 10:45 p.m. David Finney, 27, Portageville, was arrested by the highway patrol for driving while intoxicated. His 1957 Chevrolet went into a ditch. He was not injured.

Last night at 7:30 p.m., one mile east of Kennett on highway 84, a 1956 Chevrolet, driven by Earl Trainer, 64, Steele, slowed for traffic congestion. His car was struck in the rear by a 1967 Ford, driven by Jesse Horton, 47, Steele.

Neither driver was hurt.

New Orleans Asks for Return Of Bar Owner

NEW ORLEANS, AP - New Orleans autorities asked Chicago police today to find and arrest Gordon Novel, former French quarter bar owner sought as a material witness in Dist. Atty. Jim Garrison's Kennedy assassination probe.

Novel, 29, was last reported in Columbus, Ohio, Thursday and said he was going to Chicago.

His attorney, Steven R. Plotkin, said he knows Novel's whereabouts but refused to divulge the information. The lawyer said he intends to file motions on behalf of Novel in court Monday.

Criminal Court Judge Matthew S. Braniff issued a warrant for Novel's arrest at Garrison's request. The district attorney termed Novel a "most important" witness to the grand jury's investigation.

Braniff set bond for Novel at $50,000.

Hearnes Discusses Intentions for '68

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) - Gov. Warren E. Hearnes told newsmen Thursday if he seeks public office again in 1968 he will file for re-election as governor.

"I have made it very plain," he said.

There were reports he might seek a U.S. Senate seat.

The governor spoke to a Jasper County Democratic Committee meeting.

He said the only alternatives for future road construction in Missouri are toll roads or an increase of at least 3 1/2 cents a gallon in the gasoline tax.

He said he could not second guess a feasibility study by engineers and could not realistically pinpoint any route for a proposed western Missouri turnpike running parallel with U. S. 71 or the proposed Kansas turnpike from Kansas City to Galena, Kan.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

The basketball fever has subsided somewhat in Southeast Missouri, where it reached epidemic proportions at Charleston and Matthews this season.

A devotee of basketball doesn't need to be reminded that it is a popular sport worthy of his rapt attention.

The record of the sport amazes everyone.

In a brief 75-year history basketball has become as global as its shape.

It has never been called the national pastime but it certainly is the most popular and the most played game in the United States.

It is not the most prosperous but it is becoming increasingly lucrative to both owners and players in the professional ranks.

Two peach baskets fastened to a gymnasium in the winter of 1891 gave basketball its name. The late Dr. James A. Naismith, an instructor at the Y.M.C.A. training school at Springfield, Mass., invented the game.

"Y" members were bored with calisthentics and other non-competive gymnasium activities. Membership was declining. There was need for an interesting, not too difficult, game, which could be played indoors under lights. Keeping athletes in shape between football and baseball seasons was a problem. Basketball filled all of these requirements.

Peach baskets were replaced by metal ones and in 1906 by hoops of the kind used today.

The college fixing scandals in 1951 and 1952 set the sport back only temporarily.

Professional basketball has had its reverses since it outgrew dance halls and bandbox gymnasiums.

Two of its main stimulants have been television and the rule that a team must shoot within 24 seconds after getting possession of the ball.

The gross income of the National Basketball Association for the 1966-67 season will be about $8 million, not a pittance in any league of any sport.

Basketball is played in nearly every country. Players start in the littlest of little leagues.

Its international flavor is indicated by a recent basketball victory by Communist China over the Soviet Union.

The game has been a strong bond in linking the youth of many countries. It should be a factor in promoting international understanding. The more of those there are the better.

DAY OF RESURRECTION

EASTER falls on the same date for all Christendom this year by a trick of the calendar. Ordinarily the Greek Orthodox observance is later.

In the year 325 A.D., Constantine convoked the historic Council of the Christian Churches at Nicea. By that time, pilgrims were traveling by the thousands to the Holy Land to celebrate the resurrection. So the Council decided that Easter should be fixed at a time when pilgrims could be guided in safety by the light of the full moon. Easter was set on the first Sunday after the first full moon following the vernal equinox.

But the time of the vernal equinox varied according to longitude, and opinions continued to diverge as to what date was the correct one. The Gregorian calendar promulgated in 1582 helped matters only in a limited way because the Eastern churches held to the old Julian calendar, refusing to accept a reform originated by the Roman Church.

BACK IN 1923, the League of Nations called a conference attended by Roman Catholic, Eastern Orthodox, and Anglican church delegates to study the Easter date confusion. A general desire was expressed that the date of Easter be fixed, as the date for the celebration of Christ's birth is fixed, and many proposals for calendar reform were brought forward thereafter.

The British Parliament even passed an Easter Act in 1928 designating the first Sunday after the second Saturday in April as Easter day, contingent upon its acceptance internationally. The desired acceptance has not been forthcoming.

A fixed date for Easter was one of the ecclesiastical reforms recommended by the Vatican II Ecumenical Council in Rome in 1963, but agreement still seems remote. The disunity is the more provoking for the fact that Easter is the chief festival of the Christian year, commemorating the resurrection of Chirst.

EASTER, and the many other dates which depend upon it -- Shrove Tuesday (or Mardi Gras), Ash Wednesday, Lent, Palm Sunday, and Good Friday, to name just the ceremonies most widely observed -- vary from year to year with a formula that most people find baffling. The uncertainty is a consequence of the incompatibility between the lunar year, on which the Jewish calendar was based, and the solar year, which regulates modern calendars.

As The Financial Times of London observed several years ago, having spent 1,800 years in persuading all Christians to celebrate Christmas the same day, the churches are reluctant to hurry into another change. Nevertheless, the lives of city dwellers are becoming too complex to be regulated by the phases of the moon.

It can be argued that some of the pageantry--and growing secularization--of Easter stems from the artificial formula of setting the date. The word Easter, incidentally, is derived from "Eostre" or "Eastre," the Anglo-Saxon name for the goddess of spring. Doubtless many of our tenacious Easter customs are also heritages from a dim pagan past--the rabbits, eggs, and other fertility symbols and the parading of new finery.

SWEET DAYS OF SPRING

The Vernal Equinox (spring) arrives officially at 2:37 a.m. EST on Tuesday (March 21.)

Then blooms each thing, then maids dance in a ring,
Cold doth not sting, the pretty birds do sing,
Cuckoo, jug-jug, pu-we, to-witta-woo!
- Thomas Nash (1567-1601)

Spring is here, though in some parts of the country the weatherman doesn't seem to know it. It is welcome. Generally speaking, the winter in this country was rough.

Fort Lauderdale reports that about 3,000 Ohio University kids already have reported to spring vacation beer and frug headquarters. A peak of 30,000 collegians from all over the country is expected for the March 25-26 Easter weekend. Daytona Beach and Balboa, Calif., also are bracing themselves for the annual fertility rites. "Sweet lovers love the spring" (As You Like It.)

More than 1000 pupils of four Jersey City high schools walked out on March 13. Over at the London School of Economics, 200 graduate students staged a sit-in, demanding "student power." Britain's Easter peace marchers are doing their roadwork.

Another sure harbinger of spring, Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus, is gamboling its way up the eastern littoral on its way to an April 4 opening at Madison Square Garden. Throughout the land circus wagons are rolling.

On the serious side, the spring breezes blow every which way. A severe drought in the major wheat producing regions of Kansas and Oklahoma is threatening much of the nation's winter wheat crop. Dry and powdery topsoil is exposing the poorly rooted plants to the March winds. Crops in Virginia will be 12 per cent below the 1965 level as the result of a spotty drought, a freeze last May which hit apple and peach trees, and unusual participation in cotton land diversion programs.

But, nationwide, bumper crops are in prospect. A Wall Street Journal survey shows that farmers are planning to boost the acreage they plant in major crops this year to a seven-year high. Granted good weather ahead, we could have the most bountiful harvest in history. If so, housewives can look ahead to some food bargains. Our dwindling grain reserves will be replenished, and the government will be able to meet its foreign food aid goals.

The early date of Easter does not favor the retail trade. The earliest possible Easter is March 22, only five days earlier than this year's. Nor have the heavy snows in many parts helped the stores. Even so, all but one of the major retailing chains reported an increase in sales in February over 1966.

Spring and Easter are inevitably intertwined. The word Easter is derived from "Eostre" or "Eastre," the Anglo-Saxon name for the goddess of spring. Doubtless many of our tenacious Easter customs also are heritages from a dim pagan past - the rabbits, eggs, and other fertility symbols, and the parading of new finery.

A final note - this on spring fever. The recommended first-day-of-spring treatment at the turn of the century was: two ounces of sulphur, two ounces of molasses, mixed and downed before breakfast.

Doctors today say forget it. For spring fever one school of thought prescribes steaming baths, lively exercise, and a light diet. Another school says: "Don't try to treat it. Just enjoy it."

"Hello, Tubby."

"What's that you've got under your vest — a watermelon or a pillow?"

"You say you've already lost 12 pounds? It sure doesn't show. Maybe you're just kidding yourself."

"Isn't that funny? I can drink like a fish and eat like a horse, and my weight doesn't vary a pound, winter or summer."

"What you have to do is to watch every calorie."

"I don't think calories have a darn thing to do with it. In my opinion it's all mental. What you have to do is think yourself thin —and, son, you will be."

"Have you tried the salt pork and marmalade diet? It worked wonders for me."

"They say some people overeat in an attempt to camouflage a hidden antagonism. It could be a sibling rivalry. Did you hate your brother or sister when you were a boy, Roscoe?"

"It took a long time to put it on, and it will take a long time to get it off."

"Yes, I can see a marked improvement already. One of your chins is missing."

"Have you tried the puffed rice and pomegranate diet? It worked wonders for me."

"Well, of course, no matter what you do you'll never be in danger of being called skinny."

"Have you tried the sauerkraut and sesame seeds diet? It worked wonders for me."

"Of course, if you really slim down as much as you ought to, you'll have to buy a whole new wardrobe."

"Have you tried the raw seaweed and aspirin diet, Roscoe? It worked wonders for me. I never had a single headache the whole time I was on it."

A further weakening of employment by the nation's independent business proprietors appears to be taking place, according to the first returns to the 1967 continuous year-long survey by the National Federation of Independent Business.

The first 1900 returns show that the creation of new jobs, after deducting the jobs dropped, is down to a gain of an average of 1 job for the 29 per cent reporting changes in their employment structure. This is down from 1.7 average new jobs being created at the end of 1966 by 30 per cent of the independent firms. At the beginning of 1966 the net gain in new job creation by 30 per cent reporting employment changes was 3.5.

Projected over the 4,700,000 independent firms in the nation, this indicates that the net gain of new jobs on an annual rate is now running at 1,363,000 as compared to a rate of 2,472,900 at the end of the year and 4,935,000 at the start of 1966.

While the data for 1966 covers almost 90,000 respondents and thus it is considered the data for that year is valid, the Federal research staff points out that the data for that year is valid, the Federation research staff points out that the data for 1967 is predicated on only 1,900 returns and definite conclusions must wait until a larger sample is analyzed.

The data on new job formation is confined to the independent business firms and is not correlated with the overall government figures on employment, which include data from the big industrial complexes.

But the Federation research staff believes if this present trend continues among independent business firms, with no substantial compensatory change in the national employment picture, a clear picture can then be drawn as to presumed impetus being given to big business and labor by the Vietnam war.

The returns to the Federation survey are all before the request was made to the Congress to raise income taxes and social security benefits. Subsequent returns will be closely watched to note what apparent affect these matters will have on the rate of new job formation.

By the end of 1966 additional voluntary comments by respondents indicated they had been taking steps for most of 1966 to reduce their labor force in preparation for the higher payroll taxes and the affect of the new minimum wage law before 1967.

The job attrition seems to be taking its heaviest toll among the teen agers and the unskilled.

Nothing will change the voting habits of moms and dads quicker or more permantly than to see their teenage boy leave for war overseas. Many moms and dads who have no teenage boys change too. Especially if they have had boys of their own fail to come back from overseas in the past. No amount of propaganda or promises will change their thinking or voting.

H. L. Hunt Says

IN THE NAME OF RESEARCH

Recognizing the need to reduce government spending the 90th Congress might take a look at the findings of a House Government Operations subcommittee which has been investigating Federal expenditures for research and development.

The term "research and development" has become almost sacred in the United States in recent years. And, of course, research and development are important and necessary. But it is disturbing to note that the House committee reports that, although the government spends $4 billion a year on research and development in its own laboratories, federal officials do not know just how many laboratories they have, where they are, or what they are doing.

The committee gave particular attention to research on pollution of air, water and other aspects of the environment. Difficulty was often encountered in getting any information at all, but it was very definitely found that a great deal of pollution research is going on.

The committee reports that pollution studies are scattered among at least 192 federal laboratories operated by nine different federal agencies or departments. Confusion in these agencies is unbound. For example, in reply to one part of the study's questionnaire, the Agriculture Department reported that work on air pollutants was being conducted at Columbia, Mo., Mandan, N. Dak., and Cheyenne, Wyo., while in another part the projects were said to be located at Beltsville, Md.

This kind of disorder is getting worse. Research is great, but it would seem no more is needed to convince Congress that the government should at least know where its scientists are and what they are doing. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- There was something a little sad about the wind - up of the Dodd hearings. Senators who peered down at their fellow senator obviously were sad at sitting in judgment on him. It was a disagreeable job.

Dodd himself looked sad. Here was a man who once aspired to be vice president of the United States asked to explain the transfer of $170,000 from his campaign funds to his personal bank account.

But was the excuse valid? Did he really need the money? Of course a lot of other people, ranging from Negro boys who snatch purses on the streets of Washington to jobless men with families to feed, have used the same excuse and ended up in jail. But regardless of whether the senator was right or not, did he really need the money?

One answer is that various senators, cabinet members and others manage to live on government salaries. If you dine with Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., you find his wife doing the cooking and the children washing the dishes. Mrs. Orville Freeman, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, does her own cooking. So does Mrs. Stewart Udall, wife of the Secretary of the Interior. Mrs. Willard Wirtz, wife of the Secretary of Labor, makes her own dresses.

Sen. Dodd complained that he needed a mint of money to campaign. But Connecticut is the third smallest state in the union and Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, Republican, campaigning in the larger state of Maine, spends $5,000 given her by the Republican National Committee, and that's all.

DODD'S INCOME

Actually Tom Dodd did pretty well financially. During the period of 1957-58, just before he came to the senate, he collected $74,000 from the Guatemalan government as a foreign agent. This should have given him a nest egg with which to begin his senate career.

Dodd claims his net worth was only $100,000, from which, he said, must be subtracted current $50,000 legal fees.

However, a check on his visible assets indicates that his net worth is much nearer a quarter of a million. His house in Georgetown is worth around $100,000; his house at North Stonington, Conn., which got $50,000 of improvements -- out of testimonial dinner funds -- is worth at least $100,000. Tnese, together with $7,000 cash on hand, insurance of $21,000, brings the total up to more than $250,000.

Actually Dodd lived like a millionaire. He kept his children in private schools. Most senators don't. He took his family on vacations to London, the Caribbean and Miami. He used one staff member as a chauffeur and sort of handyman.

Dodd did not have to spend his time and money at the racetrack -- an excellent place to lose money. Other senators don't. Nor do most of them spend as much time and money as Dodd drinking.

We know of no other senator who has two sons on the payroll. Nor do we know of any other senator who up until 1964 deducted the support of four children on his income tax, even though a couple of boys are approaching thirty.

You also have to look at Dodd's income. In 1959, his first year in the senate, he reported an income of $25,079.11.

Then it began to go up. In 1960, Dodd reported an income of $38,963.83; in 1961, an income of $88,031.88. By this time he had learned how to make money, and also how to spend money. Despite this substantial income, which most people would be able to live on, Dodd dipped into his testimonial dinner fund in 1961 for $56,112.39, giving him a total for 1961 of more than $144,000. This ain't hay.

The year 1963 was not quite so good for Dodd and he made only $33,365.45. This year once again he dipped into his testimonial dinner fund for a total of $54,663.12. Incidentally, he spent some money out of his dinner fund for his campaign, some for personal matters, thus refuting his claim that the testimonial dinner fund was for him personally, not for his campaign.

In 1964 Dodd reported an income of $35,489 to which he added $79,722.54, all taken out of testimonial dinners.

Senators who looked into Dodd's record knew all this. That was why during the close of the hearing they looked sad, Dodd looked sad, and why it was a very sad occasion.

SEN. ELLENDER ROARS

Nothing dismays our diplomats overseas quite like the approach of Sen. Allen Ellender, D-La., who for 30 years has been circling the globe and jotting down his impressions in his little black notebooks. He is regarded by the foreign service as a cranky but rich old uncle who must be pampered.

In Pakistan, the embassy staff still talks about the time he spied bales of Pakistani cotton on the docks. Paskistani cotton happens to be short staple, not in demand for export. However, Ellender viewed it as a threat to Louisiana cotton.

He rounded up the embassy staff and, with sleeves rolled up and pencil at the ready, proceeded to excoriate them.

"I appeal to you as Americans," he growled, "to stop giving our taxpayers' money away to these foreigners."

One young USIS aide, more brash than bright, broke in: "But senator, in USIS we don't give money away. We give ideas away."

Ellender slapped the table and roared: "I don't care what you give away! I want it stopped!"

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Professional Employes Union Chiefs Threaten To Hit Stock Exchange with Paralyzing Strike.

New York: -- White caps once rolled on "Wall Street" in front of the big Stock Exchange. So did the heads of pickets and cops. The caps were worn by the muscular legions of Paul Hall's Seafarers who came in waves to the aid of strikers and bowled over the bluecoats.

For three weeks they fought. The battle was lost by the white collar people after that Stock Exchange walkout 20 years ago. But the war was won.

Today there is a union. Its people are younger. And this week they are talking strike.

And the members of the United Financial Employes Local 205 of the Office and Professional Emloyes mean it.

They're genteel folk, all right. But most of them either know nothing of the last strike or have heard of the tumult from the "old timers."

The younger people want action. They want it now. They see it all around them, right across the nation. They note that city employes rough up labor relations men bargaining for this big city. They observe college students knocking over and ripping the coat of a university president.

So they want more money, longer vacations, longer fringes and a union shop.

Their officers and the management of the Stock Exchange -- now trading more than 10 million shares a day -- say the union's 1,500 members and supporters won't walk out. And if they do, the holders of seats and supervisors can run the big share mart.

A dissenting view comes from the traditionally calm and judicious Howard Coughlin, the Office and Professional Employes International Union president.

"You know it's our tradition not to strike. We're too deep in the nation's defense mechanism for that," said Coughlin in his west side mid - Manhatten headquarters.

"But there certainly is nothing sacred about the stock market.

"In this day of labor shortage, and with the tremendous volumn now being traded on the stock exchange, it is important to survive. We want the exchange officials to be more realistic in their approach to bargaining.

"It would be a serious miscalculation for the management of the New York Stock Exchange to misjudge the temper of our members. This is a new era. This is a period during which the temp is set by teachers, firemen, police, transit workers, and state and city employes in critical areas -- many of which have been struck or slowed in some fashion, with impunity and for considerable gain.

"So the exchange is not immune and the strike talk is serious."

Union leaders just don't agree that the management people could prevent the world's biggest board from becoming a tangled electronic jungle.

Coughlin's people point out that in the 1947 strike brokerage partners and supervisors went in along with some clerical help and kept the market alive.

But, say they, only an average of a million shares a day were traded then. Now the union controls the floor men, the "tube" people who handle the IBM cards and also represents clerical help as well. A strike call would bring out some 70 per cent of the exchange's 2100 employes.

There have been at least two bargaining sessions. It is clear now that the union wants a percentage wage increase and an expanded bonus system -- which adds extra pay when trading reaches an average of four million shares daily and then seven million shares.

But now, say the union chiefs, the average is more than three million shares atop the highest bonus standard. And the unionists want to be paid for handling such a volume in the traditional five hours each day.

If they walked out, it would be interesting to note what support the rest of labor would give Howard Coughlin -- one of labor's younger "new breed." It is certain that the white caps would not roll in this time.

But the popular Howard Coughlin is in George Meany's camp and the embattled national labor chief is not likely to let any of his people down at this tense moment inside labor.

So the white collar no longer is dependent on the vintage white cap.

NOTRE DAME. . . .GREAT

When Notre Dame's third-place-in-the-state Bulldogs returned home after the state tournament finals, they were a little angry, a little forlorn, and perhaps brooding over what might have been---all of which is natural with any team which had been beaten out of its school's first state tournament bid.

But the way this community stepped outside of rationalization is one for the books.

Did they brood? Certainly. Did they complain? Sure they did, but all the griping was over almost as quickly as it started. It suddenly dawned on the area, as well as all of Southeast Missouri, that the Bulldogs hadn't really lost. What they did was finish third in a group of 220 schools . . . .quite an accomplishment!

The Bulldogs were great . . . .For a fact, they had the best team in class M in Southeast Missouri. . . .They won the big games that counted.

The main purpose of high school athletics is to build sound bodies and minds, and to mold any team around a basis of good sportsmanship. In this field, Coach John Haas has been a success this season.

Speaking for southeast Missouri, Bulldogs, congratulations on a tremendous season ---remember----there are 216 other schools in the state that would like to have that big fat trophy you've got.....

NATIONAL WILDLIFE WEEK

The Missouri Department of Conservation is joining with the National Wildlife Federation and other state affiliates in observing National Wildlife Week, March 19-25.

National Wildlife Week is planned each year to include the first day of spring, and the original proclamation was signed by President Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1938. The observance is a yearly reminder to Americans of the need for natural resource conservation.

"This is Your Land" will be the theme for 1967. Ed Stegner of Jefferson City has been named state chairman for Missouri's 1967 Wildlife Week.

In keeping with this years theme Stegner said, "Every citizen is part owner of local, state and federal public lands and should be interested in how they are being used. This means working with public and private organizations as well as public officials to insure that we receive the maximum benefit from our public lands." He continued by saying that many public lands which are presently undeveloped could benefit campers, hikers, sportsmen, and provide for wildlife. "This is Your Land" will be a continuing theme and a constant reminder to all citizens that such areas as city dumps, rubble-covered vacant lots, and barren acres around newly built schools may represent publicly owned land. "We should not let these locations remain neglected for they can provide tomorrow's recreation grounds and nature study areas -- places to learn about and enjoy the out-of-doors," Stegner said.

After three months of living in southern California, my 13-year-old son and I were discussing the contracts between our new environment and the more provincial atmosphere of our previous home in Pennsylvania. As we drove along one of the more opulent streets in Beverly Hills, beautifully landscaped with the greenest of lawns and shaded with exotic foliage, my son's awe was mixed with disdain. "Gee, Mom," he remarked wearily, "isn't this just a little too much? I mean -- sort of like a ghetto of mansions."

Can History Repeat Itself For Carolina?

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "Yes, the stuff shot is a very high percentage shot."

Statements like that made Houston basketball Coach Guy Lewis the hit of an afternoon news conference Thursday, shortly after his Cougars arrived for the NCAA national championship tournament.

But Lewis, along with All-America Elvin (Big E) Hayes and the rest of the Cougars, face a very unfunny situation tonight when they meet unbeaten UCLA in the second game of the opening round.

"We teach the stuff shot," Lewis said. "We've had as many as 25-30 in one game and I think it's the most thrilling shot in basketball. I've seen guys shoot it in from 30 feet and the crowd sits on its hands. Then somebody stuffs it and the whole place comes up.

Lewis appeared at the news conference with the other three coaches whose teams are shooting for the national title: Dean Smith of North Carolina, Don Donoher of Dayton and John Wooden of UCLA.

Lewis was asked the inevitable question if he planned to stall against the Bruins.

"No, we're not going to change what we've been doing all year," Lewis said.

But later in the interview, Lewis modified his statement. "Oh, if we're ahead 18 or 20 points with 30 or 40 seconds to go, I wouldn't say we won't stall."

Lewis described his team like this: "We've got more height than most ball clubs and we have less speed than most. And everybody knows we don't have a good outside shooting team.

"But our strength is that we have a good bench and some tall boys who can play pretty well."

"They're a very big, very good team," UCLA's Wooden said. "And they're not only tall, they have weight. We haven't faced a heavier team all year."

"I think we've been the prohibitive favorite everywhere we've been this year, so I feel we're used to it by now."

Turning to his own team, Wooden said, "I'd rather be the prohibitive favorite than the decided underdog anytime.

Sitting beside Wooden when he made the statement was Donoher, whose Dayton team is the decided underdog in the tournament field. But the Flyers' coach says it's nothing new.

"Being the underdogs is nothing new to us," he said. "We were the underdogs in all three of our regional games." They defeated Western Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia Tech en route to the finals.

"There were a lot of factors that got us here," Donoher said. "And some of it had to be luck.

"For example, when we played Western Kentucky, their fine All-America Clem Haskins was injured. It wouldn't be fair to our players to say we couldn't have beaten them with Haskins healthy. But it certainly was a factor."

"I think everybody in the state of North Carolina thinks history repeats itself every 10 years," the Tar Heels' Smith said.

Smith referred to 1957 when a North Carolina team swept to the NCAA championship by defeating Kansas and its 7-footer, Wilt Chamberlain.

Home Runs And Pitching Show Up In Exhibitions

By RON RAPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Judge Roy Hofheinz is trying to lure the Democrats and the Republicans to the Astrodome, but Mike Cuellar seems to be out to show that the big bubble will be no place for Houston opponents of either party if they have bats in their hands.

Hofheinz, owner of the Astros, said Thursday that he was having an office for the President built in the right-field area of the Astrodome in the hopes of inducing both parties to hold their 1968 conventions there.

Meanwhile, down in Cocoa, Fla., Cuellar was holding Philadelphia hitless for six innings and running his scoreless-inning streak to 10 1-3 while the Astros topped the Phils 3-0.

In other exhibition games, Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati 8-2, Boston took Los Angeles 7-4, the Yankees clubbed the Mets 12-3, St. Louis turned back Minnesota 9-4, Detroit shut out Baltimore 11-0, Kansas City edged the White Sox 5-3, San Francisco took Cleveland 5-3, Atlanta beat its Richmond farm club 4-3 and California topped the Cubs 2-1.

Teaming up with Cuellar for the Astros' shutout was Claude Raymond, who allowed the Phillies their only hit of the afternoon, a single by Doug Clemens' in the eighth inning.

Willie Stargell drove in five runs with a homer and a pair of singles in the Pirates' victory. Bob Veale shut out the Reds on three hits in the five innings he worked.

Russ Gibson hit a three-run pinch homer in the Red Sox' triumph over the Dodgers. George Scott, Boston slugger, suffered a concussion when he ran into a concrete fence in right field when chasing a fly ball.

Ray Barker hit for the cycle, leading a 15-hit Yankee attack in their victory over the Mets. Charley Smith, a former Met, had three singles and a double, and Jake Gibbs had a homer.

Phil Gagliano hit two two-run doubles for St. Louis, offsetting a solo homer by Tony Oliva. Bob Gibson, who won 21 games for the Cards last season, was the winning pitcher.

Willie Horton's three-run homer and Mickey Stanley's three runs batted in led the Tigers past the Orioles. Horton now has nine RBI for the spring. Joe Sparma went nine strong innings for the Tigers.

Dave Duncan and Ossie Chavarria hit successive homers for the Athletics, who won their first game in Florida. Pete Ward hit a three-run homer for the White Sox.

Ken Henderson homered and tripled, leading the Giants past the Indians. In all, Henderson had three runs batted in. Two ninth-inning runs off Dick Radatz in the ninth sewed up the victory.

Atlanta scored twice in the first two innings and then held off Richmond. Hank Aaron doubled in a run in the first and then scored. Three singles accounted for the second-inning run. Tony Cloninger was the winner.

Three Angels' pitchers allowed the Cubs just four hits and California pushed the winning run across in the ninth on a sacrifice fly by pinch hitter Len Gabrielson.

Life Sentence Vacated for Kennett Man

KENNETT -- Chester Scott, who was sentenced to life imprisonment October 22, 1949 on a charge of first degree murder and had spent 17 years in prison, was paroled Tuesday in Dunklin County Circuit Court on a condition of future good behavior.

Sitting as special judge was William L. Ragland, regular judge of the 34th Judicial Circuit. Charles H. Baker, prosecuting attorney, represented the state.

A motion to vacate judgment filed by Scott on June 19, 1965, was sustained. His motion stated that he entered a plea of guilty in 1949 without the presence of counsel and accordingly his sentence should be set aside.

A hearing was held on the motion on September 13, 1965, at which time the late Judge Arthur U. Goodman, Jr. overruled the motion. Subsequently, William B. Morgan, who had been appointed by the court to represent Scott, appealed the case to the Missouri Supreme Court. Thereafter, the Missouri Supreme Court sent the case back to Dunklin County for further hearing and the presentation of further evidence.

Since all of the court officials in the office at the time of Scott's plea now live out of state, except Brydon M. Ross, circuit clerk, and Tom B. Mobley, then prosecuting attorney, it was not possible to present further evidence as to the circumstances of the crime and the circumstances of the plea. So the state, through Charles H. Baker, prosecuting attorney, agreed to the sustaining of the motion by Judge Ragland.

Following the vacating of the life sentence, an amended information, charging Scott with the crime of manslaughter, was field at which he entered a plea of guilty. Since he had been in prison for over 17 years, he was paroled conditioned on future good behavior.

Prosecuting Attorney Baker noted that, according to the record of the Missouri State Penitentiary, the average actual time spent imprisoned by a person with a life-time sentence is 13 years.

Hawks-Warriors 2-0 In Playoffs

LOS ANGELES AP - Rough and tumble National Basketball Association action puts both the San Francisco Warriors and the St. Louis Hawks 2-0 today in Western Division semifinal playoffs.

"This was a rougher game than normal league games. . . . traditionally playoff games are rougher.

"There's more body contact and the guys are tired and irritable, playing for a lot of money," he said.

Sharman's comments came on the heels of a fist-fight that erupted in the last minutes of play between the Warriors' Rick Barry and Jerry Chambers of the Lakers.

The fight started with some hot words and both men tossed a couple of punches before officials broke them up.

The next division playoff game is slated between the Bulls and the Hawks Saturday at St. Louis.

The Lakers meet the Warriors again Sunday morning in San Francisco.

No games were scheduled in the Eastern Division NBA playoffs.

The Bulls never caught up.

"Thurmond did it," mourned Schaus. "He did it all at both ends of the court. He rebounded, blocked shots and he intimidated our shooters."

The absence of Laker guard Jerry West, who suffers from a sprained ankle, may have been a cause of Laker despair but Schaus said, "We can't blame the lack of scoring on West's absence.

"Anyway," he added, "West will probably play Sunday."

Father Takes Polygraph Test In Death Probe

POPLAR BLUFF -- Sheriff Clyde Hendrix said today that Robert O. Butts, father of Robert Charles Butts, 17, who was shot to death on March 14 at the family home voluntarily had submitted to a polygraph (lie detector) test.

Butts was tested and apparently has given truthful statements concerning the death, Hendrix said.

A coroner's jury Friday returned an "open" verdict in the case, saying that the youth's death was caused by "person or persons unknown." The father testified he heard a shot and found the boy unconscious in a bedroom with a forehead wound. A .22-caliber rifle was near the body.

Prints Explode into Fashion

By HELEN HENNESSY
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—This is the year of the print. Printed fabrics are cropping up in every fashion category from gowns to sportswear.

One of the biggest factors contributing to the fashion-awareness of prints is a new technology that makes it possible to put wild patterns and colors sharply and clearly even on easy-care fabrics.

A noted authority in the business of color (Interchem) has developed a special color printing system called "Hi-Fast." This method of applying colors to fabrics results in sharp and brilliant patterns, a most important element in all the current print trends.

Africa is an important source of inspiration for prints today. From the khanga cloths used by natives in Nigeria come some beautifullly abstracted prints, all done in jungle shades of green, gold and orange. The animal kingdom, too, is a source of inspiration for fabric designers.

With prints playing such a dominant fashion role, it's good to know how to judge the quality of a printed fabric. Above all, don't be shy about giving it a close inspection.

Pattern definition is one big point to check. In geometrics, for example, be sure the edges of the pattern are clearly defined without any blurring.

Since most of the flower prints you'll see this season have definite patterns, be sure there are no "halos" of color where they aren't supposed to appear. Read the tags that tell how the garment should be cared for to insure the lasting quality of the brilliance of the print.

Prints are expressive. They can be cheering, exotic or romantic. They can either reflect the mood you're in or create a different outlook. Just think of what a tawny orange, gold and green jungle print would do for your spirits on a gloomy day.

IT'S UP TO YOU

The Cruel Illusion

Dr. Kershner

RUNNING like a scarlet thread through the comment of many sincere people who would like to improve the hard lot of the poor, is the basic assumption, often eloquently expressed in words, that this can be done by gaining and using political power. This is the assumption behind the "black power" movement in our country. It is the rallying cry that has forced the writing of much harmful legislation on our statute books.

Does any competent observer who has some knowledge of history believe that economic and social gains can be achieved by the exercise of political powers? People who were obsessed with this type of thinking gained control of Saskatchewan, Canada, from 1944 to 1964, with the result that stagnation and hard times plagued that province far more severely than in the neighboring provinces of British Columbia, Alberta and Manitoba. Industrial activity declined, new businesses were not organized, many were discontinued, and there was a general exit of industrial and professional leadership. No doubt many Cubans thought that by gaining political power under the leadership of Fidel Castro, they could solve the economic problems of their country. They have been much hungrier and more deprived ever since they realized their dream.

The hard facts are that economic and social gains cannot be achieved by the coercive exercise of the power of government. That's why the people in all communist lands are short of food, housing, clothing and many of the amenities that most of the poorest people in our country enjoy. The fact of the matter is that far more will be achieved toward relieving poverty and raising the standard of living for our poor people by seeking to help them become more productive.

If we wish to be free, we must stick to the system of rewarding men in proportion to their contribution to the wealth of our country. If one is not earning enough to live comfortably, he should strive to improve his skills and increase his output. That is the sure way to bring him the goods and services he needs and wants. That may appear to be a slow, hard way, but experience shows that it will work. Likewise, experience shows that the political power method which might seem to be faster, is a cruel illusion. Instead of improving the lot of our needy people, it will further impoverish them.

We need an all-out good will effort to help our lower paid workers increase their knowledge and their skills. That may not be spectacular, and it does not greatly arouse emotions, but it will produce the desired results.

'Show-Me' Girls Shown Sights at 4-H Congress

Miss Liebhart — Miss Moore — Miss Hahs — Miss Kinkade

Four girls from the "Show Me" state were treated to a tour of Chicago recently when they attended the National 4-H Club Congress.

The girls were part of the Missouri state delegation of about 30, all named best-in-state winners in their respective 4-H projects. They lived in the world's largest hotel, the Conrad Hilton, visited with the 1,600 other delegates, and made a gala night tour to the new Cheetah, a "mod" discotheque in the famous old Aragon Ballroom.

The group included Nancy Hahs, 17, Oak Ridge; Joan Kinkade, 16, Neosho; Carolynn Libehard, 19, Brookfield, and Betty Moore, 18, California.

Miss Hahs, daughter of Mrs. Truman Hahs, followed an older brother and sister in 4-H eight years ago. Her award-winning project was dress revue.

A lively, active girl, she made a wrapped, three-gore flared skirt from red sailcloth, reversible of bold polka dots topped with a sleeveless blouse. She has modeled her clothes on television in addition to many local style shows. Her trip to Chicago was sponsored by Simplicity Pattern Co. Inc.

Miss Kinkade grows potatoes for potato chips, a very special low-sugar content variety of potato. As part of her horticulture project, she has raised and sold more than 14,000 pounds of potatoes. She also maintains a family garden.

The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Kinkade, she has been in 4-H six years. Miss Kinkade was sponsored by Allis-Chalmers.

Miss Liebhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Junior Liebhart, is a sophomore at the University of Missouri. The congress was her third trip to Chicago on 4-H activity; she attended the 4-H Dairy Conference and was a Missouri Youthpower delegate.

At Youthpower she presented a report on careers available in the food industry, a subject she learned about in her food-nutrition project. As an offshoot from her project while in school, she has a part time job as a cook. She is majoring in clothing and textiles. General Foods Corporation sponsored her trip.

Miss Moore, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. H. Moore, is a freshman at Central Methodist College, Warrensburg. Betty has traveled farther than Chicago on 4-H adventures. She was a member of the 4-H International Exchange and made a trip to Denmark.

Miss Moore is state winner in leadership. She wrote a weekly column on 4-H leadership in a local newspaper. In addition, she was an active leader in her local club, county and state.

The Sears-Roebuck Foundation sponsored her trip to Chicago.

The entire 502nd Maintenance Detachment, 1st Logistical Command was there alright. One man . . . Pfc. Salvador Anton.

Put the 502nd into a formation with other outfits and Pfc. Anton looks lonesome. But put the 502nd to work—as it does every day—keeping the 15th Support Brigade's trucks in top running order at Long Binh, and Pfc. Anton produces like he had two or three assistants.

GIVE A GIFT OF HEALTH

In Africa, Asia and Latin America, hunger, destitution and disease make a pitiful way of life for people who are helpless, innocent victims of poverty.

The weapons with which the battle against starvation is being fought include powdered milk, wheat, flour, oil and other basic foodstuffs, distributed by Catholic Relief Services — the overseas aid agency of American Catholics — to more than 40 million needy men, women and children in 80 countries, regardless of race, creed or color.

During the 1967 Catholic Bishops' Overseas Aid Fund, you can give the world's needy a gift of health by taking a donation to the nearest Catholic church — or mailing it to: Bishops' Overseas Aid Fund, Empire State Bldg., New York, N.Y. 10001.

Often we work too hard at bringing things to pass because we believe that it is all up to us, that the outcome is entirely dependent on our personal efforts. We need to work from a spiritual level, to work in the faith that God is with us, and that His power in us is mighty to do all things. Our prayers will be answered in the right way when we trust God to do the answering. Our part is to have faith and give thanks.

FLIGHT

The river bends and finds
its way past the cities.
And the clouds cover the rubbage of wrongs
Hidden in the clots and clusters of houses.
I see the brown fields.

There was frost this morning
When I arose in the late darkness
Searching the shadows of the lawn
For the last scampering of squirrels.
But there were roses blooming--
Rare on these days--
And I could not write the realness of the day
Or speak beyond the silence
Surrounding our thoughts,
We nod in understanding -- Saying
Good morning, Good morning.

The Meaning of Good Friday

The words of an old hymn express the ~~deep meaning of what Christ~~ did for us on that first Good Friday. "Although the road be rough and steep, I go to the desert to find my sheep. But none of the ransomed ever knew how ddep were the waters crossed, Nor how dark was the night that the Lord passed through, Ere He found the sheep that was lost."

Worship with us Sunday at TRINITY BAPTIST CHURCH, 110 E. Center Street, as we celebrate the victory Christ won for us at such great cost.

IF EASTER BE NOT TRUE

If Easter be not true,
Then all the lilies low must lie;
The Flanders poppies fade and die;
The spring must lose her fairest bloom
For Christ were still within the tomb--
If Easter be not true.

If Easter be not true,
Then faith must mount on broken wing;
Then hope no more immortal spring;
Then hope must lose her mighty urge;
Life prove a phantom, death a dirge--
If Easter be not true.

If Easter be not true,
'Twere foolishness the cross to bear;
He died in vain who suffered there;
What matter though we laugh or cry,
Be good or evil, live or die,
If Easter be not true?

If Easter be not true-
But it is true, and Chirst is risen!
And mortal spirit from its prison
Of sin and death with him may rise!
Worthwhile the struggle, sure the prize,
Since Easter, aye, is true!

Bids Taken on Hayti Project

HAYTI - The Public Housing Authority is now taking construction bids on 104 low-rent housing units. The bids will be opened at 2 p.m. Thursday, April 13, in the Chamber of Commerce room at Hayti City Hall.

The 104 low-rent units will be built on three sites. Two of the sites are in the west part of town, northwest of Central School, and the third site is near Hayti North High School in the Northeast section.

Following the bid opening the low bidders will be determined and the local board will award the construction contract after analyzing the bids, with the assistance of the firm of Butler and Associates, Architects, and the Housing Authority Attorney. The action of the board will then be submitted to the Fort Worth Regional Office for review and approval.

The necessary review of the bids, and approval are expected to be completed within ten days following the bid opening, and pre-construction work on the sites should start within a matter of a few days following the awarding of the construction contract. Completion of the construction is expected within 300 calendar days from the time it starts. This means that by this time next spring, the 104 units should be ready for occupancy.

A LIFT IN A LIFT

For those of us crammed in an overcrowded elevator, recently, one fellow's ad-lib provided a welcome bit of comic relief. From his position at the center of the mass," he gazed around and solemnly said, "I suppose you're all wondering why I called this meeting."

MY "23RD PSALM"

The Lord is My shepherd I am so glad
He leadeth me home all the way
I shall not want for he is there
From him to not falter or stray.

He maketh me lie in pastues so green
Beside the still waters I stand
From the path of righteousness I will not stray
As long as I'm holding his hand.

A table before me is carefully spread
In the presence of my enemy
He restoreth my soul so happy that I
Will walk through death valley with thee.

No evil to fear for he's always there
Thy rod and thy staff comfort me
As thou Annoinst -- My head with oil
His goodness and mercy I see.

My cup runneth over full to the brim
As his mercy does follow me
All the days of my life and hereafter too
With Jesus forever to be.

#72 In A Series To Acquaint You With The Churches In This Area.

First Baptist Church

OF SIKESTON

Wishes everyone a happy and joyous Easter. For nearly 100 years now First Baptist has sought to minister in the community of Sikeston. The following selection expresses the message and spirit of First Baptist during this victorious season.

Easter Joy

God knows we need the joy of Easter!

News of the day disheartens. Headlines screech war and rioting, strikes and protests. Magazines and films spew up moral filth. Men clash openly with men in high endeavors of government, education, and religion. Even the zeal of some for God and country brews a cheerless, stifling atmosphere.

The only people laughing, it seems, are those whose god is their belly, as Scripture puts it. They believe in glutting themselves. But for attention to self they will not be troubled by anything. And that's distressing.

Welcome, Easter Day! Tell us the joyful news that rocked the earth: Christ is risen! He lives! Hallelujah! For the Lord our God the Almighty reigns!

God had the last word in the crucifixion of His Son. It was not the end-all. On that bloodied cross Jesus made atonement for the world's evil. He bore the curse of all crime against God and humanity. His Easter rising was the seal of victory. He had bested sin and death and hell.

Electrifying! But there is more. "Thank God!" St. Paul exclaimed after he had announced death's destruction. "He gives us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." God gives us the victory Jesus won by His suffering, death, and resurrection. Because He lives, we shall live too. Beyond life in our physical apparatus is more life — life with God. And on Resurrection Day all who lived and died in Him will rise to enter glory matching His.

In this hour of universal unrest churches need to accent: "and the third day He rose again according to the Scriptures." Here is the capstone of all God's mighty acts for our salvation. Here is the supreme reason for being "steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, knowing that in the Lord your labor is not in vain."

Legislative Bribe Offers Reported

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)— Two newspaper reporters told a grand jury Wednesday that more than one state legislator had confided to newsmen that they were offered bribes to vote for a bill to legalize casino gambling in Hot Springs, Ark.

The newsmen refused to identify the lawmakers and were jailed for contempt by Circuit Court Judge William J. Kirby.

State Rep. Gayle Windsor of Little Rock told reporters March 7 that he was offered "10 bills" to vote for the gambling measure. He said that 10 bills meant $1,000.

Kirby said they would remain in jail until they identified for the grand jury the other legislators involved besides Windsor or unless the State Supreme Court released them.

Kirby said the newsmen claimed privileges under a state law that reporters are not required to disclose the source of their information unless their articles are written in bad faith, malice or not in the public interest.

The judge said the statute did not apply in this case because neither had reported in their newspapers the alleged bribe attempts of anyone other than Windsor.

Two Welfare Measures Gain Senate Approval

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Two of Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' major welfare bills passed the Senate Wednesday, including his limited Medicaid proposal.

It would provide out patient care and medical services for those getting welfare aid.

Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, its sponsor, estimated this would mean about a half million dollars for the Kansas City General Hospital and about a million and a half for St. Louis City hospitals.

The bill would also provide graduated payments to those in nursing homes, depending on the degree of professional care provided.

The bill's cost is estimated at $12 million. It went to the House on a 33-1 vote.

The other bill would allow old age assistance recipients to live with relatives and still get aid. But only the amount actually spent on their care would be taken into account in figuring their budgets.

It would also pay for those in mental hospitals in order to qualify for federal aid in such cases.

The bill's cost is estimated at $6,382,000. The Vote sending it to the House was 26-6.

Also passed were bills to permit Missouri to use reflectorized license plates and to clear the way for construction of a state office building in St. Louis County.

Local governmental units also could be located there if they paid rent to the state to help retire revenue bonds issued to finance the construction.

If at first you don't succeed, well, so much for sky-diving.
Bob Goddard.

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE

By Jack Strass L.L.D.

THE CASE OF THE STONE-AGED SPENDER

When Marie arrived in the United States with her husband Joe as immigrants, she didn't have a rag on her back. After 20 years, however, she had plenty of rags on her back. While her husband Joe had succeeded in making a fortune in farming, he had neglected to augment Marie's standard of living in pace with his financial success.

As a result, Marie finally sued to end their marriage on the grounds that husband Joe had been intolerably cruel to her. "With all the money Joe has," she complained to the judge, "certainly I'm entitled to some of the comforts of life. As it is, we live in the most run down house in the neighborhood and drive around in a car that must have originally been owned by Og, Son of Fire. I can't stand it any more. For Joe not to spend any money to improve our circumstances is monstrous."

"So I'm not fancy," was Joe's answer. "But, that's no reason to end a marriage."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you uncouple Marie from her conservative husband?

This is how the Judge ruled: No! The judge held that it is not cruel for a husband to refuse "to keep up with the Joneses." While the situation might have been aggravating, he conceded, there was no evidence that Joe's conduct was cruel or that he intended it to be cruel so as to entitle Marie to have her marriage ended.

ANN LANDERS

Answers Your Questions

Dear Ann Landers: You are going to call this shot, Ann Landers, and if you are with "them" and not me, I will crawl back into the cobwebs and never offer another opinion.

Last weekend our daughter brought her roommate home from college. Our daughter always does her laundry when she comes home and her roommate brought laundry, too, which was fine with me. I happened to see the roommate ironing a man's shirt and I asked whose it was. She replied, "My boyfriend's. And darn it, I have seven shirts this week!"

At the risk of sounding square I told her I had never heard of a girl doing her boyfriend's laundry. Both she and my daughter said it was the "in" thing and that any girl at college who wasn't doing a fellow's laundry was considered a cipher.

Am I crazy when I say this is entirely too chummy? - FORTY - SEVEN AND AGING FAST

Dear Aging: If a boy is smart enough to find a girl who is dumb enough to do his laundry, why knock it?

I'll bet a giant-size box of detergent that the laundresses end up with a ring around the washtub, and somebody else gets the ring on the finger.

Dear Ann Landers: I was fascinated by the letter from "Life Is a Dung Heap." The woman said anyone who has to write to Ann Landers for help has a screw loose, yet she has joined the throng without even realizing it. I address my remarks to her:

I am the "tramp" (?) who is seeing your husband. I would like to make one point clear, however, he is NOT keeping me. I make $200 a week. And I am not a dumb blonde. I have a master's degree from Columbia University and I'm a brunet.

I did not go after your husband. It was quite the reverse. He finds something in me that he did not find in you - principally a keen appreciation for life and the good things it has to offer. Until he met me, he thought life was a dung heap, too.

And now, because I'm a good sport, I'll give you some advice: If you want your husband back, lose some weight, stop complaining, and make your house a heaven to come home to. Spoil him. Fuss over him. He deserves it. In fact, he's the finest man in the world, and don't forget, he is YOUR husband. I wish he were mine. - BRONXVILLE

Dear Bronxville: Here's your letter, and if that wife is wise she'll take your advice. I couldn't have done better myself.

Dear Ann Landers: I had a little boy out of wedlock seven years ago. I knew it would be difficult to keep him but I couldn't bear to give him up, so I am doing my best.

I have told my family and friends that I was married secretly to an Army officer who was killed overseas. Only my mother knows the truth.

The boy keeps asking for a picture of his Daddy and I wonder if I should show him a picture of my cousin who was killed in the Korean War. It would keep him happy and solve the problem. Your answer will be my decision. - A.G.S.

Dear A.G.S: - Don't add another lie to the one you now have going. It will complicate matters (lies always do), and you'll have to make up six more lies to cover it. Tell the boy you have no picture.

Do you feel ill at ease...out of it? Is everybody having a good time but you? Write for Ann Landers' booklet, "The Key to Popularity," enclosing with your request 35¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Prayer

From The Upper Room

When Jesus therefore had received the vinegar, he said, It is finished. (John 19:30)

PRAYER: Lord God, our heavenly Father, we humble ourselves before the cross and gaze into the painwracked face of our Savior. We pray that we may understand more of the meaning of His words and work, His life and love, His sacrifice and victory. We pray in His holy name. Amen.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rider returned Tuesday from a managers conference of the Otasco Company, in Tulsa Sunday and Monday.

Rider, is manager of the Sikeston store.

HOME for the summer, I was indulging a little self-pity at a party about how hard I had been working at the University of Denver as a Carnegie Fellow studying for a master's degree. An undergraduate friend asked how large graduate classes were. I replied, "Usually ten. Fellows and one or two non-Fellows." Another friend said, "Say, you really have been working too hard. Those 'non-fellows' are called girls'."

When I Was A Boy

Since the publication of the late H. J. (Jack) Blanton's "When I Was A Boy" reminiscenes in book form in 1942, they have become increasingly popular. All the books have been sold, and are difficult to obtain. Because of the increasing demand for these articles, the Standard is reprinting them during the next few weeks in the belief that its readers, young and old, will enjoy reading about 70 to 100 years ago. Clip and save them.

WHEN WE TOOK OUR RELIGION SERIOUSLY

When I was a boy people took their religion seriously, meaning their denominationalism. Most every family had at least one member who could, and at frequent intervals did, give a reason for the faith that was in him. All the Protestant families heard terrible things about the Catholics. Baptists, Presbyterian and Methodist churches heard things equally unfavorable to the Campbellites by which odious name the Christian Church was then spoken of. All those sects lambasted us Baptists because we limited participation in the Lord's supper to those of our own faith and order, although they really didn't care so much about eating and drinking with us as about being barred from the table.

There was much theological brick - throwing from the various pulpits. I recall an evangelist named Martin who held a meeting at the Christian church. His chief mission in life seemed to be the matter of showing other denominations the error of their way. He took the other churches in rotation, hewing to the line and letting the chips fall where they would. The night set apart for showing the Baptists up was a Wednesday night. Prayer meeting at the Baptist Church was dismissed early in order that the pastor might gather material with which to load a theological gun for his Sunday morning reply.

The church was filled when the Baptist martyrs arrived. Only back seats in the little Sunday School room remained unoccupied. In order that they might see as well as hear Evangelist Martin, the Baptist minister and his deacons sat on the high back of the bench. While the evangelist was unlimbering his heaviest guns at their doctrines and practices the back of that bench suddenly gave way and with a resounding crash the Baptist pastor and his deacons fell to the floor. This embarrassing moment rated by admirers of the evangelist as a knockout to the enemy, only added to the fury of the counter - attack the Baptist pastor unleashed the following Sunday.

How times have changed! Several years ago I asked all pastors of local churches to write statements in which the doctrines of their denomination would be given. Only one responded -- a young man who had just been called to the pastorate of the Christian church. He very carefully avoided anything that might have started a controversy, while all the others declined to say anything for publication, lest denominational antagonisms would be revived.

My first recollection of Paris churches is of interiors with a rail through the center of the middle pews. Men sat on one side of that rail, women on the other. Young people with an eye to opportunity so managed that the girl sat against the rail on one side, and the boy against it on the other. Boys seldom took their sweethearts to church. The big idea was to take them home after the benediction, in furtherance of which the boys always ganged up at the door, with most of the elders looking on with interest, then as a favored girl came out her admirer would rush up say, "May I see you home?" Occasionally, some scamp who had no interest in her would get there first, and great was the glee of the spectators.

THE PRIVY

When I was a boy the privy was a family necessity on the farm & in all towns that were with out water works and sewers, a problem in cities like St. Louis and Kansas City that were undertaking to put water mains and sewer pipes under practically every street. Although condemned by health authorities and loathed to well-to-do people, thousands of city home owners refused to abandon them, for one excuse or another. Some argued that they were financially unable to install toilet facilities and make sewer connections. Others, who could spare the money, clung to the privy from pure contrariness or from unwillingness to go modern.

Everywhere, modesty restrained people from even so much as indirectly mentioning the privy during a conversation. People of those generations little dreamed that the time would come when one of America's best sellers in literature would be a book which discussed nothing else. It was "The Specialist," by Chic Sale. After typewritten copies of it had been read at service clubs and other gatherings for men only, a St. Louis man, the late W.S. McClevey, manager for the Western Newspaper Union, offered to publish it in book form, market it at his own expense and give the author half the profits for the privilege. Two years after the first book appeared, Mr. McClevey told me, more than 700,000 copies had been sold at a dollar a copy, and the demand continued to be good. The book contained about 20 pages.

The privy was about the only thing besides appetites which both rich and poor had in common in town and country. Our more cultured people called it a backhouse. Some of them tried to conceal it from the public view by erecting vineclad trellises. As a rule, however, it stood in the open, like a wart on the nose, evidently aware of its important place in the scheme of things and willing to look a passing world full in the face. When new houses were to be contracted for in all small towns, three additional structures were required. One was the privy. Another was a hen house. The third was the smokehouse, in which meat for the family table was to be cured and smoked and kept. Priority over all others, including the residence, was given to the privy, for the convenience of the contractor and his assistants.

Every church and every school had two, one for boys, the other for girls. They were placed just as far apart as possible. Every office and store had at least one, to which no one would venture without a quick survey of the landscape for the purpose of learning whether it was occupied or that no one of the opposite sex was in sight.

Each structure was constructed with a view to Hallowe'en. This means that strength to hold together when overturned was a prime necessity when boys went forth for Hallowe'en stunts. On the following morning the landscape abounded with privies that were flat on their backs. Always, the first ones to suffer were at schoolhouse and church. Before Paris installed waterworks and sewers there was a two-holer back of my office. We had a standing arrangement with two scout Negro men for the necessary service the morning after Hallowe'en. One year, however, the boys went to great extremes with that structure. When I came down to work the day after, great was my surprise and indignation at seeing the privy standing erect in the middle of Main street in front of the office, with a rail fence built around it and a box of corn cobs at the door.

When the privy door was closed it was notice to everybody to keep away, for there was a customer inside. Too often it was a temptation passing boys could not resist. Always, it seemed, a stone or two was handy. Usually, the privy was considered a legitimate target for a test of throwing skill. The crash of a rock was very disconcerting to the unsuspecting inmate. Young people in the late teens lived in constant terror of being seen by one of the opposite sex while entering or emerging from the family privy. When, once in a long time, this did occur they evaded each other for weeks on end. It seemed that they would never get on speaking terms again.

The largest privy in our town, which was the county seat, was an eight-holer. It was located on the courthouse lawn, right in the middle of the business district. It probably was never patronized so much as one time by a female of the species, so conspicuous was its location. The most remarkable privy in our part of the state was the one operated by the Glenn Hotel, a three story building. It was three stories high and was reached by bridge-like walks which led from each floor of the hotel. This structure was very unpopular with local Hallowe'en boys. During all of its long life it baffled every attempt to overturn it.

By a strange coincidence calomel and the privy passed out of general use at about the said time. Family doctors labored under the delusion that every patient should undergo a course of calomel at least once a year, or any other time when less energetic medicines had failed them. Few people got through the winter without experiencing this ordeal. Nineteen times out of twenty the stuff took effect between midnight and morning. When the call came there was not to reason why. There was only to arise and fly. On no other occasion did the victim don clothing and reach his destination in such a minimum of time as he did under the urge of a heroic dose of calomel. In zero weather, with privy 100 yards to the rear, it became an endurance test in which no quarter was asked and none was given. A motion picture of that performance would have outdone our old custard pie comedies as funnybone thrillers.

No matter how modest a woman guest might be, she lost no time in a whispered conversation with her hostess about where the privy was located when she arrived for a visit. Masculine guests usually solved the problem by leisurely sauntering around the premises, on the pretext of inspecting the fruit and shade trees keeping a wary eye out for what they were really looking for. On a trip to Europe I once learned from the European agent of the Hines Company, at whose table I sat, that the first thing to learn when about to enter a foreign country was the word for toilet or privy. Never was there a more valuable bit of information.

Except for privies many towns and cities would never have had sewers. Thus, after voting bonds for waterworks people would discover that there had to be a choice between privies as a public health menace or sewers for the elimination of privies. The sewer side of the proposition most always won.

THE ART OF GETTING ALONG

Sooner of later, a man, if he is wise, discovers that business life is a mixture of good days and bad, victory and defeat, give and take, ups and downs.

He learns that it doesn't pay to be a sensitive soul--that he should let some things go over his head like water off a duck's back.

He learns that he who loses his temper usually loses.

He learnes that all men have burnt toast for breakfast now and then and that he shouldn't take the other fellow's grouch too seriously.

He learns that the quickest way to become unpopular is to carry tales and gossip about others.

He learns that it doesn't matter who gets the credit so long as the business shows a profit.

He learns that buck-passing always turns out to be a boomerang and that it never pays.

He comes to realize that the business could run along perfectly well without him.

He learns that it doesn't do any harm to smile and say, "Good morning," even if it is raining.

He learns that most of the other fellows are as ambitious as he is, that they have brains that are as good or better, and that hard work and no cleverness is the secret of success.

He learns to sympatmize with the youngster coming into the business, because he remembers how bewildered he was when he first started out.

He learns not to worry when he loses an order because experience has shown that if he always gives his best, his average will break pretty well.

He learns the bosses are not monsters trying to get the last ounce of work out of him for the least amount of pay, but they are usually fine men who have succeeded through hard work and who want to do the right thing.

He learns that the gang is not any harder to get along with in one place than another and that "getting along" depends about 98 per cent on his own behavior. (The End)
